REPUBLICANS HEAR KEYNOTE SPEECH AND ADJOURN

Progressives Indulge in 34-Minute Demonstration for Roosevelt

LEADERS PLAN JOINT CONFERENCE OF TWO PARTIES FOR HARMONY

Prediction of Peace Follows Borah's Telephone Talk With Roosevelt and Cancellation of Advertisements for Colonel by Perkins—Idaho Senator Declares Justice Hughes Is Only Man Who Can Beat President Wilson

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The Republican and Progressive national conventions opened with growing hopes of harmony. Leaders of the two parties who sought their beds at dawn for brief naps after a night of conferences, did so with the almost settled conviction that incidents which would become historic in American political annals were immediately impending.

This hoped-for program of peace between Progressives and Republicans, however, may go glimmering, but the men who early today sounded the "end of the war" clarion asserted their faith was founded upon a tangible sequence of events of more than ordinary significance and importance.

Here is what led to the "peace is in sight" report:

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and other Republicans who have been working for harmony for several days yesterday afternoon completed their canvasses of Western delegates, including those from California, Washington and Oregon. At once Senator Borah entered the lists as an unqualified champion of Justice Hughes, declaring that "Nobody but Hughes could win against Wilson."

Borah Talks With Roosevelt.

After several hours of work among the delegates, Senator Borah went into conference with George W. Perkins of New York, the Progressive leader. While at Perkins' rooms, Senator Borah had a telephone conversation with Theodore Roosevelt at Oyster Bay. When he had concluded the telephone talk with Col. Roosevelt and the conference with Perkins, the Idaho Senator admitted that he "was better satisfied" with the prospects for harmony than he had been at any time since he arrived in Chicago.

Some time later Perkins emerged from a conference with Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts and, with a broad smile, said in reply to inquiries that the outlook for harmony between the two conventions was "brighter."

These incidents were followed by the announcement that Perkins had vetoed the Progressive plan to print full-page advertisements throughout the country in behalf of Col. Roosevelt. Coincident with the statement that abandonment of the advertising campaign had been ordered came the declaration that the two conventions today would attempt to name conference committees "to arrange for harmonious action" between the two factions. Such is the basis for the peace talk which swept through hotel lobbies, conference rooms and the assemblage places of the two conventions this morning.

Conventions Would Mark Time.

Leaders declared that as soon as the conference committees were appointed by the two conventions the conventions would mark time while the conferees attempted to develop a plan competent to reduce friction to a minimum and prevent dual nominations.

The plan, if materialized, then will be presented to the two conventions for ratification and there were men on the ground today who already had visualized—to their own satisfaction at least—a great spectacular reunion of the "Old Guard" and the Progressives.

In this connection it was suggested by some claiming political seership that the arrival here yesterday of George B. Cortelyou—direct from Oyster Bay—was in fact the appearance of a silent advance agent whose coming may presage that of Col. Roosevelt, who might, it was said, come out of the East as he did in 1912, but this time to remake what was unmade on that occasion. Others, however, jeered openly at this suggestion and spurned the idea of Roosevelt in the role of pacificator.

To the world outside of Chicago the keen interest in balloting with preliminaries out of the way, cannot be satisfied for at least 48 hours with the possible exception of the Progressive convention. Events in the next 24 hours may show striking developments and indicate strongly the probable selection of a certain man for the Republican nomination, but as yet there is no certainty what the delegates will do once they get under way on roll call. Leaders are prepared for any eventuality and will be surprised at nothing.

New York Republicans supporting Justice Hughes said today they were informed from reliable sources two days ago that under no circumstances would Col. Roosevelt support Justice Hughes if he were nominated by the Republican convention.

Gov. Whitman Confident.

A report that Col. Roosevelt had said in Oyster Bay that he would favor a third party ticket if Hughes were the Republican nominee brought forth the statement from the Hughes men.

Gov. Whitman, leader of the Hughes faction of the New York delegates, smiled when he was told of the reported Roosevelt statement.

"I don't consider that bad news, do you?" he said. "I have thought all along that Justice Hughes would be nominated and elected, and I still think so. We have, I understand, within 58 vates of a majority guaranteed on the second ballot."

The Governor said he knew nothing of reports that the Justice would decline to run if a third ticket was put into the field.

Gains for Hughes Claimed.

Frank H. Hitchcock estimated that Justice Hughes would receive about 300 votes on the first ballot.

Florida decided yesterday to cast her solid vote for Hughes and to stay with him to the end. A poll of Kansas is reported to give nine votes for Hughes. From New Jersey Hughes managers expect to get at least 17 votes, the Rhode Island delegation is reported solid for Hughes, and substantial gains are claimed in Connecticut and other states. If a ballot could be taken today the consensus of the several political managers indicated that it would be about as follows: Hughes, 261; Weeks, 160; Roosevelt, 98; Cummins, 81; Fairbanks, 80; Burton, 80; Sherman, 58; Knox, 51; Root, 42; La Follette, 28; scattering, 54. Total 983. This excludes two delegates from the District of Columbia who were unseated by the National Committee, but will take their case before the Credentials Committee.

It developed today that there is a growing disposition to evolve a conservative progressivism as opposed to the extremely radical elements which would do everything for conscience's sake and nothing for expediency. The former element, composed largely of active business men, are inclined to continue the efforts to bring about an affiliation with the Republicans. The other element demands the acceptance of Col. Roosevelt as the only basis of compromise. They go so far as to say that even if Mr. Roosevelt should indorse the candidacy of such a man as Justice Hughes, the Progressives would proceed with their convention and nominate; not Col. Roosevelt, but some other leader—for instance, Gov. Hiram Johnson or Gifford Pinchot.

Moosers Rejected Burton.

In all the negotiations for harmony between the two sides the Republican managers consider that their position has been strengthened by the fact that all along they have been ready to present for discussion a list of candidates, any one of whom could command the support of the others. To offset this condition the name of Senator La Follette was brought forward by the Progressives. The Republicans immediately rejected it and charged the Progressives with insincerity in presenting the name of a candidate they were unwilling to accept themselves.

At that point the Progressive managers turned the tables and demanded that the Republicans bring forward a name. The Republicans responded by

T. R. IS EXPECTED TO RUN IF HUGHES GETS NOMINATION

Makes No Statement, but Intimates Say He Is Opposed to the Justice.

COLONEL SEES GEN. WOOD

Would Like to See His Protege Nominated, but Realizes He Has No Chance.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 7.—While Col. Roosevelt refrains from making any public statement officially disclosing his real attitude toward the political situation in Chicago, it is well known to his intimates here that he is opposed to the nomination of Justice Hughes, and it is their confident belief that if Justice Hughes is nominated Col. Roosevelt will himself become a candidate.

Although Col. Roosevelt and one of his secretaries, Walter Hayes, remained a good part of last night at this end of the private telephone wire between Sagamore Hill and the Progressive party headquarters in Chicago, the Colonel said this morning there was no statement he cared to make, except to repeat that he was "neither for nor against any candidate."

Colonel on "Flag Speech."

Roosevelt, it is well understood, is not at all satisfied with Justice Hughes' so-called "flag speech," which he is said to regard as merely a Fourth of July address having no value as disclosing the Justice's attitude toward the real issues of the day. In the words of his followers here, the Colonel regards the speech as further "evidence" of pussyfooting.

Col. Roosevelt, it is known, feels better today in regard to his own chances for being nominated than at any other time. His followers look for a broadside from him within a day or two which, they say, will be calculated to eliminate Justice Hughes and any other candidate whom the Colonel regards as representing the "pussyfoot idea."

The Colonel feels, they say, that if the Republicans have made up their minds to nominate a man representing this idea the one thing left for him to do is to run himself in order to bring before the people the issue of "straightforward Americanism."

Whatever his lieutenants in Chicago may do or say to help his candidacy, Col. Roosevelt has made it quite plain that he will not commit himself to any candidate or to any course of action until the Republicans have made their choice.

He is holding himself free to jump into the situation at the crucial moment unhampered by anything Perkins, Cortelyou or Loeb may say. Regarding all developments in Chicago he is noncommittal, refusing to discuss the merits of any possible candidate.

When he was told of the Chicago dispatches stating that Perkins and other Bull Moose leaders had laid down the ultimatum of "Roosevelt or nobody," with the inference that if the Republicans nominated Hughes, the Colonel would head a third ticket, he had this to say: "I haven't sent any such message."

The private wire from here to Chicago has been kept open and the Colonel has been in hourly communication with his lieutenants in the field. He is letting them swing the club while he maintains his position of not supporting or opposing anybody. He indicated clearly, however, that as the situation stands this morning he is in no mood to withdraw from the race in favor of anybody who has been mentioned up to date. His advisers have made it known, however, that if any "favorite son" or if Elihu Root is the choice of the Republicans, he intends to "split things wide open." They say he is in the fight to the finish and will not withdraw for any of the known candidates.

The reports coming from Chicago over the private wire are said to be highly encouraging to the Colonel. His workers have informed him that his position is stronger today than it was four or five days ago.

No political significance is to be attached to the conference yesterday between Col. Roosevelt and Major-General Wood, in the offices of the Metropolitan Magazine in New York. The Colonel, as is well known, admires Gen. Wood immensely and would like to see him President, but he realizes that his friend has not the ghost of a show. Still, the Colonel is not averse to giving Gen. Wood a little harmless boost.

A letter was given out late last night at Sagamore Hill from Dr. Francis E. Shine of Bisbee, Ariz., to the Roosevelt Nonpartisan League. Dr. Shine is an eminent physician in Arizona. He is a Virginian, a life-long Democrat and was a delegate to the Democratic national convention in Baltimore in 1912 that nominated Woodrow Wilson. Dr. Shine is a great-great-grandson of Thomas Jefferson. Mr. Roosevelt's advisers regard this letter as of equal importance to the one written by Thomas A. Edison to the league

"WE WANT TEDDY," GREETS "FOREMOST CITIZEN OF WORLD"

Move Started in Moose Convention to Present Gov. Johnson of California as Permanent Chairman in Place of Walter Brown of Ohio—"America" Sung by Auditorium Crowd.

AUDITORIUM, CHICAGO, June 7.—The mention of Theodore Roosevelt by Temporary Chairman Robins as "the foremost citizen of the world," at the opening of the Progressive convention here this afternoon, caused an outburst of cheering that lasted 34 minutes. Every effort to bring the meeting to order was met by renewed cheering and loud shouts of "We want Teddy!"

The convention was called to order at 12:27 by Victor Murdock, chairman of the Progressive National Committee. He received a great demonstration. He introduced Raymond Robins as temporary chairman. He was cheered for less than 20 seconds before he began his keynote speech. His first words were met with cries of "louder," and then the convention settled down to listen to his speech.

In his third sentence he mentioned "the foremost citizen of the world" and the demonstration broke loose. Delegates rose to their feet, waving flags and bandanas, and the crowd in the gallery joined in the demonstration. The cheering for the Colonel began at 1:03.

The important parts of Chairman Robins' speech will be found on pages 6 and 7.

Cheered 34 Minutes.

Chairman Robins was advised not to repeat Col. Roosevelt's name when he was able to resume. He promised not to do so.

The demonstration had proceeded 34 minutes. Convention officers agreed that the delegates could not have been restrained long from voicing their demand for Roosevelt.

Movement for Johnson.

An insurgent movement against the selection of Walter Brown of Ohio for permanent chairman was started quietly on the convention floor. It was planned by radical delegates to present Gov. Hiram Johnson of California.

Gov. Johnson heard of the movement by insurgents to name him for permanent chairman and sent word he would not be a party to discord.

Delegates Arrive Slowly.

Delegates and guests of the convention arrived slowly. The band began to play at 11 o'clock but there were few to be entertained and the musicians gave up without completing their first number.

Reports that there might be an insistent demand for an immediate nomination of Col. Roosevelt as notice to the

SUFFRAGE IS 6000 VOTES BEHIND IN IOWA ELECTION

DES MOINES, Io., June 7.—Defeat of the State constitutional amendment providing for woman suffrage is indicated by virtually complete returns from all but five counties giving the antis a majority of nearly 6000.

The figures are 144,966 against and 139,253 in favor of the amendment. It is thought that the returns from the five missing counties will cut down the anti-suffrage majority.

In the race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, W. L. Harding of Sioux City is expected on the final count to poll between 40 and 50 per cent of the total vote, more than enough to obtain his nomination without referring the fight to the Republican convention.

CHAIRMAN HARDING'S SPEECH IS RECEIVED WITH MILD APPLAUSE

Hilles Calls Delegates to Order at 11:25 and Audience Rises and Sings 2 Verses of America.

HUGHES MEN SAY JUSTICE WILL WIN ON THIRD BALLOT

Convention Adjourns at 1:25 to Tomorrow, After Perfecting Organization—Riotous Demonstrations That Have Characterized Other Gatherings Are Absent.

By GEORGE W. EADS.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLISEUM, CHICAGO, June 7.—The Republican National convention opened today with the singing of America by the audience, heard the keynote speech of Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, the temporary chairman, in which he emphasized the need for party harmony, and proceeded to perfect a temporary organization.

"This is not the time for recrimination," Harding said. "It is a day of reconsecration."

The convention was called to order at 11:25 a. m. by Chairman Charles D. Hilles of the Republican National Committee, and two minutes later the audience rose and sang two verses of America. Hilles then called on the Rev. John T. Stone, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian Church of Chicago, to offer prayer. After the prayer Hilles presented the name of Senator Harding as temporary chairman, and there being no other nomination, he was declared elected. He began speaking at 11:50 and concluded at 1:10. Brief applause greeted his peroration.

No Outburst for Harding.

The speech of Senator Harding was received rather coldly. There was no passage in the address which brought forth a real outburst of enthusiasm, as such things go in great conventions. His thrusts at the Wilson administration met with little response of approval from the audience and his discussion of preparedness produced hardly a ripple of applause. Many delegates listened with great interest to Harding hoping to find in him a dark horse candidate for President who would solve the big problem before them—the selection of a candidate who could go into the fight with a reasonable prospect of defeating Wilson.

His declaration that he did not believe the United States should have the greatest navy in the world, but a navy that feared no other in the world, was the first thing he said that evoked anything like general applause. His references to the necessity for a protective tariff fell upon apparently deaf ears, for there were only a few handclaps. The Republican leaders are realizing now that they cannot get anywhere this year on a tariff issue and that they will have to try to rally the boys around the flag.

After Harding concluded, Chairman Hilles submitted the recommendation for temporary officers and they were approved on motion of A. O. Eberhardt of Minnesota.

Senator Lippitt moved that the rules of the 1908 convention govern the convention pending the adoption of rules.

On motion of Senator Smoot the roll was called for nominations of the Committee on Credentials. Motions for the appointment of other committees were made and the roll call began.

At 1:25 the convention adjourned to 11 o'clock tomorrow.

There was a noticeable absence of the almost riotous demonstrations which have marked previous conventions. Every seat on the floor and in the galleries was filled when Chairman Hilles brought the convention to order.

Hitchcock said the Hughes men would control the Committee on Resolutions. He asserted, after receiving reports from caucuses, that the Hughes forces would see that the platform contains a vigorous declaration for national defense, coupled with a strict and impartial neutrality, so far as conflicts with other nations are concerned.

The rain which began yesterday noon continued overnight and this morning.

The full text of Temporary Chairman Harding's speech will be found on page 5.

The flags, streamers and bunting with which the Coliseum was decked hung wet and dejected.

Policemen were at their stations early, as were physicians and nurses assigned for emergency purposes. The police were particularly alert for enterprising, but ticketless, persons who might attempt to gain entrance through windows and coal chutes.

The rain was still falling on the ticket holders waiting at the various entrances when the doors were opened at 9:30.

Chairman Hilles, members of the National Committee and policemen were already inside when the crowds began to pour in. A band in a hanging balcony at the north end of the building began to play. Chief of Police Healy and his assistants made a final inspection of the hall and reported "all well" to Sergeant-at-Arms Stone.

Virtually all delegates were seated at 11 o'clock. There were no demonstrations. Veterans remarked it was the quietest convention opening they ever had seen. Lodge, Crane, Penrose and every other leader passed to his seat without recognition.

At 11:05 there were large vacant spaces in the galleries. Frank H. Hitchcock entered unnoticed. Chauncey M. Depew arrived at the same time and was received with handclapping from the New York delegation.

The band played the Star Spangled Banner at 11:23, and then came the first cheer of the day as everyone arose from his seat. The delegates then relapsed into quietude.

The West Virginia delegation, which remained at home yesterday because of the primaries, came to Chicago last night and were among the first delegations in their seats. They took breakfast on the train and came direct to the convention hall. They planned to caucus in their seats.

As the band played the police tried to make the delegates crowding the aisles take their seats.

The National Committee met this morning.

The question of naming a harmony conference committee to meet with a similar body representing the Progressive National Convention was not discussed, according to Chairman Hilles.

Applause Greets Depew.

Chauncey Depew was the first of the well-known men to be received by the delegation spectators as he made his way to the first row of the New York seats. A round of hand-clapping greeted him. Senator Penrose got a hand from his delegation.

The band played the Star Spangled Banner at 11:25. Everybody rose.

The House quieted down. Sergeant at Arms Stone ordered the delegates seated. At 11:28 Chairman Hilles brought in the gavel. This caused applause.

The delegates remained seated while a photo was taken. The hall was still as Chairman Hilles spoke, saying a quorum was present and the convention would be in order. Hilles said:

"The hour of 11 o'clock has arrived and a quorum being present, the convention will be in order. Paraphrasing a remark made by the late President McKinley this is a year—whatever may have been true of past years—when politics is patriotism and patriotism is politics. Therefore the audience will please rise and sing two verses of 'America.' "

A male quartet led the singing. The voices of the delegates swelled through the big hall in a mighty chorus, almost drowning the band. There was a moment of confusion and the delegates took their seats and then the Rev. John Timothy Stone of Chicago offered prayer.

There was deep silence all over the big hall as he read the prayer. At his request the convention remained seated.

At the end of the prayer the delegates were asked to rise and be photographed. The next proceeding was the reading of the call for the convention. Secretary Reynolds was applauded as he stepped forward The hum of conversation swept over the hall again as Reynolds read. The call has been published; its reading was a formality, and no one was much interested in hearing it. It took six minutes to read the call. Applause greeted its end.

Harding Gets First Loud Applause.

Chairman Hilles then presented Senator Harding, the temporary chairman, to make the keynote speech.

The first loud applause and cheers of the convention greeted Senator Harding. Murray Crane of Massachusetts, Senator Boran of Idaho and W. B. McKinley of Illinois were selected to escort Harding to the platform. Applause greeted the mention of all the names as Chairman Hilles announced them. Prolonged applause and cheers greeted Senator Harding as he mounted the platform.

Chairman Hilles presented him in a few words. Harding bowed and smiled and plunged into his eight-column speech, reading from manuscript.

Chairman Hilles left the chair temporarily and many of the leaders took the opportunity to confer while Senator Harding was speaking. As Senator Harding spoke he held his prepared address in his hand, but made no reference to it. He followed the text with hardly the skip of a wordfi his voice carriyng to all parts of the Coliseum.

Hughes Boomers Declare He Will Be Nominated by the Third Ballot

Plans to stampede the convention to Justice Hughes on the first ballot were completed by the Hughes managers today, just before the convention opened. Frank H. Hitchcock, in charge of the Hughes campaign, is supremely confident that more than 300 votes will be cast for the Supreme Court Justice on the first ballot, which will be taken Friday.

It was reported today at Convention Hall that Henry Ford had notified Michigan delegates, instructed to vote for him, that after the first vote closed but before the result was announced, they should change to Hughes.

The plans for stampeding the convention provide that several favorite son delegations, after casting the vote of their states for the candidates for which they are instructed, shall change to Hughes before the ballot is completed. Hitchcock was in conference last night and today with some of the delegations which have determined upon this plan, which they believe will result in a general rush to the Hughes' standard.

The old guard leaders are suppremely confident that they have a majority of delegates to the convention tied up in agreements never to vote for Hughes or Roosevelt.

Hughes Men Claim 470 Votes.

The Hughes' managers are claiming 470 votes for their candidate on the second ballot and say that he will be nominated before the end of the third ballot. The stand-pat leaders, however, assert they have nearly 600 delegates who can be relied upon to vote against Hughes.

During the last two days there has been a continuous stream of delegates into the Hughes' headquarters to pledge their support to the Justice, either on the first or second ballots. The delegates are asserting an independence which is alarming to the old guard leaders.

Both the Hughes managers and the old guard leaders, are making claims which are not borne out by the facts. For instance, the standpat leaders in Missouri have given their word that at least 26 of the 36 Missouri delegates would never vote for Hughes, while the Hughes managers are claming 22 of the Missouri votes.

The Missouri delegation has not formally caucused to determine how its vote will be cast, but there will be at least 10 Hughes votes on the first ballot and more on the second ballot. At least half the delegates will vote for Hughes before the end of the third ballot, unless there should be developments before the first ballot.

Missouri Caucus Tonight.

The Missouri delegation will caucus tonight at the Morrison Hotel. C. C. Madison of Kansas City, who has been classified as a Hughes man by the Hughes leaders, said this morning that he was not for Hughes. Former Gov. Hadley also has been classified as a Hughes supporter. Thomas R. Marks of Kansas City said that Hadley was not for Hughes. Madison probably will vote for Cummings, but Marks said he had not determined how he would vote, but it is understood that he was not for Hughes.

There are so many changes in the lineup of the delegates from day to day that the campaign managers of the different candidates are utterly at sea. The delegates from several states have made a practice of visiting the headquarters of the different candidates and leaving the impression that they were for each candidate.

The Weeks campaign managers said yesterday that Roosevelt had informed a Massachusetts man, who talked with him by long distance telephone that he would not support Hughes under any circumstances. Yet you will hear at the Hughes headquarters that certain politicians, direct from Oyster Bay, were told by Roosevelt that he would not run on the Progressive ticket if Hughes should be nominated.

Fear Hughes Boom Is T. R. Mask.

There is fear among the old guard leaders that the Hughes movement is merely a mask for Roosevelt. The Bull Moose leaders assert that Frank H. Hitchcock, the former Postmaster-General, obtained the Hughes delegates with the understanding that they would at the proper time be delivered to Roosevelt. Reports are being circulated today that the Hughes campaign was financed by George W. Perkins, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Progressive National Committee.

One thing that is puzzling the old guard leaders is that Roosevelt is apparently kept informed of every move of the Hughes managers. It is said that information sent to New York leaders, in the interest of Hughes, found its way immediately into Roosevelt's hands. This would indicate that there was a working arrangement between the Hughes leaders and Roosevelt.

Secretary Denies Ford's Delegates Were Told to Vote for Hughes.

DETROIT, Mich., June 7.—Henry Ford's secretary today denied a report that Ford had notified the Michigan Republican delegation it should vote for Hughes after voting for Ford on the first ballot.

Arkansas Republicans and Progressives in Caucus.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Arkansas Republicans and Progressives undertook a program for harmony in their State today when the two delegations to the national conventions held a joint caucus. It was agreed that each side should appoint a conferee in addition to the national committeemen of the State and that these four men should meet at 10 o'clock tonight. The Arkansas Republican delegation agreed to vote as a unit in the national convention of their party.

"We Want Teddy," Greets "Foremost Citizen of World"

Republicans that they could not be ignored were discouraged and almost squelched by a statement issued by George W. Perkins, the chief spokesman for the party, who declared that the Progressives were meeting in a conciliatory spirit and would not act precipitately, while the possibility of agreement with the Republicans remained. His statement said:

"At the moment of the opening of the conventions the Progressives are very well satisfied with the atmosphere surrounding them and believe that a proper spirit has been created from which the result so desirable in the best interests of the country may be finally obtained."

Supplementing his formal statement Mr. Perkins declared:

"Everyone should keep it constantly in mind that the Progressive convention is not being held here at the same time as the Republican convention in the spirit of a threat."

The Progressives feel that the first peace move ought to come from the Republicans, but Mr. Perkins thought it possible that the Progressives would take the initiative in efforts for peace.

Like huge snowflakes flecked over the huge auditorium were pinned copies of "Teddy" songs to be sung by delegates, including "When Teddy Comes Marching Home" to the tune of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." Otherwise the hall was a mass of flags and bunting characteristic of every other convention headquarters. A box was reserved for the Roosevelt family and friends and a special police guard, on the second tier of the mezzanine.

Because of limited seating capacity, delegates from six states were on the stage back of the press benches.

The Michigan delegation, bearing a huge banner, inscribed "Roosevelt carried Michigan by 60,000 in 1912 and can carry it by 100,000 in 1916," and American flags was the first to march into the building.

Many of the delegates, somewhat soggy, prepared to sit through the session in damp garments. Banners and flags were also dripping.

Red bandana handkerchiefs were worn by some of the Texas delegates and many others carried small American flags of the boutonniere and hand variety. Spectators were even slower to arrive than the delegates. While the delegates were filing in the band played a medley of airs, including the Progressive birth song, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Gov. Johnson of California, Progressive candidate for Vice President in 1912, stepped quietly into a seat in the California section shortly before the convention convened. Mrs. Johnson and a party of friends occupied a box above the California group.

The delegations exchanged state yells in a hubbub of confusion. The excitement was confined almost entirely to the main floor. Many alternates assigned to balcony seats were absent as the opening approached.

The delegates stood and cheered as the band played "My Old Kentucky Home" in a Southern medley.

Confusion in Seating.

There was confusion in the seating of delegates, many alternates taking seats assigned to principals. The aisles soon became jammed.

Among Progressive notables on the stage were James R. Garfield, William Flynn and Oscar Straus. The latter was cheered when recognized.

George W. Perkins was given an ovation when he came upon the stage shortly after noon.

Following the arrival of leaders, the band played "The Star Spangled Banner" while the entire throng stood with bared heads.

Bishop William Fraser McDowell of Chicago offered the invocation, shouting "Everybody up." The prayer expressed hope that the efforts of the convention would redound to the benefit of the republic; that the nation "may serve humanity to lead the world to liberty, truth and righteousness."

Crowd Sings America.

The Bishop asked for help for the "war-stricken world" and for divine help to "bind up the nations that are broken and wounded."

Fololwing the prayer, "America" was sung, the entire convention standing and joining in the national anthem.

"I know that the members of this convention will be on their good behavior, but as a precaution I request the police and sergeant-at-arms to step forward and stand at attention," Chairman Murdock announced.

Secretary O. K. Davis read the convention call of the National Committee and the temporary officers were announced. Thereupon Chairman Murdock presented Raymond Robins of Chicago as temporary chairman of the convention.

"Four years ago in the city of Chicago," Mr. Murdock said, "there was born of a mighty aspiration the Progressive party. It was untrammeled by tradition and uncorrupted by power. It had but one design, desire and determination—to put the public welfare in first place. It turned its back upon the past, its prejudices, its extreme partisanship, its mistaken preconceptions and it turned to the future achievement of a practical work-a-day brotherhood.

"Across those sunny skies of promise plunged the shadow of the blood-red cloud in Europe. Against this economic, social and political outrushing tide, the tried and true Progressives have stood as the Rock of Ages in the storm.

"And here in Illinois, the Illinois of Abraham Lincoln—Lincoln, the gift of God to the world, Lincoln with the sorrow of generations shadowed in his eyes—the Progressive party has had alike its sunshine and its storm, the great, good gentle hearted, giant minded Raymond Robins, whom I introduce as temporary chairman of this convention."

Vote on Robins Unanimous.

When Robins' selection had been announced, Clarence W. Halbert of Minnesota moved that selection be approved and the vote was unanimous. Mr. Robins was applauded as he was escorted to the paltform by Gov. Johnson of California, Oscar Straus of New York, Col. John M. Parker of Louisiana and Mr. Halbert.

In beginning his introduction of Chairman Robins, Mr. Murdock referred to the delegates as "Christian soldiers," and before Murdock could proceed the convention sang, while the band played "Onward Christian Soldiers," the song which was adopted by the Progressive party at its birth four years ago.

Applause frequently halted Mr. Murdock's introduction, the throng rising and shouting when he said the Progressives had "kept the faith" during the last four years.

"You're right, we have," scores of delegates shouted.

Mr. Robins was given an ovation as he stepped forth and took charge of the convention, beginning his address.

Borah's Talk With Roosevelt Leads to Prediction of Peace suggesting former Senator Burton of Ohio, arguing that he could unite the support of all the "favorite sons," draw strength from the pacificist element and had incurred no enmities among the foreign born voters. The objections of the Progressive managers to Burton were voiced by Gov. Johnson of California.

Disagreement among the Ohio delegates in caucus last night resulted in the withdrawal of a resolution proposing that the delegation be bound to vote for former Senator Burton until released by him.

Former Representative Paul Howland of Cleveland, personal representative of Senator Burton on the delegation, offered the resolution. Delegates reported aligned with the so-called Fleischmann faction of Cincinnati entered objections and Howland withdrew his resolution, after somewhat heated debate.

The incident was said to be the first open division affecting any of the "favorite sons" candidates.

The Michigan delegation in caucus decided to vote for Henry Ford, in accordance with the expression of the State primary. Consideration had been given to the question of asking Ford to release them from the primary obligation.

Senator Borah said he had asked the Idaho delegation not to place him in nomination.

Penrose Has Open Mind.

Senator Penrose, in an impromptu speech to the Pennsylvania delegates who elected him chairman, said there was no evidence as to who will be nominated by the convention. So far as he was concerned, he said, he would cast his vote for anyone a majority can be brought to agree upon.

John Wannamaker made a plea for harmony among Republicans throughout the nation, saying:

"I hold that the split in the Republican party was more a matter of leaders than it was of the Republicans and Progressives. It is a dreadful thing to go over the country and to find that the party of Lincoln, Grant and McKinely is still to be so cut to pieces that we shall have to continue with the present administration.

"There is no factionalism here in the usual sense of the word; no obnoxious effort is being made to coerce the candidacy of any one," said Penrose.

"There is no evidence today as to who shall be nominated. Discussion is the predominating element of this occasion. There have been previous occasions when the candidacy of some one man was a foregone conclusion. This is not such an occasion.

"The nomination for President will not be made in the course of parliamentary procedure until late on Saturday of this week, and the delegates assembled should have full opportunity for interchange of thought and discussion.

"I have frequently said I came here with an open mind, free from partiality, or prejudice and so far as my vote is concerned, it will be cast for anyone whom the majority of the convention can be brought to agree upon.

"This is not a convention of leaders in the ordinary sense of the term. It is not a convention where delegates are to be bargained for or trafficked with.

"The country is sick and tired of the incompetence of the Wilson administration and we are going to nominate a candidate who will sweep every State north of Mason and Dixon's line and restore Republican policies to the country, thereby insuring safety, sanity and prosperity for the next 20 years."

Concessions by the Hughes-Whitman faction of the New York State delegation resulted in a harmonious meeting and partial selection of officers. Gov. Whitman won his fight to lead the delegation in the convention, and the Root-Barnes faction was victorious in having the selection of a national committeeman postponed until after the nominations.

Colonel's Chief Backer at Chicago as Caught by a Post-Dispatch Artist

EYES OF WORLD ON THESE CONVENTIONS, SAYS PERKINS

He Believes They Will Rise to Their Matchless Opportunity and Name the Man of the Hour.

By George W. Perkins.

Written Especially for the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The conventions meet today. Of course, the all-absorbing question is who will be nominated.

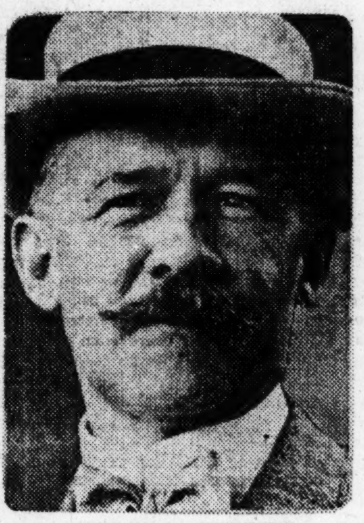
The Republican convention is confronted with an entirely new question, which it must seriously consider in choosing its nominee. This question relates to our international relations. In no recent period in our history has any question of such transcendental importance been injected into the discussion of the availability of this, that or the other candidate. In the great conventions where McKinley, Blaine, Sherman and Reed were the contestants, the issues were purely domestic; here they are international.

The two conventions must consider who can be elected, and above all who can most effectively discharge the duties of the presidency during the next presidential term.

It might be easier for this convention to nominate Mr. X than to nominate either Mr. Y or Mr. Z. It might be easier to elect Mr. Y than Mr. X. It might be more difficult to nominate Mr. Z than Mr. X. But if it is perfectely clear than Mr. Z would be the best man of the three to represent this country as its chief executive in the White House during the trying four years confronting us, then it is clearly the duty of this convention to nominate Mr. Z.

I believe this an extremely important feature of the impending deliberations of the conventions. We owe it not only to ourselves to put up the best man the country offers, but we owe it to the rest of the world.

The next President of the United States, if he is properly equipped, if he immediately commands the confidence and the respect of the Powers of Europe, can wield a limitless influence for good in bringing about an end to this dreadful war—good both for the European countries and for the American people. Experience has caused the European belligerents to have neither respect nor confidence in our present chief executive.



GEORGE W. PERKINS.

As all the large European nations are at war, as we are the one great Power of the world not involved, how important it is for us to place in the White House a man who can perform such a great service for mankind. What an unsurpassed opportunity it offers us to render the greatest possible help to those warring nations, to arrange peace between them and stop the frightful slaughter of human life that is going on?

I believe the eyes, not only of our country, but of all the world, are on these conventions as they go into session. They are almost, at the moment, the hope of the world. I believe they will rise to their matchless opportunity and name the man of the hour.

LODGE PLANKS IN THE PLATFORM MAY BRING ON A ROW

Reported That He Proposes to Incorporate a Denunciation of Submarine Warfare.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 7.—A serious row is threatened over the alleged pro-British views of Senator Lodge, who is slated for the chairmanship of the Committee on Resolutions. Lodge brought to Chicago a few planks ready to be proposed for the platform, and showed them to several friends, one or two of whom did not like them. Soon it was reported about the hotel lobbies that Lodge would write a pro-British platform, showing plainly his vigorous feeling against the Germans for sinking ships in violation of international law, and killing Americans who were on board.

Pro-German Republicans of the West and Middle West heard of Lodge's attitude and started an uproar against him. Delegates from Missouri, Illinois, and other Western states made it known that they would oppose, on the floor of the convention, a plank that reflected on Germany or any other country.

Nothing as to Hyphenates.

Senator Borah and Senator Sutherland, who are very much in favor of a strong declaration of Americanism, have conferred with Lodge, and reached an understanding that the platform will not affront citizens who came to this country from any foreign nation. The plank on Americanism will be strictly neutral. It will make no reference to hyphenates.

The three leading planks of the platform are expected to be Americanism, preparedness and protection. An out line of these planks will be agreed to before the Committee on Resolutions is formally organized. Mexico will be coupled with a general declaration on the right of American citizens abroad.

Louis Marshall of New York has appealed to the Republicans to make a declaration "for equal treatment for all American citizens" in foreign countries. This would cover the controversy between the United States and Russia over Jewish citizens of this country.

It is becoming evident that the work of the Republican Committee on Resolutions as a whole will be one of elimination rather than of construction. Almost every man on the committee is loaded with planks of his own making, and many of them have taken care of extra declarations for outside friends who are called upon to outline the policy of the party for the next four years.

If there is one general purpose better defined than any other on the part of the leading members of the committee it is to give the party declarations such an advanced tone as will meet the demands of Col. Roosevelt and his followers and to this end they have made close study of the Colonel's recent utterances along the lines of preparedness.

To Meet Colonel's Wishes.

"We shall meet the Colonel's wishes in this respect and will endeavor to make the pronouncement so strong that he cannot afford to oppose any man that may be placed in nomination," said Senator Smoot, who although he is not a member of the Resolutions Committee, is in close touch with what is being done towards framing the platform.

"We shall declare for a navy that will be a real protection both in size and efficiency and up to the latest requirement, and for such other military measures as shall meet the demands of all emergencies."

Here and there a word of opposition to extend preparedness is encountered, but the opposition is in such complete minority as to render their protest almost negligible.

The preparedness plank of the platform will probably favor universal military training in schools without making it compulsory. It will also declare for training camps such as the one at Plattsburgh. No reference will be made to the national guard or the continental army.

The Republicans will declare for a larger army than that provided by the bill recently passed by Congress. The understanding is that the regular army should be at least 250,000 in time of peace. The declaration on the navy will be for the second place in the world. No nation except Great Britain shall lead the United States in naval equipment if the Republican plan carries.

The Republican platform will praise the Republicans of the Senate and House for trying to increase the army to 250,000 and the Republicans of the House for their effort to increase the capital ships of the navy by adding two more dreadnoughts.

To Denounce Democrats.

The Democrats will be denounced for attempting to put through the Clarke amendment to free the Philippines after four years. The Republicans of the House will be lauded for defeating it.

Republican leaders are demanding a plank for a better and an enlarged civil service. This plan will be based on the charge the Democrats have created 20,000 non-civil service offices to give adherents positions.

Houchin Meeting Tomorrow.

The St. Louis Houchin-for-Governor Club will meet at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the Coliseum committee room, entrance at 2614 Washington avenue. Frank M. Robinson will be temporary chairman.

BRYAN SAYS PROGRESSIVES EXPECT REPUBLICANS TO DO ALL THE FORGIVING

Finds Them Like the Scotchman Who Said: "Let Us Forget Our Differences, and as I Cannot Change, You Must."

By William Jennings Bryan.

Written Especially for the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The pot is boiling, but it is not boiling over. The situation seems unchanged. Indications still point to Hughes. There is no break so far in the ranks of the standpat Republicans, who are in control, and no progress is being made by the Roosevelt followers.

The Progressive leaders are doing their best to work up enthusiasm, but it does not penetrate the body of delegates who are here to pick out the candidates.

A business men's meeting was held at the Garrick Theater at noon yesterday, at which a number of Roosevelt speeches were made to an enthusiastic audience. Alexander H. Revell presided and pictured Mr. Roosevelt as the only candidate who gives expression to that "true American spirit." Kellogg Fairbanks praised Col. Roosevelt as the one man who could put the country in a state of preparedness for war.

Dismal Picture by Gardner.

Congressman Gardner added his indorsement of Roosevelt as the only candidate who knew what to do and how to do it. Mr. Gardner painted a dismal picture of the future unless the party nominates and the country elects the ex-President. The main features of the picture were: "Twenty million soldiers in Europe demobilized," industries prostrated and "countries bankrupted." To his imagination this country offers the only prize in sight for these fatigued troops representing Governments without credit, and nations without industries upon which to build credit.

Mr. Gardner is expecting this country to be invaded unless his candidate is put in charge of the Government, and the Government is immediately put in a state of preparedness.

Other speakers represented Mr. Roosevelt as the only candidate who could insure the election of a Republican Senate to support a Republican President. All the speakers dwelt upon the importance of charity, forgiveness and toleration, but as none of them intimated the willingness to make any concessions themselves in the matter of the candidate, they seem to take it for granted that the regular Republicans will do the forgiving and the forgetting, and accept Mr. Roosevelt in a spirit of charity and toleration. They remind one of the Scotchman's proposed reconciliation to a fellow member of his church:

"We should get together and forget our differences, and as I cannot change, you must."

One interesting feature of the meeting was that all seemed to understand that they have no easy task before them. They spoke of President Wilson's strength and of the necessity of nominating the strongest man. The standpat faction is not less complimentary to the President. It admits his strength and makes the same appeal to the delegates to nominate the strongest man that can be found.

They do not concede Mr. Roosevelt's strength. On the contrary the reason which they put forth for opposing him is that he could not be elected. They profess to regard him as the weakest candidate among the aspirants. The air is full of rumors as to what Col. Roosevelt intends to do. Men who speak as if they knew his plans tell of his willingness to accept a nomination from the Progressives regardless of what the Republican convention does, but these rumors are as authoritatively denied. Another report in circulation today was that the Progressives would nominate him and that he would withdraw later, after securing from the Republican nominee such pledge as would satisfy his views.

The speech made by Justice Hughes in Washington caused a little flurry, but since the Justice has declared that it had no special significance—an opinion in which the Progressive leaders heartily concurred—the excitement has subsided.

"Mannishness" in Woman's Party.

A new party has entered the arena here. A woman's party has been organized, but it is already showing symptoms of mannishness. Its announced purpose is to compel the other parties to take a position in favor of equal suffrage. But it must not be supposed that it represents a unanimous sentiment among the women advocates of suffrage. The women are proving their claim to political consideration by manifesting a spirit of independence quite equal to that exhibited by men. Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, ex-president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, dissents entirely from those who desire to organize the women into an independent party. She says:

"It is foolish for the women's party to come here and say to the men that we women have great political power, that we hold the balance of power, and so on. It is not true. What we must do is to co-operate with men, not fight them."

The various suffrage organizations agree in purpose, namely, in the desire to obtain equal suffrage throughout the United States, but they differ as to the best method of getting it.

Auto and Truck Crash.

The automobile of Kalvin Reifsnider of 5249 Lindell boulevard, occupied by his daughter, Mrs. Georgia Scott of the same address, collided with a truck of the Robinson Coal Co. today at noon, at King's highway and Berlin avenue. Emil Foesch, Reifsnider's chauffeur, and Mart Billyen, driver of the truck, were arrested and released on bond.

WOMEN WRITERS DISCUSS WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES IN CHICAGO

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART SAYS KITCHENER'S DEATH HAS HELPED ROOSEVELT

Novelist Declares Colonel Is the Man in Public Life Nearest to Late War Minister's Type of Patriot.

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART.
Noted Novelist and Short Story Writer.
(Copyright, 1916, by Mary Roberts Rinehart.)

CHICAGO, June 7.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT is more interested in the crisis in American affairs than he is in this convention," said George W. Perkins to me. "And today probably the thing that is most in his mind is the death of Kitchener."

The headquarters of the Progressive party are at the Auditorium, but the real headquarters for the Roosevelt party is on an upper floor of the Blackstone Hotel, facing the lake. Here Mr. Perkins has a large suite away from the small town delegates, from the cheering and yelling, the flag waving and general turmoil. It is an oasis of calmness and of placid waiting.

"The trouble with the press," Mr. Perkins went on, "is that they persist in talking politics and patronage. Why can't we lift this thing up, out of the ruck? It's a greater thing than politics or patronage. Here is a figure that looms in the light, a face in the sky, Theodore Roosevelt, and they cannot understand that this is a big issue, and not a lot of small ones.

Europe Wants Roosevelt to Be President.

"The papers say that all Europe is looking toward Chicago with the confident belief that they are going to get Roosevelt. They want Roosevelt. He is the one man who can help them, can show them a way out. He did it before. Look at the Russo-Japanese war. In an unprecedented way he brought them onto our soil to settle their war, and it was settled to the satisfaction of both sides. That was done here in America by Theodore Roosevelt.

"Europe remembers that. England knows it. He received and deserved the Nobel prize for doing it. And he received and deserved more—the confidence of Europe. He has that today.

"The world does not want war. It wants peace, and he is the one man who can give us peace. It is not a matter of political organization or political patronage. The question is that here is the man.

"A man said to me the other day: 'You talk as though Roosevelt is the only man in the United States.' I said: 'He is the biggest man in the United States, and that's a great deal. It's a great deal for any country. It is more than England has. England is crying for a big man.'

"Europe wants Roosevelt because in him they see hope. And we want him for the same reason.

"Here we have a big man, ready to our hand. And we are squabbling over little questions and forgetting the big one. If your house is on fire would you refuse a neighbor's help because you do not agree with everything he has said?

"Theodore Roosevelt is neither for anybody nor against anybody in this campaign. He is for America."

Sheepish Paraders With Flags and Badges.

A gray morning and nothing but men. Men everywhere. The station was full of them, armed with badges and flags, and lining up rather sheepishly in processions. Men in derbies and caps, in straw hats, in panamas, in neckties of every shade and suits of every cut. As they were given their flags they grinned and took them nervously, some, between a thumb and forefinger like the stem of a rose. Some carried them like umbrellas. Some tilted them back over their shoulders and tried to forget them. One, a clergyman, with the high nose of a Church of English Bishop, a pince nez, and a shock of white hair, clutched his flag, tightly rolled, and made a furtive attempt to stick it in his pocket.

It was early. The crowd was not yet wound up for the day. Patriots and Republicans, and both, everyone wanted a cup of coffee, more than a candidate. They would gladly have exchanged their flags for ham and eggs. They needed a barber and the other suit out of the suit case, and a polish, before they would begin to contemplate the great issues of the country.

Yet—an earnest crowd. Here to attend to the business of the country, to play the national game, which once in so often ceases to be baseball and becomes politics.

And the first thing that impresses one is that this is a man's game. There were few women in the early morning crowd, and they looked nervous and puzzled.

On the train last night there was only one topic. Gentlemen ordinarily modest sat on the edges of their berths in various stages of dishabille, and talked across to other gentlemen, similarly collarless and shoeless. Bits of conversation reached me as I passed through. "Radical? Nothing of the sort." "If the Republicans put up a yellow dog, I'll vote for him."

"The whole thing turns on this"——

Making up the berth in my compartment, the porter talked politics.

"I'm a Republican, yes, man," he said. "I guess I'm for Mr. Root. He's had the most experience. When a man's lived that long he's bound to know something."

"How about Hughes?" I asked.

He tucked the brown blanket in with a single efficient gesture.

"He's too cold," he observed. "Want an extra blanket, miss?"

I was flattered by the "miss," but not to be turned aside.

"And Col. Roosevelt?"

"I'm still kind of mad at him the way he did last time. But I guess he's a good man, all right. If he'd leave these here Bull Moosers and come over to the Republicans I'd vote for him, all right."

The hotels are crowded with men.

"City limits," said the bell boy to the elevator man as he carried in my bag. Which means, I discovered, that I am on the top floor.

The city is draped with flags and bunting, already rather dirty.

Downstairs a great electric flag burns constantly in the lobby.

Wild-Eyed Men Elbow Way in Crowds.

Tomorrow probably will see order out of this chaos, today the convention is in the making. Wild-eyed men elbow their way through the throng hunting others, equally wild-eyed. Perhaps all this intensity is only for breakfast.

Types of all sorts, from every part of the country, men with bandannas twisted around perfectly correct sailor hats. Men barbarously decorated with the insignias of various lodges, political badges, buttons, pins and small flags.

There would seem from the talk overheard everywhere to be but two candidates. One is Roosevelt. The other is the favorite son of whatever delegation one happens to be near. I have not heard Hughes mentioned. Extraordinary, under the circumstances, if he is the dominant figure we are told he is. The truth is that whatever our political leaders may think or do, the personality of Theodore Roosevelt is today dominant in the minds of the delegates. "Teddy" is the word most often heard. And, strangely enough, too, it is the man even more than the things he stands for, that seems to be uppermost.

I saw Irvin Cobb, about 11 o'clock. He was standing in the lobby of the Congress Annex, watching the crowd with the experienced eyes of the old reporter. I am new at this business and my eyes were trying to look two ways and getting crossed.

"It's is like this," he said. "Let them talk, bless them. They like it, and it's the game. Pretty soon a half dozen men will get together in a room upstairs and settle it. That's all there is to it."

Through the tunnel, in the Auditorium Hotel, the Progressives had their headquarters. It was the Republican enthusiasm, plus something else, there, a sort of earnestness perhaps, less of determination. More groups here around a central speaker, less of assurance but perhaps more grim resolve. The Progressives today are still a separate party.

Kitchener's Death a Help to Roosevelt.

But there is something curious going on in these groups. The news of Kitchener's death has just come in.

The immediate result appears to be, strangely enough, a wave of sentiment in favor of Roosevelt. Earl Kitchener was a favorite in America and naturally his death brings up our own situation with renewed force. Perhaps it is because the man in public life nearest to Kitchener's type is Theodore Roosevelt. Different vitally in most things, they had in common great and high ideals of patriotism and the instincts of the fighting man.

And Kitchener lived just long enough to see the thing which Theodore Roosevelt has feared for us—a brilliant people overwhelmed as a result of cold-blooded foresight and preparation and on the part of an aggressor of its own unfounded self-confidence.

Republican Delegates Prosperous Appearing.

In the Florentine room of the Congress Annex today a meeting was held. Old line Republicans lauded the party and a glee club from Ohio sang. The singing was the best part of the meeting. The hall was hung with flowers and a hideous picture of Abraham Lincoln looked over the prosperous crowd.

For this is a prosperous gathering. These are men, most of them, who have thriven under Republican rule and would thrive more. They look like bankers and men of business. In these days, when farmers wear city garb and shave clean, it is difficult to pick them out. Generally speaking, however, I think there are comparatively few.

Prosperity seems to be the keynote of the speakers in the caucus this morning.

Veteran Senator Proctor on Republicanism.

"Out of 56 years of this republic 44 years were under control of the Republican party," said Senator Proctor of Vermont. "Eighty per cent then of the glory of the last 56 years is claimed by the Republican party."

Today the weather is depressing, a steady rain, driven by gusts from the lake. Through it a steady line of taxicabs pause in front of the hotels and move on. The hotels are seething. In the lower halls of the Congress Annex the crowd is a mob, passage through it practically impossible, a good-natured mob, as American crowds are, waiting interminable hours for elevators, waiting for food, waiting—for tomorrow.

Here a delegation, jammed together in the center of the throng, starts to sing to the accompaniment of a guitar or a banjo. Men get into hot altercations, their voices rising. Faces turn toward them, amused and cynical. Neither listens to the other. After a time they shake hands.

"Well, there's no use getting mad over it, anyhow." They move away, possibly toward the bar.

For, on this day before real work begins, patriotism seems to consist largely of bands, bustle and booze.

Just once today have I had a glimpse of the real thing that underlies all this surface display, and that was in the Florentine room this morning. The glee club sang "Dixie" with the usual result of cheering and waving flags. Then they sang "The Star Spangled Banner." There was a change. Instantly all these men were on their feet, standing very straight. They faced toward the great flag draped across the end of the hall and the hum of conversation around the doors died away. I have heard men sing their national anthem in various places, French soldiers, wearily tramping along muddy roads, Belgian boys in hospitals, British recruits at St. Paul's Cathedral, before leaving for the front. But, because we leave our national songs mostly for school children, I do not believe I have ever before heard mature American citizens en masse singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

They sang, and they meant it.

Perhaps, after all, American patriotism is not dead of prosperity, but only sleeping.

Marguerite Martyn Mingles With the Crowds in the Loop Hotels, Talks to the Suffrage Leaders and Observes a Number of Queer Things.

By Marguerite Martyn.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 7.

THE heartless exhibition of Chicago weather yesterday blew hundreds of costumic plans to the four winds. No doubt about that. But it failed to chill enthusiasm in the two separate Woman Suffrage convention halls. Women still think of dress, of course, but they have other matters to think of besides, these days.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who is the "angel" of one suffrage faction and the dressiest lady of them all, to whose wardrobe it is said a whole room at the Blackstone is reserved while President makers are sleeping two in a bed, sounded the keynote of the day when she came to her place upon the Congressional Union stage with rubbers and umbrella still dripping. For a moment on Monday, just before the organization of the new women's party, it was thought an agreement or compromise might be effected between the divided suffragists.

Harriett Stanton Blatch, president of the Congressional Union, called upon Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National Suffrage Association. Both leaders admitted that they would like to join forces. Mrs. Blatch having made the concession of calling first, seemed to think she had done her part. She returned to her headquarters to wait for Mrs. Catt to make the next move. But Mrs. Catt failed to return the visit. So the Woman's party composed only of women voters proceeded to form within the ranks of the Congressional Union. The Union continues to demand that the G. O. P. indorse its Federal amendment and the National Association continues to ask for the drafting of a plank favoring merely the principle of equal suffrage. Bitter words flew back and forth today.

Dr. Anna Shaw of the national conference declared the Congressional Union a great hindrance to the cause of suffrage. You cannot organize women to fight men on one point and expect the same men to co-operate with women on some other question thereafter, she said. "The Woman's party is fighting to substitute method for principle."

While upon the Congressional Union stage Mrs. Sarah Bard Field of California and the Woman's party told how she had worked to gain a concession from President Wilson.

Suffrage Arguments on Both Sides.

"When I went to the Capitol at the head of a deputation of 300 women voters, I was frightened at the importance of my mission," she said. "Repeatedly, suffragists of national reputation had been turned away from that door unsatisfied. I was not known nationally. But when I made the remark to the President, 'Here are 300 women who helped to put your here!' I was no longer frightened. And do you know why? Because the President was frightened and we came away from there with his promise that he would take the matter up with his colleagues. To be sure, it has been a long wait, but I still have hopes that our party will vote for Wilson in November."

Mrs. Blatch, who took up her residence in Kansas to qualify as a voter in November, was telling how she was a Democrat, as her father before her, but how she would renounce her allegiance to that party unless, in the meantime, it indorsed the enfranchisement of women. Mrs. Belmont made still more militant and threatening denunciations of those who oppose the Federal amendment.

"We can make it impossible this year for either a Democrat or Republican to be elected. They didn't free the negroes by states. Well, then, why should they free us that way?" It may not be strange, though it is unexpected, that the three accredited women delegates to the Republican convention from enfranchised states, Mrs. Abby E. Krebs and Mrs. Cornelius Cole from California and Mrs. Louise F. Lusk of Montana, should have little time for the suffrage squabbles.

While calling at California headquarters I saw an emissary from suffrage headquarters beseeching the influence of the women delegates turned away with little encouragement. "I really haven't time for suffrage," declared Mrs. Krebs. "Almost every minute of my time is taken up with caucuses and other meetings with our delegation.

"I come to the convention uninstructed and do not know yet how I shall vote. Some people say women can be counted upon to vote as the men dictate. I do not admit that. Still I hope our whole delegation will vote harmoniously," Mrs. Krebs said, and she hastened away to an appointment in Senator Weeks' headquarters.

Mrs. Cole said: "I do not believe in the unlimited enfranchisement of women, anyway. I think there should be a property and educational qualification."

Both these women differ decidedly from the women delegates from California of four years ago. They turned Progressives at the birth of that party.

The Only Woman Delegate-at-Large.

Mrs. Krebs is the only woman ever elected delegate at large. She is white haired and elderly. She is president and active manager of a large lumber company. Mrs. Cole is the wife of a former United States Senator. She went with her husband to California in '49. She is a dear old lady, who wears a lace shawl and a pale blue satin cap. She is accompanied by her granddaughter, Miss Cornelia McLaughlin. Both these women differ decidedly from the women delegates from California of four years ago. They turned Progressive at the birth of that party.

These women both are conservative and determined California shall not repeat a Progressive digression if they can help it.

"We are tired of Gov. Johnson," said Mrs. Cole. "So many reforms have increased taxes in our State. Ugh, these horrid Progressives, just hear the noise they make. We cannot sleep nights in this hotel, and they have bought up all the rooms so that I cannot even have a parlor in which to receive my friends."

There is a liberal scattering of women in all the throngs of men at the Congress Hotel, where most of the political headquarters are. These are not the suffrage women. They are busy in their beautifully decorated, pleasantly perfumed theaters. I think it would give some of the most earnest of them a distaste for politics to try to push their way through these mobs. But these women pushing their way through seem to enjoy it.

Miss Anne Morgan a Roosevelt Booster.

In the Blackstone Hotel lobbies and cafes there congregate such numbers of women that it is the men who are in the minority and have difficulty elbowing their way through.

One would think it a women's fashion convention in session.

I met Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, president of the anti-suffragists, here with Mrs. George and Miss Alice Hill Chittenden. Their lieutenants were keenig them supplied with bulletins of the Iowa election and an anxious air was ill concealed.

"Yes, we will have to go before the Resolutions Committee with out cause since the suffragists insist upon doing so with theirs," said Mrs. Dodge with an air of resignation.

Miss Anne Morgan was hobnobbing with the anti-suffragists. She has become an ardent supporter of T. R. "But I am here only for pleasure," she said. "Expressing my admiration for Col. Roosevelt is just a part of my pleasure."

Into the Blackstone for luncheon and tea and to look upon the motley assortment of performers and spectators the great national show brings out, drift the native Chicagoans. Sometimes the Chicagoan is as great a curiosity to the outsider as the outsider is to her. One exquisite young creature with a cherubic face, large melting brown eyes and Cupid's bow mouth, smoked a cigarette at luncheon while she gazed in wonder upon the crowd.

20,000 WOMEN IN PARADE IN CHICAGO FOR SUFFRAGE

CHICAGO, June 7.—The outstanding feature of suffragist activity today centers in the parade in which it is expected that 20,000 women will march to the Coliseum to present to the Republican convention the resolutions adopted by the National Woman Suffrage Association asking that a plank be put in the Republican platform favoring woman suffrage.

Although the parade is in charge of the National Woman Suffrage Association, the Congressional Union for Women Suffrage will participate. Approximately 5000 suffragists from all parts of the United States are here for the demonstration and they will be joined by at least four or five times that number from Chicago, it is expected.

The resolutions asking for suffrage plank are to be carried at the head of the parade and into the Coliseum by four women, one from each of the corner states of the Union.

Yesterday's heavy rain and showers this morning caused the issuance of the statement from suffrage headquarters that the parade will be held without regard to the weather. The prediction for today is for showers, followed by fair weather.

The white column in a long line spreading across Michigan avenue 16 abreast with fluttering yellow banners and bands of martial music will be one of the picturesque demonstrations of convention week. Along the line of march of 20 blocks the street will be cleared and decorated with flags and yellow and white bunting. Outer Grant Park, from which the marchers will emerge, will be the reviewing area. In the reviewing stand the national officers of the organization who will leave the line of march at that point, Gov. Dunne of Illinois, legislators and other invited guests, will be found.

Before noon the women, thousands of them from out of town, began gathering. With the blowing of a bugle the grand marshal of the parade, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank of Chicago, will take her place on the viaduct that leads into Michigan boulevard. Escorted by platoons of policemen and policewomen, she will lead the line into the boulevard and south toward the Coliseum.

As honorary aids to the grand marshal, 16 of the distinguished suffragists of the country, among them Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. H. Mary Wilmarth, Miss Mary McDowell, Mrs. Raymond Robins, Miss Katherine B. Davis, Miss Stone Blackwell, Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch and Mrs. Lambert O. Wile, will appear. The personal aids, who are active suffrage workers in Chicago, come next. The first band in the procession will be that of the Progressive national convention, loaned for the purpose.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the association, will be followed as commandant of her division by noted women, including Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, former president of the national body; Mrs. James W. Morrison, Mrs. Frank M. Rossing, Mrs. Stanley McCormick, Mrs. Henry Wade Rogers, Miss Hannah J. Patterson, Mrs. Walter McNab Miller and Mrs. Patty Ruffner Jacobs, all members of the national executive board.

NOTTINGHAM, England, June 10.—More than half of the grocers here have not an ounce of sugar in stock, and no prospect of obtaining any at an early date.

TIRED LOOKING WOMEN

Some women always wear a worn, tired look. It is the outward sign of nervousness, neurasthenia perhaps, with its characteristic symptoms of worry, headaches and sleeplessness.

Overwork, grief, undue excitement, the late hour and nervous strain of a strenuous social season, lack of out-of-door exercise, any or all of these may be responsible for the trouble, but the most common cause at this season of the year is the grip.

Whatever the cause, if you feel the need of more strength try the great non-alcoholic tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. As the nerves get the nourishment from the blood the treatment must be directed toward building up the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on the blood, and with proper regulation of the diet have proved of the greatest benefit in many cases of neurasthenia. A tendency to anemia, or bloodlessness, shown by most neurasthenic patients, is also corrected by these tonic pills. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50.

NEW WOMAN'S PARTY IS KEENLY ALIVE TO POWER, IDA M. TARBELL WRITES

Members Determined to Defeat Those Who Oppose Suffrage — Declare They Will Cling to Their Cause to the Last.

IDA M. TARBELL

By IDA M. TARBELL.
Noted Writer on Industrial and Economic Subjects.

CHICAGO, June 7.

LET there be no misunderstanding by women or men of that newest of political organizations, the woman's party. It sailed into port here, the purple and white and yellow banners standing straight out to the wind, and such a landing as it made!

In all the frantic uncertainty it is the one clean, orderly, definite piece of work I have seen done; it knows exactly what it wants. Moreover it knows its power. For many weeks the women of the Congressional Union have been working to this end, a party of woman voters, officered only by women who vote, its regular active membership made up of women who vote; its slogan "suffrage first," its immediate objective the passing of the "Susan B. Anthony amendment" to the United States Constitution enfranchising women.

Complete Organization Quickly Is Accomplished.

Last night they crystallized into permanent organization all their planning and their thought. It was as clean and complete a bit of organization as I ever saw carried out. It did not matter a bit in the general smoothness of the effect that the permanent chairman was never elected, that after passing a motion that the nominations be closed, the nominee selected Miss Anna Martin of Nevada to take her post. She came in on schedule time and there was no doubt from the minute she lifted the gavel that she was all right.

The temper and the tone of the gathering was something new in suffrage meetings. It was an earnestly confident body of women; they put their cause straight from the shoulder.

"There are 11 full suffrage states; there are 3,000,000 women voters," they said. "We control 91 electoral votes; that, furthermore, is power. It is ours not yours. We are going to use it for women, the women who have not the vote. We pledge ourselves henceforth to vote for the defeat of every party and every man who does not support the Susan B. Anthony amendment."

"Good Lord," said an interested and entirely nonpartisan gentleman who sat beside me. "They'll play the devil if they stick to that."

"They won't, though," confided his companion.

But there was only one little incident in the whole program to make one doubt for a moment that there was any possibility of their not sticking. Mrs. Harriett Stanton Blatch spoke Roosevelt's name in a tone—just a tone—that was not to the liking of certain Progressive women. They cut her short in storms of applause and when she was allowed to go on she repeated the name in a tone of chastened respect but it made one see, neat little incident, how much of trouble may be ahead.

Mrs. Blatch Inspires Her Hearers With Confidence.

Not even the most obdurate of anti-suffragist could have heard Mrs. Blatch last night without being moved. She has been so long a warrior for votes for women that to see her stand at last before a national body of women voters, to find herself addressing a group which actually holds the political balance of power in presidential elections, if it can be swung solidly, sure stirred your blood.

It was Mrs. Blatch alone who came anywhere near putting into the meeting any emotional sense. As a whole it lacked fire, but it had several other things more important and without which the biggest flame would die out. One of these is fresh blood. There is no escaping the fact that the suffrage movement has until recently lacked really good new blood. The work has fallen on a few tried and true old souls who, much as they are respected and loved, could not fit their weapons to the day.

The women who make the woman's party are not campaigners for suffrage; they are women who have the suffrage, some of them born to it. They talk in terms of politics, work with political weapons; they know the game, they like it and they are not afraid to play it. Take a woman like Miss Martin of Nevada or Mrs. Mackrille of California; there are few men who understand better just "how it is done." They have made it their business to find out by weeks of observation and lobbying in Washington and in their own states. They told the audience just why and how their beloved amendment had been sidetracked. They proved by the keenest analysis just what they could do if the voting women of the country will stand solid.

Self-pity Is Missing From This Gathering.

It is very refreshing to hear all this instead of the old self-pity and talk of slavery. That is all forgotten. They are too busy with the game. As far as the vote is concerned, they have it, and cannot pity themselves for lack of it. They do not use the world "slave" at all.

Possibly they see the humor speaking of those who have the time, the means and the opportunity to fight for what they want, as slaves.

They have learned, too, that causes are won by organization, steadiness of purpose, patience, and they have put all of these into the forming of their new party. It looks to me as if one thing alone is lacking, a little more flame, a little more of the spirit of self-sacrifice. It is for the other woman, the woman who has not what we have. Until she has it, nothing else counts. But it is difficult to play politics, and this is a big political move, and at the same time keep the might of the crusader.

There are signs today of the effect of their bold and cleanly-put challenge. Senator Harding of Ohio presented himself at the headquarters and conferred with their Platform Committee. The rank and file were jubilant. They dare not refuse to give us our plank, the young and enthusiastic say, as that plank demands, not asks, that the Republican party pledge itself to the Susan B. Anthony amendment.

"If they don't heed you, what will you do," I asked Mrs. Lillian Kerr of Colorado.

"Hold them responsible; defeat them," was the firm reply.

Democrats Blamed for Side-Tracking Suffrage.

That is what they are now doing with the Democrats, with Mr. Wilson, holding them responsible for the failure to pass the amendment on which they have set their hearts. If the 3,000,000 could be persuaded to stand for this policy it is known what would happen.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont said last night, when she read the call for the convention: "No man could be elected against whom 3,000,000 votes were turned, and there is no man who would not free the slave states" (as Mrs. Belmont took her joy in characterizing the states which have not adopted suffrage), "if he knew he would lose 3,000,000 votes if he didn't do it."

HADLEY, SICK, WILL NOT ATTEND CHICAGO CONVENTION

Has Light Attack of Pleurisy and Physician Orders Him to Stay at Home.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 7.—Former Governor Hadley has decided not to attend the convention at Chicago. Hadley had planned to depart for Chicago tonight, but he has been suffering a light attack of pleurisy and was advised by his physician today not to attend.

Mrs. Hadley said today that Mr. Hadley would not go unless something came up which required his presence.

SPEECH BY HUGHES 'BETWEEN US GIRLS' SAYS WM. A. WHITE

Kansas Moose Leader Says Flag Address Eliminated Jurist From Presidency Race.

PRAISES CHANCES OF T. R.

Big Outstanding Fact Is That Conferences on Possible Coalition Failed.

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE,
Kansas Progressive Leader, Editor and Author.

CHICAGO, June 7.—One important fact was developed in the political situation yesterday. The Progressives propose to go ahead and nominate Roosevelt. The Hughes statement did not satisfy them. The Bull Moose delegates have got their badges and not a man behind a badge had a pleasant word for the Hughes speech.

To the Progressives the Hughes speech seemed to have a kind of "beyond-the-Alps-lies-Italy" ring to it. It was all "just between us girls" and, anyway, it is hard to get any enthusiasm from the Bull Moose crowd, which was rejoiced when Roosevelt went down to St. Louis and made snoots at the German-American hyphenates. The crowd that yelled itself hoarse when the Colonel told the hyphenates that this was an election of an American President, not a German Viceroy, it is hard to get the Progressives overheated when a gentleman goes down to a female seminary and gayly tells the girls it is bad form to burn the flag of their country, or words to that effect.

Hence the Progressives today figured that so far as Hughes, as a compromise is concerned, he is out of it. No other possible candidate before the Republican convention remotely interests the Progressives. So they decided through the caucus of delegation, after delegation to go to the Roosevelt nomination early, not later than Friday, and it will happen that while the Republicans are listening to the stupid harangues of orators plastering enconiums upon "a man who," the Bull Moosers over in their snug litle convention will be nominating Col. Roosevelt and preparing to go it alone.

That is the Progressive program, and because it is as nearly decided as anything in politics may be decided three days before the event, Progressives are cheerful and happy. It is the Progressive Republicans who are sad. They hoped to convince their fellow Republicans and seem to have made small headway. The proposition from the regulars to let the Colonel name his man has been made and remade in the conferences between the leaders of the two parties. But the proposition has been rejected, for there is in the Republican list no candidate now, with Hughes eliminated by his cream puff speech, who represents the aggressive militant type of mind that appeals to the Progressive.

The Republicans in their conferences repeatedly have called attention to the fact that the Colonel cannot get the German vote, that he will lose the pacificist vote, that he will lose the reactionary vote, and the Progressives patiently sitting in the game have explained over and over again that they do not care to make up a majority of the voters of the country from unrelated groups of voters who think apart, but maybe feel together. The Progressives have explained that they wish to make up a majority in the country of men who think alike, who, when their votes are cast, will form a majority that means one definite thing.

But to talk of minorities, makes the regular Republican shudder. He wants a majority at all hazards whether it means anything or not. The Progressives have another feeling about it. They for 10 years have been working along lines of greatest resistance and they like a fight.

The Republicans for a generation, since the days of Blaine, have been seeking to go forward along lines of least resistance, so the two types of mind understood one another but vaguely, and it may be set down as an item of news that the conferences between the leaders, big and little, of the two parties, have failed.

The old bitternesses have not been revived. If the Republicans concede many things, the coalition may be brought about, but today the big outstanding fact of the convention is that the conferences have failed and that the Progressives propose to put out a third ticket.

There seems to be no doubt in their minds that the Colonel will run on it, and what gives the Progressives cheer is the fact that Hughes has eliminated himself from the Progressive program and also from the Republican program, for he will not run on a third ticket. He would have to get off the bench and give up a life job for the remote chance that he will have of being elected President with Col. Roosevelt running on the Progressive ticket, rallying the forces of Americanism and preparedness away from the Republican ticket.

As the Progressives see the strategy of the situation, it is to nominate the Colonel, to get his acceptance, and then, having checkmated Hughes, to go in to win the election, with the pussy-foot vote divided between the two old parties.

While the radical Progressives and the advocates of a stiff foreign policy and a policy of preparedness are rallying under one flag, in a three-cornered fight, the Progressives with Roosevelt at their head, would stand as good a show of winning as either of the other parties, and rather a better show, and what a blundering war policy would do for Roosevelt in November is rather obvious, at least the proposition, being a sort of combination of a free-for-all fight and forlorn hope, is the sort of thing that makes one want to do a few fancy steps to the tune of "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and jump in where glory waits.

IT'S A BIG CIRCUS, BUT KINDA GLOOMY, SAYS MR. ANTWINE

Hughes' Seminary Speech Furnishes a Few Chortles to Chicago Crowd.

DEPEW SMILES, THOUGH

But Then His Political Future Is Behind Him, As It Were.

By CLARK McADAMS.
"JUST A MINUTE."
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 7.

IT took the somewhat lugubrious Justice Hughes to quicken the Progressives into life and laughter. No such merriment has arisen anywhere else on the field of battle as that which resounded through Progressive headquarters when it was learned that the Justice had declared himself at a girls' seminary on those burning issues of the day which so engross the serious thoughts of men. All the wild West men, gun men, cowboys, bear hunters, Rough Riders and Roosevelt minute men howled with glee. They are fond of the Justice, those Progressives. They could see him standing upon the platform, a sepulchral figure in black, talking over the heads of those startled girls, who are interested in pretty dresses, white kid boots and wrist watches, to the political conventions in Chicago. Gov. Hiram Johnson of California expressed what was in the minds of all the Progressives in a speech before the New York delegation. He said:

"When Col. Roosevelt has something to say, he says it. It doesn't filter out through a girls' seminary!"

The house came to its feet with a shout of laughter. Men yelled like mad. They hammered upon one another's backs. It was much too funny for human endurance. The Governor tried to quiet his audience and explain how much better it would have been for everybody had Justice Hughes chosen a military academy for that particular utterance, but there was no quieting it. The Progressives had been too long restrained for the sake of peace. They saw the champion of their opponents now. He had suddenly bobbed up from behind bonbon boxes.

A nothing short of weeping man stood up on a chair and wiped the tears from his eyes.

"Was there anything said about the length of skirts in this campaign?" he asked.

They all howled again.

"I don't think he would be quite the man for us, considering everything," a delegate said. "He might faint in action."

That living torch of Progressism in California stilled the tumult finally.

"This is the proper spirit," he said. "This is that with which we must permeate the city of Chicago! We have been too patient. We have lain too long inactive. We have the man. We have the issue. We have the people. We have everything but that convention which we have too long tried to win over to the only chance there is of beating Wilson next fall. Let's go to it!"

A CLOSE friend of Col. Roosevelt told me how it was with the Progressives.

"We don't want Hughes," he said. "This thing has brought the matter to a head. We want Roosevelt, and if the Republicans are going to nominate some papier mache man on the Roosevelt issue we are going out behind the Colonel on our own hook and beat them so badly they won't know what hit them."

"What is the Colonel doing out at Oyster Bay in this crisis?" I asked.

"He'll be here," said his friend. "The Black Hole of Calcutta is a lighted-up rathskeller compared with the bottomless pit in which we have those fellows across the street."

"What is the reason you can't undermine the Old Guard and bag the whole kaboodle?" I asked.

"It can't be done," he said. "The delegates in that convention were handpicked by the Taft organization. They are men who bet their money on Taft. I don't know whether you bet any money on Taft or not. If you did, you probably know how they feel. They will wreck the Republican party just as blithely as it was wrecked four years ago. They will weep when they see a pie wagon pass, but that's all."

But it isn't all. There is George W. Perkins, who still hopes for peace. He speaks sweetly of everybody. He runs with the Old Guard after midnight. It lies with Perkins and Penrose. They all want to beat Wilson, and everybody speaks about as kindly of him as the Belgians speak of the Kaiser. A speaker at one of the Progressive meetings said he did not believe Justice Hughes made any such remarks as those attributed to him in the papers.

"They sound too much like Wilson," he said.

Panning the Democrats is the one pleasantry they all have in common. Another Progressive speaker said two college presidents met in the East. One of them asked:

"Don't you think Mr. Bryan is the biggest boob in public life today?"

"I can't express myself on that," the other responded. "I am committed to Daniels."

Aren't they the mean things?

THIS is a very unhappy situation, my friends. It amuses a Democrat, but if it goes on much longer it will have the Burton Glee Club singing funeral dirges and political leaders drowning themselves in the lake. Accustomed to close organization and victory, as they have been for so long, the Republicans can scarcely bring themselves to realize that they are hopelessly split. The old bosses are madder than hornets. They go scowling around in a way that shows plainly enough how things are going. One doesn't need to stop one of them and inquire. After meeting three of our St. Louis Republican leaders, Dr. Bartholdt, Charles Nagel and Otto Stifel, within five minutes yesterday, and observing their moods to be about alike, I concluded that the Democrats are probably in for a long reign. The only happiness one sees around Republican headquarters centers about the benign presence of Chauncey Depew. He fortunately had his political career before anything happened.

AS a show the conventions lack only the Colonel himself. Given him to perform in the middle ring, and Barnum would rise from his grave to take the thing on the road. There is a meeting some place every minute. These are attended by band music and speechmaking. If it is an Ohio meeting, the wives of the Ohio delegates meet one at the door and give away flowers. Anybody can make a speech. All one has to do is to signify his desire to exercise his lungs, and they put him on a soapbox in a hurry. All these people say about the same thing.

If the Republican party had been in power the Lusitania's passengers would all be alive and Villa would be dead. A few say this grammatically. The rest say it all the way from the manner in which Huckleberry Finn would have said it to the bare requirements of common usage. Occasionally a meeting works up enough steam to make up a parade. The police require all these to go up one street and come down another, a traffic rule designed to avoid riots. The Kansas people wear sunflowers.

The Roosevelt people all wear huge badges carrying a picture of the Colonel and the word "Americanism" in big type. Senator Weeks is the button king. He gives a way a button as big as a doughnut, with "The Army and Navy Forever" on it. People are glad to get them for the children. One thing quite evident is that no merely rich man can buy a nomination for the presidency. There hase been more Weeks money and Dupont money put into the campaign than all the other campaign funds have totaled together. Yet the two millionaires are not in the race.

Neither of them could beat a fat man up a hill. The Ford boom seems to have gone back to the automobile business. Burton is reaping the bitter fruit of his opposition to deepening the Mississippi River. Every body from the Valley States is only waiting to duck him in such water as we have. There is a good deal of talk about Harding from Ohio being the likeliest of the dark horses, but it will probably end when he makes the keynote speech for the Republicans. He has about as much personal magnetism on the platform as a rutabaga. You have heard him if you ever heard Frederick Warde in "Macbeth." The Missouri delegation looks like the biggest flirt on the scene. Charles Fairbanks Jr. waves his handkerchief at it a good deal. His bald spot increases. The repartee is delicious, and it is affected by every development.

"I see that young Hughes has gone to Plattsburg," said one of the Progressives.

"That is a mistake," said another. "He has gone to Vassar."

The wear and tear on politicians is terrific.

"I left Perkins at 2 o'clock this morning," one man said.

"That's nothing," said another. "I haven't had my dinner last night yet."

It is by such sacrifice that we save the country.

DELEGATES WANT WOMEN AT CONVENTION NOT TO WEAR HATS

Movement to Prevent Big Meeting From Resolving Itself Into a Millinery Show.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Delegates to both Republican and Progressive conventions have expressed themselves as desiring that women at the conventions appear at the deliberations without hats. The women delegates, it is said, will set the style for other women by wearing small bonnets and by taking them off when they are on the floor of the meetings.

The wives of the leaders, it is also reported, will either go to the conventions with small bonnets or without hats.

"This is a political show, not a millinery exhibition," said one leader. "Everyone should be given a chance to see the show without having his view obstructed by a hat in front."

No formal order for the removal of hats has been issued by the Committee on Arrangements.

MR. PERKINS COMES OUT

A Comedy of the Republican Convention

BY CLARK McADAMS.

SCENE—The fourth floor of the fashionable Blackstone Hotel. Mr. Perkins, who is the only man tipping Michigan boulevard up when he steps into the street, sees the reporters twice daily sharply at 10 and 4. The time is one minute of 10. There are 55 reporters squeezed into the narrow hall before Mr. Perkins' luxurious suite. The fumes of porterhouse steak drift into the hall through one of the transoms. There is a soft stir of fine china suggesting refined persons eating. Silver jingles. The reporters all look at one another in an amused fashion and everybody straightens his tie. An attache of the suite opens a door leading into the hall.

Attache: Are you ready, gentlemen?

Reporters: We are.

Attache: Very well. Mr. Perkins will emerge from the door at the extreme left, and will stand just over the threshhold. No crowding, please. (The reporters move forward politely and remove their hats. A bell tinkles in the interior. There is a soft squash as somebody important moves across thick velvet. Mr. Perkins appears. He is a dapper man of some 5 feet 10 inches, in a tailored gray suit. His hair is light and disposed to curls. His eyes are blue and very seeing. He has a firm face, and is apparently in his early fifties. His expression is that of a man about to sneeze. His appearance is at once immaculate and businesslike. He looks as if he had slept well, though not long. He is comparatively happy, and is easily guessed to be the container of the porterhouse steak).

Mr. Perkins: Good morning, gentlemen. I have a great many pressing demands upon my time today. If you will be brief, as I shall be, we can economize time.

First Reporter: What conferences were held last night?

Mr. Perkins (holding right hand aloft, with palm out): My dear sir! (his manner implies that he spent the prior night in bed).

Second Reporter: But some conferences were held?

Mr. Perkins: Yes; I may say so.

Third Reporter: Has any agreement been reached?

Mr. Perkins: None. We are still fencing.

Fourth Reporter: There was a story in the Tribune this morning that Col. Roosevelt had threatened to run on a separate ticket if Hughes is nominated by the Republicans. Is that true?

Mr. Perkins: It is not true. Col. Roosevelt said some time ago that he is neither for nor against any man. That remains the situation this morning.

Fifth Reporter: Have you read the Hughes statement?

Mr. Perkins: I have (speaking slowly and distinctly, so the reporters can all follow him with their notebooks balanced on their left thumbs): I—am—amazed—that—anyone — should—consider —his—utterances—before—a—girl's -graduating—class—an—expression— of —his — views—on—national—issues — sufficient — for—the—purposes—of — these — conventions. (Big breath.) Now read that to me. (Reporters read above in unison from their notes, and just as Mr. Perkins feared, some erasing and rewriting is necessary.)

Mr. Perkins (when all is made right): Thank you.

Sixth Reporter: Did you see Mr. Penrose last night?

Seventh Reporter: Has Mr. Crane been around?

Eighth Reporter: See anything of Mr. Barnes?

Mr. Perkins (recoiling politely): I have seen some of the Republican leaders. Nothing has come of it. Now, if you will let me talk, I shall be obliged. (Crisp, carefully worded speech by Mr. Perkins, who has just heard of the death of Kitchener, asking if the conventions are not permitting their little quarrel to blind them to the great cataclysm which every day threatens to engulf us and which the whole world is expecting Col. Roosevelt, as President of the United States, to stop. He implores of the press that it ask that question and help him get it before the people. Reading by chorus and revision as before. Attache of suite opens door behind him. Mr. Perkins steps back, bows.)

Mr. Perkins: At 4, gentlemen. (Disappears into that luxuriousness whence he came.)

Reporters: At 4. (Drive for the elevators. Time, exactly 10 minutes. Quality of performance, best in Chicago. Admission, free.)

The cars rolled down an embankment. The train was traveling about 20 miles an hour. The injured were brought to hospitals here.

JURY GIVES WOMAN, 50, SUING FOR BREACH OF PROMISE, $20

Defendant, Who Is 58, Admits Engagement and Explains Why He Changed His Mind.

Mrs. Jane Nobe, 50 years old, of Mascoutah, Ill., obtained a verdict for $20 yesterday, in the Belleville Circuit Court, in her breach of promise suit against Fred Schneider, 58 years old. She is not satisfied with the amount of the judgment, and her lawyer said he would ask for a new trial.

Mrs. Nobe said she and Schneider repeatedly made arrangements to be married, but that each time he gave her some "weak excuse" and caused the ceremony to be postponed. Schneider admitted the engagement, and said that three days before the time he had set for the wedding, he found two men calling at Mrs. Nobe's home. This caused him to abandon the wedding plans, he said. Mrs. Nobe said the men called to ask her the name of a laundress whom one of them wished to employ.

WIFE TOO ILL TO WORK

IN BED MOST OF TIME

Her Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"My health was so poor and my constitution so run down that I could not work. I was thin, pale and weak, weighed but 109 pounds and was in bed most of the time. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and five months later I weighed 133 pounds. I do all the housework and washing for eleven, and I can truthfully say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a godsend to me, for I would have been in my grave today but for it. I would tell all women suffering as I was to try your valuable remedy." — MRS. WM. GREEN, 332 S. Addison Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

There is hardly a neighborhood in this country wherein some woman has not found health by using this good old-fashioned root and herb remedy.

If there is anything about which you would like special advice, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

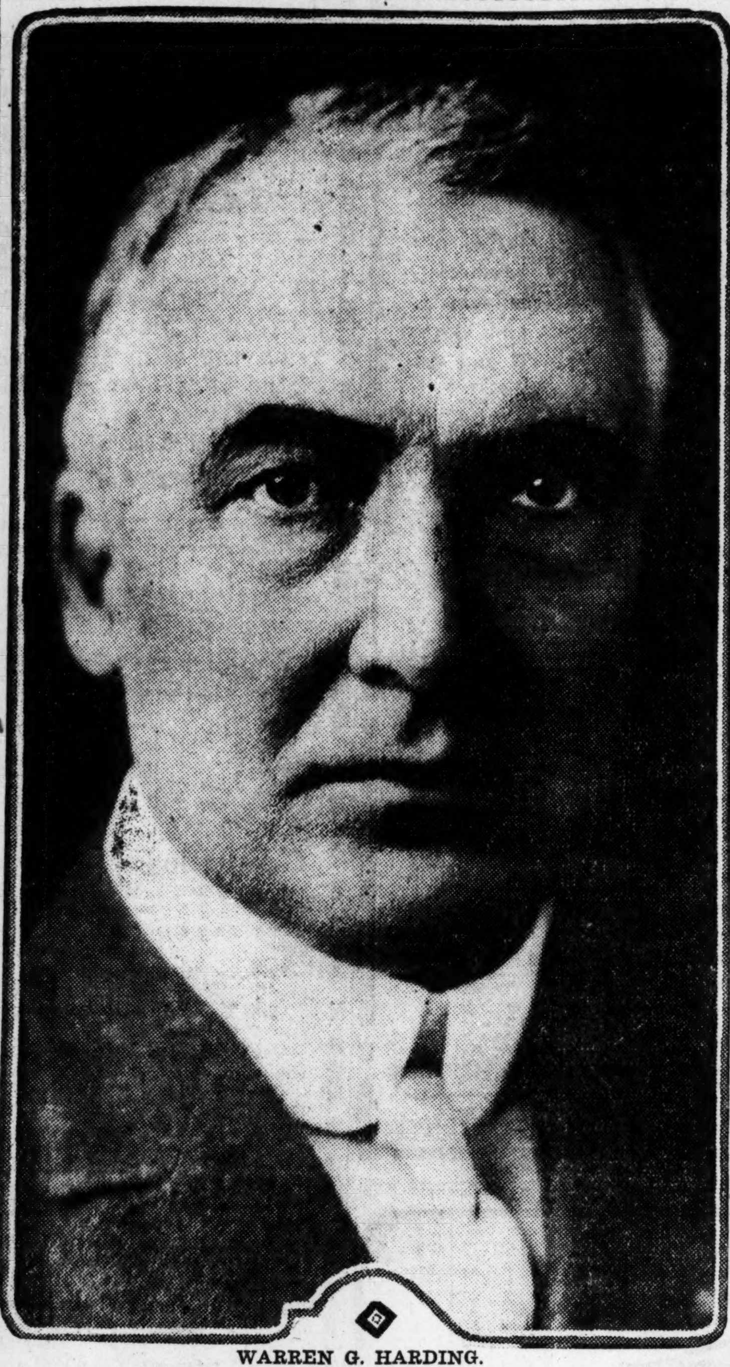
Harding in Republican Keynote Speech Pleads for Reunion of Party

ADVOCATES ADEQUATE DEFENSE; CALLS POLICY AS TO MEXICO FIASCO

Plea Made for Return of Protective Tariff—President's Foreign Policy, Shipping Bill and Attitude Toward Philippines Assailed—Foreign Negotiations Called Weak.

Ohioan Who Makes Keynote Speech at G. O. P. Convention



WARREN G. HARDING.

CHICAGO, June 7.—With a plea for party reunion, for reconsecration rather than recrimination, United States Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, in his address as temporary chairman, opened the Republican national convention here today. Asserting that the country was "wearied afresh by a dissapointing and distressing Democratic administration," and was calling for Republican relief, the speaker, before undertaking to discuss political issues, appealed to the delegates to forget the differences which divided the party in 1912.

Referring to the administration's foreign policy in the European war, Senator Harding declared that it had spoken with more rhetoric than resolution. Mexican negotiations he described as the greatest fiasco in American foreign relations. He paid tribute to Americans of foreign birth and brief reference to the few zealots who would impugn the nation's neutrality and urged a fraternity of American republics under the Monroe doctrine. Advocating adequate national defense, he charged the Democratic party with having interrupted Republican naval construction and he criticised the army reorganization bill. He also attacked the administration shipping bill, the effort made to extend independence to the Philippines, and made a plea for a return to the protective tariff.

The speech in full follows:

It is good to greet this representative body of that American Republicanism on which is centered the high hopes of the republic. I can believe—nay, I know—that a vast majority of the people of our United States is expecting the party sponsors here assembled to write anew the sacred covenant of Republicanism, and reconsecrate the party to the nation's service and the people's advancement. That same majority expects you to select a standard-bearer who sall not only typify our expression of faith but shall so enlist the confidence and trust of our American citizenship that the work of this convention will be confirmed overwhelmingly at the ballot box next November.

The country, wearied afresh by a disappointing and distressing Democratic administration, is calling for Republican relief, and there is every inspiration, every encouragement, every confidence that the light of Republican conscience, set aflame in this convention, will illumine the way to the country's restoration.

Let Us Forget 1912.

We did not do very well in making for harmony the last time we met. The country has regretted, let us forget—and make amends to our country. We did not divide over fundamental principles, we did not disagree over a national policy. We split over methods of party procedure and preferred personalities. Let us forget the differences, and find new inspiration and new compensation in an united endeavor to restore the country.

The essential principles of Republicanism are unchanged and unchanging; the lofty intent, the indestructible soul and the undying spirit of Republicanism are as dominant today as in the destined beginning 60 years ago, or at any time during the intervening years, and they are emphasized today by the proof recorded to Republican credit in the matchless chapters of American progress.

No political party ever has builded or ever can build permanently except in conscientious devotion to abiding principles. Time never alters a fundamental truth. Conditions do change, popular interest is self-asserting, and "paramounting" has its perils, as the Democratic party will bear witness, but the essentials of constructive government and attending progress are abiding and unchanging. For example, we ought to be as genuinely American today as when the founding fathers flung their immortal defiance in the face of the old-world oppressions and dedicated a new republic to liberty and justice. We ought to be as prepared for defense as Washington urged amid the anxieties of our national beginning, and Grant confirmed amid the calm reflections of union restored.

Party Solidarity.

It is not my understanding that the remarks of the temporary chairman are to be taken as an expression of the party faith. Such expression must come from this convention, made up of delegates who believe in popular, representative government through the agency of political parties. You come directly from the people, commissioned to speak their hopes and aspirations, to utter their patriotic desires and pledge their abiding faith. Out of the convictions and judgment and wisdom as expressed by the majority will come the sacred and sincere covenant of the Republican party.

We are a voluntary organization and must find our strength in the enlistment of volunteers who find the nearest or best expression of their individual convictions in our party declarations, and there can be no treason in withdrawal if our declarations fall short in their appeal. But I am old-fashioned enough to believe that in popular government party success and party capacity for service to the nation must lie in making the will of a righteous majority the willing pledge of all.

Not the Time for Recriminations, It Is the Time for Reconstruction

Gentlemen of the convention, the first and foremost wish in my mind is to say that which will contribute to harmony of effort and add to the assurance of victory next November. I wish that because we believe Republican success to be for the best interests of our common country. The allied hosts of the believers in Republican principles are in a vast majority in this country—when the banners of harmony are unfurled. We have witnessed the comeback of our party in various states. We have seen the re-enlistment of those who believe in Republican doctrines, and victory has followed and rejoicing has attended. No apology has been asked, no forswearing required. This is not the time for recrimination, it is the day of reconsecration.

Rededicating here and now the Republican party to the progress and glory of the republic, let us bury party prefixes with the administration which our differences put in power. I do not believe there is a really reactionary Republican bearing credentials to this convention. If there is, he will depart, after our deliberations, solely and proudly a Republican, with heart aglow with the party spirit of 1916. And the welcome delegate who emphasizes his progressiveism, is expected to do his part in making our party a reflex of the best thought and best intent of sincere committal to the uplift and progress of the American people, thereby strengthening party purpose instead of magnifying individual belief, and he, too, will find new rejoicing in being a Republican. No party can endure which is not progressive. I know the Republican party is genuinely progressive as well as effective, else it would not rivet the expectations of the American people today on the most important convention held since the party formulated a new political decalogue and gave to union and nationality the immortal Abraham Lincoln.

Representative Government.

In building the surpassing temple of the republic, which we have been doing to the astonishment of the world, and ofttimes inspiring others by our example, there ever will be modifications and additions to meet the public need and conform to popular ideals. We do not fear to imitate nor fail to originate, but there can be no discord about underlying foundations of essential walls or proven arches or stately columns. Mine is a deep conviction that the founding fathers were divinely inspired, and the wisdom of representative popular government is proven in the surpassing achievement.

It is not alone the miracle of accomplishment which deepens our reverence; it is not alone the conviction that we have builded the first, seemingly dependable popular Government on the earth and exalted all its citizenship, which adds to our faith; but we are the oldest of existing civilized nations, with one passing exception, continued under one form of Government, and under that form we have developed the highest standard of living in all the world. Surely we must be right.

Recalling that the mightier forward strides have been taken under a half century of Republican control, after we led in fixing the indissoluble ties of union, the retrospection, the contemplation and the anticipation combine to fill the Republican breast with pride and hope, and trust and faith, and magnify our obligations in this crucial year of our national life.

Much of the discussion of the hour is hinged upon a world at war. We need not wonder thereat, because the enormity of the conflict and the influences of its horrors have set mankind in upheaval. The traditions of civilization have been broken and international laws have been ignored. There is a tidal wave of distress and disaster, there are violent emotions and magnified fears. There are the extremes of incalculable sacrifices and measureless new fortunes—not all American. There are new wonders and new hindrances in commerce, changed balances of trade, new marvels in finance and utterly changed economic conditions. These have attended embarrassments in our foreign relations as difficult as those which the individual citizen experiences whose every neighbor is involved in deadly quarrel. Everything is abnormal except the depleted condition of the Federal treasury, which is characteristic of Democratic control, and the facility of the administration for writing varied notes without effective notice.

Unarmed America.

Amid these conditions has stood this unarmed giant, typifying the American republic, neutral and sane, to whom the neutral nations have turned for leadership. Our national unselfishness has been proven, our devotion to humanity had been established, our committal to international justice had long been proclaimed. The world had previously heard the voice of American fearlessness, and all the conditions single us out for leadership among the neutral Powers, but the administration at Washington spoke with more rhetoric than resolution, and we came to realize what the warring Powers soon came to know, that the official American voice lacked the volume of determined expression that once demanded international heed, and we lacked the strength of confidence in our own defenses.

It is too early to estimate the debit and credit account of the European war with civilization. Out of measureless cost and inestimable heroism must be a rebirth of individual spirituality, reawakened national hopes, new liberties and new baptisms in patriotism which must prove some compensation. But we have seen civilization stripped of the pretenses which clothed man's savagery, and we have seen elemental man, developed in genius and more formidable because of that, intoxicated with power or impassioned in the greed of conquest, offending or defending, contradicting every evidence of mankind's humane advancement. In the envy of jealousy or rivalry or hatred, refined by boasted civilization, are the barbarities of primitive man, and the seal of obsolesence is not yet stamped upon the warrior's sword.

Warning of Bleeding Europe Calls for Ample Defense in America

Perhaps it is a reminder more than a discovery, but there has come to us a conviction that this great nation, rich in resources and strong in patriotic manhood, has been negligent concerning its own defense. We have dwelt in fancied rather than real security. Pride mingles with regret in this, because it suggests the mind of a nation so free from intended offense that there was no cultivated thought of needed defense. Our righteousness of purpose is portrayed in our trust in unarmed safety. But there is a warning in bleeding Europe, and there is call today for prudent, patriotic and ample national defense. There is no mistaking the sentiment. We are not thinking of the hysterical, we need not be moved by a preparedness which is partisan in conception. We need not believe in a defense propaganda inspired by those who aim to wax fat in the production of arms and munitions, because there is none. I deplore the teaching that an anxiety about our national defense is inspired by greed. We rejoice in free speech and free press and untrammeled opinion, but patriotism is illy promoted by the imputation of false motives, whether aimed at those who believe in defense or those who doubt its wisdom. Such a teaching rends the concord of citizenship, which may develop a worse peril from within than from any enemy without.

Though we do not pretend to be exclusive in our devotion, we Republicans believe, sincerely and soberly, in adequate national defense. We have always believed in an ample navy, as invincible in modern might as John Paul Jones builded in our freedom's earliest fight. We have in mind a protected commerce on the waters, and a sea coast secure in strong naval defense. We were building to high rank among naval powers when the Democratic party interrupted, and we subscribe to a stronger committal now, because of a new realization of the envy which our wealth and our commerce invite, and a new appreciation of our commanding place in the affairs of the world. I shall not say that it is ours to have the greatest navy in the world, but noting the elimination of distance and the passing of our one-time isolation, we ought to have a navy that fears none in the world, and can say any time and anywhere: These are American rights and must be respected.

Economy in Security.

It is not for me to specify the provisions for naval defense. Since modern warfare is in large part a conflict of brains, so must naval defense be devised in highest intelligence. Let us strengthen every arm—aerial, submarine, fleet cruisers and great dreadnoughts. Let him who is anxious about the cost remember that Republican policies afford the ample means without conscious burdens upon the people. whatever his activity, knows that the cost of insurance against accident, theft, fire, flood or thunderbolt, assessed as a fixed charge upon his income, is worth its cost, in peace of mind, though loss never attends. Moreover, under any system security is economy itself.

There are manifest differences about our developments for military defense. The President made a trip from the coast to the valley of the Missouri to tell the American people the need of preparedness. It might have been more seemly to tell the story to Congress, for that body was in session and empowered to act, and seemingly ever ready to testify obedience. However, Congress undertook to provide an army for defense and the majority wobbled between pacification and preparedness until the Republican minority in the Senate put something real in the pending measure. We Republicans made a rational response to the call of the land, but Democratic insufficiency and inefficiency are recorded in the conference-amended act, and a Federal nitrate plant to supply powder to the patriots and pap to the paternalists and Federal fertilizer to the farmers in competition with a private enterprise is the great constructive offering of a Democratic majority.

Until the civilized world is pledged and repledged to peace, and until civilization commits nations to the nobler practices of the individuals who constitute them, in which I would have America lead, this republic will need for a basic army and a ready provision for military defense. We have territory to defend, we have independenec to preserve, we have lives to safeguard, we have property to protect, we have rights to assert, we have missions of humanity to perform. We proclaim justice and we love peace, and we mean to have them—and we are not too proud to fight for them.

No Curse of Militarism.

Let no one apprehend the curse of militarism in this fair land. We declare unalterably against it. Our free citizenship, walking confidently, absorbed in the triumphs of peace, would tolerate no such blight on American institutions. There is to be no surrender of cherished ideals. With that yearning for peace which has marked our continued development, with that same comimttal to justice which has given us front rank in the onward march of civilization, with that rare unselfishness which led us to unsheath the sword for humanity's sake and put all territorial aggrandizement aside, with that belief in the square deal, individual, national and international, which is the foundation of American faith, we mean to go on, an exemplar of peace to all the nations, an arbiter of justice to all the world, a promoter of righteousness to all the people of the earth.

At the same time we have more to do than to chart a national course through the waters surging with the turbulence of war; our inspiring course is on the highway of peace. Our armed defense must ever be linked with our industrial self-reliance, and the nation worth dying for must first be worth living for. Out of nature's prodigality we have incalculable resources and limitless possibilities, and there is need only for the unhindered application of man's genius and industry to make us as independent industrially as we are free politically. Ample defense rests on industrial freedom and self-reliance, as well as patriotic sacrifice and industrial preparedness gives that assurance of material good fortune in peace on which must be founded all our higher aspirations.

War Taxes on People at Peace Show Protective Tariff Need

Subsistence is the first requisite of existence, and we have the higher American standard of living because of the Republican protective policy which makes of Americans the best paid workmen in all the world. Out of the abundance of employment and higher compensation, together with the beckoning opportunity which offers every reward, we Americans have attracted the laborers of the earth, and set new standards here.

It is not for me to put the stamp of relative importance on pending issues—the intelligent voters will determine that for themselves. But I know what they are thinking, and they believe that the protective policy which made us industrially and commercially eminent is necessary to preserve that eminence. I know they want it restored and maintained. For myself I prefer a protective and productive tariff which prospers America first. I choose the economic policy which sends the American working men to the savings banks rather than the souphouses. I commend the plan under which the healthful glow of prospering business is reflected in every face from the great captain of industry to the schooling child of the daily wage-earner.

Moreover, I like the abiding consistency of our unchanging position upon this policy. The Republican convention of 1860, which gave to the nation and all history the nomination of Lincoln, made this simple and ample utterance:

"That, while providing revenue for the support of the general government by duties upon imports, sound policy requires such an adjustment of these imports as to encourage the development of the industrial interests of the whole country; and we commend that policy of national exchanges which secures to the workingmen liberal wages, to agriculture remunerating prices, to mechanics and manufacturers an adequate reward for their skill, labor and enterprise, and to the nation commercial prosperity and independence."

We might fittingly reiterate that utterance today. The failure of revenues under existing Democratic policy, the necessary resort to the imposition of direct and offensive taxation—war taxes on people at peace to meet deficiencies which ever attend Democratic control, the depression and disaster which followed Democratic revision, which were relieved rather than caused by the European war—all these argue the Republican restoration.

Temporary Prosperity.

No one disputes a temporary prosperity in our land today. But it is sectional in its factory aspect, abnormal in its fevered rush, fictitious in its essentials and perverting in its tendency. Worse, it is the gold sluiced from the river of blood, poured out by the horrifying sacrifice of millions of our fellowmen. God forbid that we should boast a prosperity wrought in such waste of human life. We had rather rejoice in the prosperity of peace. We had rather boast our good fortune won from the world as it stands erect, in a fair contest, where men openly contend for the laurels of industry and the garlands of trade. I do not mean that we must "sharpen our wits in competition with the world," for we tried that and involuntarily turned the blade to cutting our production and severing thousands from American payrolls. There was no cut in the cost of living, but a visible hack at the capacity to live.

The Democratic party is always concerned about the American consumer. Our Republican achievement is the making of a nation of prospering producers, and by producers I mean every human being who aplpies muscle or skill or brain or all to the conversion of nature's abundance into the necessities and luxuries of life or participates in the ways and means of their transportation and exchange. Far better a high cost of living and ability to buy than a lowering of cost attended by destruction of purchasing capacity.

The Cost of Living.

It is worth while to recall the magnified importance given to the high cost of living four years ago; first, to emphasize Democracy's failure to reduce it, though it risked and almost accomplished the ruin of our good fortune in attempting it; second, to declare there is no such thing. What was thought to be the high cost were only the higher demands and the larger capacity to buy, which were the natural reflexes of the higher standard of living reared under Republican protection.

The one notable advance in cost has profited the American farmer, for whose befitting share in good fortune we have stood unfailingly and sincerely. His reward is a Republican achievement and we prefer to cling to the conditions which brought to agriculture its delayed but deserved reward and hold it secure in Republican maintenance of a home market unmatched in all the world. More, we want our basic prosperity to be home-created and home-sustained, and not dependent on conditions abroad.

Let us agree—nay, let us boast—that American industry can compete with any in all the world, under like conditions. But we also boast a condition, created through isolation and maintained by protection, wherein the rate of American wages is twice or thrice or 10 times that of old world competition. Reduce our wages and we shall have conditions more nearly equal, but no Republican will consent to that. We are willing to standardize the wages of the world. We are as fit to lead in doing that as we were to fix the newer guaranties of liberty and independence; but we Republicans do not mean to lower our scales to effect the leveling. We want the world measurements raised to our heights. Until it is done we shall cling to American wages for American workmen, American markets for American products, and hold the Republican guaranty of our material good fortune.

The nations abroad and the Democratic party at home are bearing witness to Republican wisdom. German industrial self-reliance is the sequence to her adoption of a Republican protective tariff, and England's manifest conversion to this fostering plan will magnify the prophetic wisdom of Republican protectionists. Even the Democratic party is penitent now and makes confession in action if not in words. The proposed destruction of American sugar has been repealed, and simulated grief about the American breakfast table has been put aside. With that facility for changing position which has been made manifest from Baltimore to Vera Cruz, the party in power proposes to restore the tariff commission which it had hastened to destroy.

This change of attitude is not because of its great and manifest love of commission alone, but because failure is written across every paragraph of Democratic revision and fear is haunting the White House slumbers. The Wilson administration has sensed the country's anxiety about industrial conditions when the revelry in munitions and the immunity granted by war are ended. It has made a reflective estimate of the perils of 1914, once called psychological, and means to apply a stolen remedy, with more concern about the effects than the ethics involved. We do not oppose a tariff commission. We favor it. It is a Republican creation. We do not want one, however, conceived in Democratic hostility to American industry or managed in Democratic opposition to business success. We would hasten the protective defense against foreign invasion, to guarantee our industrial security, and then let a tariff commission deliberately and scientifically work out the needs of American preference.

No honest business in this country is too big to be good and useful, or too little to be protected and encouraged, and both big and little deserve the American shield against destruction by foreign competition, and protection from the raiders, political or otherwise, at home. Business and its agencies of transportation are so inseparable from each other and from the common weal that the political party which does not pledge them a square deal, no more and no less, does not deserve the confidence of the people. The strength of the business heart shows in every countenance in all the land, and the weakness of that heart holds a nation ill. We must strengthen the heart of American business in government co-operation rather than official opposition.

It is not inspiring to recite Democratic failures. I shall not dwell on that party's insincerity or incapacity. The country indicts and the record convicts. It proclaimed the sacredness of its pledges and then profaned them. It professed economy and is staggered by its own extravagance. It has turned adequacy of revenue under indirect and unfelt taxes to insufficiency and direct taxation. It has espoused the freedom of the seas and wrought only the freedom of the Panama Canal. It reaffirmed its devotion to Jeffersonian principles and simplicity of government and is voting millions of the public treasury to the establishment of Federal factories to destroy private industry. It declared for enlarged shipping facilities without added burdens upon the public treasury, and now proposes that fifty to 500 millions of public funds shall go to shipping, federally owned and privately managed, with every menace that Federal ownership involves. We believe in a great merchant marine, federally encouraged and privately erected, wrought in the committal to the achievement of private enterprise and measured to the requirements of our commerce in peace.

The National Expansion.

The President has said ours is a provincial party, evidently forgetting the Federalist founding of our nationality and Republican expansion to greater national glory. The Democratic party not only fails to grasp our immensity and importance, it is sectional on the mainland and unheeding of our island possessions. Its vision does not catch the splendor of Old Glory in the sunlight of the world. Right now when the devouring flames of war are burning most fiercely, when our national view must be world-wide to be comprehensive, the Democratic administration has proposed to set adrift an island empire, in violation of our obligations to the world, to the Philippine people and ourselves. Amid proclamations of our ministrations in behalf of mankind it undertook to renounce its guardianship of a race of people and leave them to walk alone when they had not been fully taught to creep. A few rebellious Democrats joined the Republican minority in sparing us this national disgrace, but the design is written among the vacillations of the present administration. The Democratic party once hauled down the flag which had been unfurled in honor in the Pacific and met rebuke at the first popular expression at the polls. No administration which hauls down the flag and none which proposes to haul it down ever can succeed itself in directing the affairs of the American people.

Our Widened Relationship.

One century of marvelous development has led us into another century of international sponsorship. This mighty people, idealizing popular government and committed to human progress, can no longer live within and for ourselves alone. Obliterated distance make it impossible to stand aloof from mankind and escape widened responsibility. If we are to become the agency of a progressive civilization and God's great intent—and to believe otherwise is to deny the proofs of American development—we must assume the responsibilities of influence and example, and accept the burdens of enlarged participation. The cloistered life is not possible to the potential man or the potential nation. Moreover, the Monroe Doctrine, stronger for a century's maintenance, fixes an obligation of new-world sponsorship and old-world relationship. Our part must not be dictatorial, it must be trusted leadership in a fraternity of American republics.

Our Strength at Home.

To meet the obligations we must first make sure of maintained mental, moral and physical health at home. It is good to recall that ours is the only major political party ever formed in this country on a great moral issue. Our first proclamation was human liberty, to be glorified by the spiritual and material development of a free people. We opened the way to higher human attainments and emphasized human rights under the guarantees of civil liberty. We need only to go on, imbued with the spirit which has thus far pointed our way. The light of a moral people is the halo of liberty itself. Let us be honest, not only in proclamation, but in practice; not alone in campaigns but in incumbency of office; not only before altars of worship but in our daily affairs and in every human relationship. If popular government is to be held dependable and command the confidence as well as the loyalty of its citizenship, political parties and their platforms and their spokesmen must be honest and sincere.

If we are to urge the world's attention to international justice we must hold secure our civil justice at home and make social justice and attending welfare typical of our national life. We have advanced wonderfully. The reward of merit is eternal, but we can promote the development of merit. I have spoken so emphatically for the American producer that I want to add here a committal to improved conditions of production. It is good to gaze afar toward markets we hope to attain in peaceful commercial conquest, but production is itself the maker of markets at home. To the safety and inviting environment of the laborer we must add his growing merits of compensation. There can be no permanent material good fortune that is not righteously shared, there can be no real moral achievement that does not lift the great rank and file to an ever higher plane. Maintained Republican policies provide conditions for the ideal advancement and continued uplift, and it is not too much to hope that we shall acclaim the day when choice instead of necessity fixes the status of the American wage-earner.

My countrymen, for two generations, with short interruptions, the Republican party, in conscience, courage and capacity, has been translating the dependable popular sentiment of the republic into governmental policy. We have not yielded to the expediency of adopting every ephemeral whim, because devotion to country and its ultimate good ofttimes demand opposition to a momentary popularity. The final appeal to sober intelligence has justified our course in political righteousness. But we have been so engrossed in developing America that we have not stopped to search our own hearts for the soul of Americanism.

The American Spirit.

In the travail of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness the American soul was born. Set aglow at Bunker Hill, it was reflected in the faces of the patriots of a fearless republic, where men dedicated themselves to the solemn and momentous task which was traced by an infinite hand. They were not all Americans by birth, but they were dedicated Americans in the baptismal rite of a new republic and a new patriotism. They could not all sign the Declaration of Independence, but they committed all Americans to it for all succeeding time. They could not all join in making the Constitution, but they pledged the succeeding millions of Americans to its everlasting defense.

There were stalwart Americans then, Americans from Great Britain with British ideals and their devotion to orderly government. There were Americans from the land of Napoleon and Lafayette, to give of the enthusiasm and heroism of France in establishing new freedom. There were Americans from Germany to fight the battles of the republic and blend their sturdiness and thoroughness in the progress of a new people, not a new race. There were Americans from the green fields of Ireland, with a passion for liberty, Americans from Southern Europe to battle for opportunity. There were Americans who came from oppression and stood erect in the freedom of the republic. They all made common cause. There was lack of homogeneity of race, but there was kinship of soul, and that soul was American. The gates to our ports have swung inward ever since; there has been a welcome to the foreign-born, whom we asked to drink freely of the waters of our political life and find their places in the sun of American opportunity. They are an inseparable and important and valued part of American citizenship, and the few zealots of any origin who violate our neutrality do not and cannot impugn the loyalty or the American patriotism of that great body which adds to the swelling chorus of "My country, 'tis of thee,

Sweet Land of Liberty."

Mexico Is Greatest Fiasco in the History of Our Foreign Relations

It is not surprising that in their hearts there is sympathy or partiality for the land of their nativity when it is involved in a life and death struggle like that which saturates Europe with the blood of their kinsmen. Search your hearts deeply, my countrymen. One must be human to be an American, he must have human sympathies and human loves, and I should pity the foreign-born and the sons of foreign-born whose very souls are not wrung by the cataclysmal sorrow of the old world. But sorrow is the test of soul and the very altar of reconsecration. This is the momentous hour for the blazing soul of American allegiance. The spirit of the fathers is calling, and the safety of unborn Americans is demanding and the security of the republic is requiring that now and here and everywhere, under the Stars and Stripes, we proclaim a plain, simple, glad and unalterable Americanism. It must be the offering of loyalty and devotion and love and trust, and life, if need be, to these United States, now and everlastingly.

The Americanism which indexes these United States must be more than the consecration of the individual. In the great fulfillment we must have a citizenship less concerned about what the Government can do for it and more anxious about what it can for the nation. There must be the submersion of local and sectional views and the standards of nationality reared in their stead. Holding to the ideals of just American rights, at home, on our borders, on the seas, in every land and under every sky.

Our Foreign Relations.

Seeking to practice the very Americanism I preach as Republican gospel, I am reluctant to speak of a division of American sentiment relating to our foreign affairs. One must be an American first and a partisan afterwards, though we believe Republicanism is the culture of highest Americanism. But it must be said, for the truth's sake and clearer understanding, we have hungered in vain for that unflinching Americanism at Washington which is needed to exalt the American soul. There is no geographic modification of American rights. They are the same in Mexico that they are on the high seas, they are the same in Europe that they are in Asia, and are sacred everywhere, and the American spirit demands their fullest protection.

Whatever the ultimate solution may be, history will write Mexico as the title to the humiliating recital of the greatest fiasco in our foreign relations. Uncertainty, instability, Mexican contempt and waning self-respect will be recorded in every chapter, and the pitiable story of sacrificed American lives and the destruction of lawfully held American property will emphasize the mistaken policy of watchful waiting and wobbling warfare.

Under the pretext of noninterference the Democratic administration miserably meddled. In the name of peace that same administration encouraged revolution, and the cost of American sacrifices was charged to needless war on Huerta, where the real American expenditure required only the voice of authority demanding protection to American rights. The unbiased critic will recite that the Democratic administration first coddled Villa as a patriot, then chased him as a bandit.

Our civilization has evolved the rules of right conduct, and written them into forms of government by law. They were conceived in justice and developed in righteousness. They have become instinctive in our American life, and are cherished as a part of our people's inheritance. Our people do not understand any suspension, they are compelled to march on, confident and unafraid. When the spirit of American accomplishment, or the mercies of American ministration, or the inclinations of American teaching, or the adventures of American development take our people abroad, under the compacts of civilization, they have a right to believe that every guaranty of American citizenship goes with them. When it does not we have forfeited the American inheritance.

Our Course With Europe.

No political party can draw a variable chart for our ship of state amid Europe's warring ambitions, lust for power or battles for self-preservation. Justice points the way through the safe channel of neutrality. There are dangers, seeming or real, looming on every side, but we should feel secure along the course marked by international law and our own conscientious convictions of American rights. "Straight ahead" shall be the command, and when peace comes the sober judgment of the world will exalt us ever higher and higher as a people strong in heart and noble in the espousal of justice and justice's humanity. In that world-wide respect and confidence which needs only to be preserved, we shall have a lofty place in the great reconstruction, and we reasonably may hope to see this mighty republic again ministering to the re-establishment of peace and all its precious blessings.

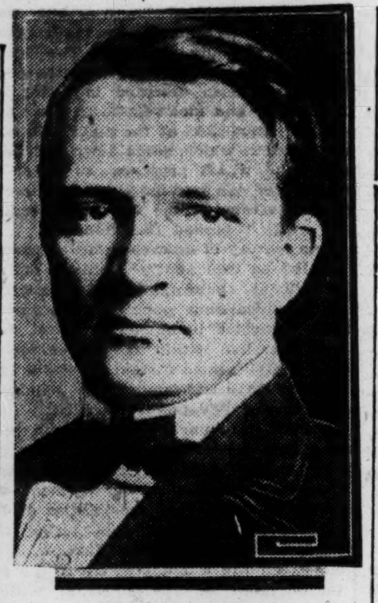
My countrymen, Americanism begins at home and radiates abroad. The Republican conception gives the first thought to a free people and a fearless people, and bespeaks conditions at home for the highest human attainment. We believe in American markets for American products, American wages for American workmen, American opportunity for American genius and industry, and American defense for American soil. American citizenship is the reflex of American conditions, and we believe our policies make for a fortunate people for whom moral, material and educational advancement is the open way. The glory of our progress confirms. The answered aspirations of a new world civilization acclaim. We have taken the ideal form of popular government and applied the policies which had led a continent to the altars of liberty and glorified the republic. We have justified pride and fortified hope. We need only to preserve and defend, and go unfalteringly on. Power is the guarantor of peace and conscience the buckler of everlasting right. Verily, it is good to be an American. And we may rejoice to be Republicans.

Robins Calls for Universal Service and Universal Suffrage in Bull Moose Keynote

Will Prevent Wars, He Tells Convention

"This Is No Time for Half-Baked Ideas or Half-Breed Americans — We Don't Want a President Who Is Almost an American."

Address to Convention Is in Effect a Nominating Speech for Roosevelt — Will Join Republicans if Candidate Is True to Progressive Principles.



RAYMOND ROBINS.

CHICAGO, June 7.—The keynote address of the Progressive party's national convention here today, delivered by Raymond Robins of Chicago as temporary chairman, asserted in vigorous terms:

1. That the Progressives will stand by the announcement made by the National Committee last January that the party will join the Republicans if the latter nominates for President a man true to Progressive principles.
2. That the principle, however, is greater than the party, and if need be the Progressives will go on alone.
3. That preparedness is the paramount issue of the campaign; and
4. That Theodore Roosevelt is the man of the hour.

Robins' speech, which well might be an address nominating Theodore Roosevelt, follows, in part:

The need of Progressive thought and leadership and courage is even greater in America today than it was in 1912. What is our dominant problem today? To protect and preserve our Government. Can the people be aroused to protect and preserve a government which is not of and for all the people? With what slogan shall the ruthless and the selfish individualist rally a thinking people? Shall it be, "Arm to defend my happiness?" It is only the great common heritage of America that the common people will find worthy of defense. With what slogan shall the hyphenates rally a cosmopolitan people? Shall it be, "Arm to defend the traditions of my father's native land?" It is only the traditions of America, the melting pot of a hundred nations, that the children of a hundred nations will find worthy of defense.

Man With Vision Wanted.

In this critical hour of our history only men who have the vision of a nation that shall be truly great, as well as powerful and wealthy, can speak for all the people. We have listened for weary months to the wrangling voices of selfish, narrow groups, to spokesmen of geographic divisions, social divisions, race, nation, color and creed divisions of a people, who seemed to have forgotten that they had a common destiny—"that they must go up or down together"—that their first and necessary allegiance was to the common welfare of a single citizenship protecting and protected under one flag. So raucous and insistent have these voices been that for a time it seemed that half-breed Americanism would rule a discordant, disunited people to the ruin of a nation.

But through all these weary months there has been one great voice steadfastly, courageously, without a shade of compromise, without a note of indecision, calling upon our people to reject the counsels of division and rally to the one common cause of America. It was not strange that this was the voice of our leader of 1912. It was not strange that he spoke out when lesser statesmen feared to whisper, uncertain as they were alike of their own convictions and of the feelings of the crowd. It is not strange that we who followed him four years ago muster once again in answer to his brave and faithful call.

In 1912 we drafted a covenant with the people, a program for dealing with our pressing domestic problems, a document so distinguished from ordinary party platforms in its purpose, its sincerity and its far-sighted polity that it is a milestone in American politics. Some of the articles of that covenant have been translated more or less accurately into terms of legislation and political action, some are in process of translation, others await a wider understanding of their true import and value in a time when the present pressure of newer demands and needs for immediate governmental action shall have been relieved. In this hour we must devote our best energies to the solution of the deep questions forced upon us with new and sudden urgency by the great war. But before turning to those later problems it is fitting that we reaffirm the faith that we uttered four years ago—that we declare ourselves yet faithful to our self-imposed trust, that we show that spirit undaunted and that vision undimmed which they must have who are fit for counsel over the needs of the American nation in this day.

Reaffirmation of Faith.

Let us reaffirm our faith in the capacity of the American people for political freedom, in the ability of the American people, the men and the women alike, to govern themselves. Let us reaffirm our faith in the desire of the American people to do justice to one and all, to safeguard private rights against community oppression, and to protect community interests against private tyranny. These broad principles of our covenant we carry onward to aid in the shaping of our new program.

In our domestic problems we sought to equalize the burdens and benefits of government. We sought to increase the benefits of government for the wage earner, the small business man and the farmer, those whose productive activities carry the greater part of the nation's burdens—to shift some of this burden to the shoulders of those who derive the greater benefits of the government, the protection and security of large properties. Today we must provide adequately for the defense of our nation against foreign aggression. This calls for money and men, and if we would act as a great republic—a government of all the people—we must strive to equalize the burdens and benefits of this preparedness. Let us in every way seek to avoid repeating that irony of history—whereby the men with little of property, with little of freedom and of comfort to preserve against a foreign foe have been called so often in the name of patriotism to defend the sacred lives and property of the few who thereafter continue to enjoy the major part of the blessings of liberty, for which the many have fought and suffered and died.

We are rightly told that we are not worthy of self-government unless we are able and willing to defend that government. Let us also see to it that our Government is worthy of our defense. Let us see to it that our national institutions shall hold more that is worth preserving for more of our people than those of any other land. Let us see to it that the money cost of armament shall be borne by that property which is safeguarded and by that commerce on the highways of the world which the American flag is once again promptly and surely to protect. Let us see to it that the human cost in service under arms shall be borne equally by all our citizenry. Personal freedom is equally dear to all and the freedom of the state is the common heritage of all, so that each man of military age should be prepared to defend that which is his own. In that last resort of a civilized people—an appeal to arms—the self-respecting citizen of a republic will do his own fighting. He will not wish to hire men to die for him.

No Military Caste Wanted.

We want no military caste in this republic. We will have none if each man serves his training time and then returns to civil life—better physically and with a better understanding of the facts of war. We need have no fear of war being brought on needlessly in a nation where the entire voting population knows what war means to modern men. With universal suffrage and universal service there will be no needless wars. The jingoes and the timid will be as acutely interested in a call to the colors as the quiet and courageous, and we may be assured of peace as long as there can be a righteous peace. And we can be assured that in the terrible event of war the fighting will be done by those who made the war and not by brave victims of selfish ambition and treacherous greed.

But modern warfare is not merely a matter of armament and men. If we are to make our preparedness a peace insurance, it must be adequate. We must organize the vast resources of the nation so that in sudden need, without a costly period of industrial chaos, the equipment, the munitions, the food supply and transportation for large armies will be immediately at the service of the government. America trained, armed and ready, will be a nation practically assured of peace. America unarmed, untried or unready, will be a nation practically assured of war.

What Progressives Stand For.

The Progressives stand for Americanism and preparedness. They stand for an Americanism which is not qualified by differences in blood or birth or creed They stand for preparedness of the body and of the spirit, industrial and social as well as military, with universal service for the defense of the nation. The platform to be written here will be the work of many hands and many minds, but it will give one voice to us all. It will speak that unity of spirit in which we shall pledge ourselves to go forward with all of like purpose—in the spirit of '76 and '61 and 1912—the spirit of a people self-governing, free and just, who are building a national character that shall be pure American.

But a cause must have leadership and the spirit of our cause must find embodiment if we are to translate words into action. The success or failure of democratic institutions rests finally upon the quality of popular leadership. From the precinct committeemen to the Chief Magistrate of the republic, the democracy functions through living men. This leadership may be selfish, narrow and sectional, or it may be unselfish, open-minded and national. All party platforms, written laws and forms, of social order function at last through the human spirit. In times such as this formal declarations are of lesser consequence. In the midst of changing conditions, unparalled in history, we cannot even forecast the problems that will confront America in the next four years. The chief issue today is one of leadership, the supreme need for a man. It has been said that every great movement in human affairs is incarnated in a living personality. This nation needs a leader in this hour whose abstract promises have been tested by concrete performance. Agan, we will speak plainly.

Would any disinterested patriot untouched with partisan prejudice or personal feeling hesitate long to name the leader best fitted to serve this cause? His name is on the lips of the nation. Two great parties claim him as their own. He was our leader in 1912. He was the leader of the Republican party for many years. He was President of our nation for seven years. There is no man in America today who holds, as he does, alike the confidence of the American people and the ungrudging respect of every nation in the world. He has been a master politician, but he has refused ever to play politics with the destiny of his country. When he first raised the issues of the oncoming campaign, now accepted as such by all the people, he spoke almost alone to a nation unfriendly, suspicious, impatient and full of scorn. He only spoke the more insistently and soon the nation began to listen, began to think and then came to believe. Imitative politicians exhibited their ideas of statecraft by repeating his arguments with diminished force and degrading modifications in hopes to placate the half-breed Americans and the sectionalists. But, as our leader has pointed out, it is no use to build a bridge half way across a stream, no use to put out a fire just a little, no use to be half prepared for war. And this is no time for half-baked ideas or half-breed Americans. This is no time for half-way leadership. We don't want a President who is almost an American.

We meet in a great hour in the life of this nation and in the history of the world. A new oconomic and social order is emerging in every nation of the earth and a new internationalism is being born from the blood and suffering of the greatest war of all the ages. Democratic government and free institutions are being brought to a final test and the genius of western civilization is being tried as with fire. The next four years will determine the place of America in the social enterprise and world adventure of our generation—a generation that will condition a thousand years of human history.

RUSSIA GETS OVER 40,000 PRISONERS IN NEW OFFENSIVE

Reports Indicate Capture of 12,000 to 15,000 Teutons Daily.

PETROGRAD, via London, June 7.—In their new offensive movement the Russians have captured more than 40,000 men, it was announced officially today. Apparently prisoners have been taken at the rate of 12,000 to 15,000 a day. Monday's statement said 13,000 Teutons had been captured and that of yesterday increased the number to 25,000.

The sudden blow struck by the Russians along the entire Galacian front of 275 miles from the Pripet to Rumania, is in the unanimous opinion of the military critics here a brilliant beginning of the long awaited Russian offensive. The condition of the roads is perfect and with a plentiful supply of ammunition the Russian advance is expected to develop swiftly.

The movement is under the leadership of Gen. Brussiloff, who conducted the campaign in the Carpathians in 1914. The forces opposing the Russian advance are estimated at 40 Austrian infantry divisions and from 10 to 15 cavalry divisions assisted by, at the most, two divisions of Germans, This brings the total Teutonic forces operating on this front up to 600,000 men.

The initiative belongs entirely to the Russians and the Austrians, evidently taken by surprise, fell back without being able to start a counter offensive.

GERMANS TAKE BRITISH TRENCHES IN HOOGE FIGHT

Explode Series of Mines Along 2000-Yard Front and Follow Action With Infantry Attacks.

LONDON, June 7.—The British official communication issued this morning follows:

"There was very heavy fighting during the afternoon (Tuesday) east of Ypres. Shortly after midday the enemy commenced a bombardment of our positions about Hooge and also some distance north, and at the same time bombarded to the south of Hooge and in the neighborhood of the Ypres-Comines Railway and Canal.

"Late in the afternoon the enemy exploded a series of mines at various points on a 2000-yard front north of Hooge. This was followed by unsuccessful infantry attacks between Hooge and the Ypres-Comines Canal.

"At Hooge and immediately north the enemy penetrated our front trenches after the explosion of mines.

"Fighting continues in this area, but our general line is still intact. Attacks were also made further north, but did not succeed.

Entered German Trenches.

"North of Roclin Court we exploded a defensive mine, doing material damage to the enemy's galleries. Last night small bodies of our troops entered German trenches at three points near La Boisselle, Authuile and Hamet, respectively.

"At each place casualties were inflicted on the German garrisons and their shelters were bombed and trenches damaged. In the Authuile raid a border regiment captured 16 prisoners, in addition to inflicting other damage."

FRENCH REPULSE ATTACK ON VAUX

Paris Says Enemy Was Forced to Retire With Heavy Losses.

PARIS, via London, June 7.—The repulse of a powerful German attack on Fort Vaux, on the Verdun line, with heavy losses to the attackers, is announced in an official statement issued by the War Office today. Violent bombardment of the fort is still being carried out by the Germans.

The attack on Fort Vaux started at 8 o'clock last night and was promptly checked by the fire of the French machine guns. It is announced that the Germans retreated in disorder, abandoning many dead. At Hill 304 an artillery duel is in progress and also at the Cuarettes Wood. Two German patrols which tried to cross the river Aisne west of Soissons were dispersed.

BRITISH RULE ON SEA SHATTERED, KAISER DECLARES

Tells Sailors Their Success at Jutland Adds New Chapter to History of World.

BERLIN, via London, June 7.—In the complete account of Emperor's speech to the sailors of the fleet at Wilhelmshaven yesterday, which was published here today, the Emperor is quoted as saying that the great naval battle off Jutland has destroyed Great Britain's supremacy of the sea.

"When the great war came," the Emperor said, "envious enemies suddenly attacked the Fatherland. The army, by desperate fighting against superior foes, slowly conquered them one after another. But the fleet waited in vain for a real fight. In numerous individual encounters the navy clearly demonstrated its heroic spirit, but was forced to wait month after month for a general battle.

"Repeated efforts were made to bring the enemy out, but they proved fruitless until the day finally came last week when the gigantic fleet of Albion, ruler of the seas since Trafalgar was fought, 100 years ago, appeared in the open surrounded with a nimbus. Instantly our fleet engaged this superior British armada, and with what result? The English fleet was beaten. The first big blow was dealt the English fleet, whose tyrannical supremacy was shattered.

"The news electrified the world and caused unprecedented jubilation everywhere that German hearts beat. Your success in the North Sea fight means that you have added a new chapter to the history of the world. God Almighty steeled your arms and gave you clear eyes to accomplish this.

"I, standing here today as your supreme war lord, thank you from the bottom of my heart. As the representative of the Fatherland, I thank you and in the name of my army I bring you its greeting because you have done your duty unselfishly and only with the one thought that the enemy must be beaten.

"At a time when the enemy is slowly being crushed before Verdun, and when our allies have driven the Italians from mountain to mountain, you add new glories to our cause. The world was prepared for everything, but not for the victory of the German fleet over the English. The start which you have made will cause fear to creep into the bones of the enemy. What you have done, you did for the Fatherland, that in the future it may have freedom of the seas for its commerce. Therefore I ask you to join me in three cheers for our dearly beloved Fatherland."

Italians Repulse Several Heavy Attacks of Austrians.

ROME, via London, June 6.—The following official communication was issued today:

"In the Adige Valley Sunday night we repulsed a surprise attack in the upper Val d'Arsa and Pasubio sectors. Yesterday, after intense artillery preparations, enemy columns were thrown back in disorder.

"On the front of the Posina—Astico Sunday night the enemy again launched great masses of infantry between Monte Giove and Monte Brazone, but was completely repulsed. The same night we succeeded in gaining ground on the western slopes of Monte Cengio.

"On the Asiago plateau Sunday night and Monday morning the enemy was also repulsed. On the upper Cordevole an enemy column on the march from Pralongia toward Sief was dispersed."

GERMANS INSIST WARSPITE WAS SUNK IN SEA FIGHT

New Dispatch Says British Dreadnought Was Sent to Bottom by Battleship Koenig.

BERLIN, by wireless to Sayville, N. Y., June 7.—The assertion that the British dreadnought Warspite was sunk in the North Sea battle last week is again made, notwithstanding British denials, in dispatches from Diehl to the Overseas News Agency.

"These dispatches state that the Warspite was sunk during the day battle by the German battleship Koenig," the news agency says. "It was observed from the Koenig that the Warspite had been damaged badly. Then there came a great explosion and the Warspite sank rapidly."

23 WOMEN TO SIT IN DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION HERE

14 Are Delegates and 9 Alternates—Will Come From 8 of 11 Suffrage States.

Twenty-three women will have seats as delegates or alternates in the Democratic convention which will meet next Wednesday in the Coliseum.

They will be but a sprinkling among the delegates, however, as there are to be 1092 delegates and as many alternates seated on the arena floor.

Of the women, 14 are delegates and will cast their ballots in presidential and vice presidential nominations, as well as in the approval of the Democratic platform. Nine are alternates.

Two of the women delegates, Mrs. W. A. Harris of Lawrence, Kan., and Alva B. Adams of Pueblo, Colo., are delegates-at-large from their states.

Delegates From Eight States.

Eight of the 11 states which have granted full suffrage to women are sending women to the covention. The lists of delegates from Oregon, Nevada and Montana—equal suffrage States—do not contain names of women delegates.

The suffrage States sending women delegates are California, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Washington, California, Arizona and Kansas. The women delegates from these States, whose names have been received at convention headquarters here, are as follows:

Colorado—Alva B. Adams, Pueblo, delegate-at-large; Nancy Kirkland, Denver, delegate.

Wyoming—Mrs. T. S. Taliaferro, Rock Springs, and Mrs. Mary G. Bellamy, Laramie, alternates.

Arizona—Mrs. H. E. Fletcher, Hereford, alternate.

Kansas—Mrs. W. A. Harris of Lawrence, widow of former United States Senator Harris of Kansas, delegate-at-large; Mrs. Mattie B. Hale, La Crosse, alternate; Mrs. J. E. Drennan, Arkansas City, alternate, and Mrs. R. J. Ehman, Canton, alternate.

California—Mrs. Nora F. Rasmussem, San Francisco, delegate; Miss Mary E. Foy, Pasadena, delegate; Mrs. W. C. Tyler, Los Angeles, delegate; Mrs. Bird E. Hoddy, El Centra, delegate; Mrs. Georgia C. Ormsby, Oakland, alternate; Mrs. Virginia M. Spinks, Berkeley, alternate, and Cora F. Foy, Pasadena, alternate.

Idaho—Tesera M. Graham, Coeur d'Alene, delegate, with one-half vote.

Utah—Mrs. B. T. Pyper, Salt Lake City, and Mrs. H. T. Hayward, Salt Lake City, delegates, with one-half vote each.

Women to Vote in 12 States.

Women in 12 states—one-fourth the total number in the Union—will vote in the presidential election this year. Besides the 11 states already mentioned, in which women have full suffrage, Illinois has granted to women the right to vote in presidential elections.

Suffragists assert that there are 4,000,000 women in these 12 states who are eligible to vote in the presidential election. At the last presidential election the total popular vote was 15,036,542, of which Wilson received 6,293,019, Taft 3,484,956, and Roosevelt 4,119,507.

PRISONER BREAKS AWAY FROM POLICEMAN IN STATION, FLEES

Is Captured After Chase in Which Shots Are Fired by Pursuers.

A belated police report that reached headquarters last night told how a prisoner slipped away from policemen in the Angelica Street Station Sunday night. The report was delayed, the police say, to give Capt. O'Malley an opportunity to investigate the circumstances of the escape.

Andrew Eberhardt, 32 years old, of 6108 Hall street had been arrested on complaint of his mother, who told the police he had threatened to slap her. He was being booked at the police station when he slipped away from the arresting patrolman, Frank L. Brown, and ran into the street.

Several policemen pursued Eberhardt through alleys and across lots. They fired their pistols in an effort to frighten him into halting, but he continued running, the police say, until he stumbled at Ninth street and Newhoues avenue.

He was then taken to the city hospital to be treated for scalp wounds and was held a prisoner there until yesterday, when he was sent to police court and fined $25.

BULGARIANS WILL NOT MOLEST FORCES OF ALLIES IN GREECE

Gen. Jekoff Says If Greeks Can Stand Anglo-French Army He Can.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS OF THE BULGARIAN ARMY AT KUESTENDIT, May 25.—Gen. Nicoalai Jekoff, Commander in Chief of the Bulgarian army, intimated today to a correspondent of the Associated Press that he had no intention of engaging in an offensive campaign against the allies in Greece. "If the Greek Government," he said, "can stand the Anglo-French forces on its territory I am sure we can."

The Bulgarian officers are unanimous in their opinion that the Anglo-French forces in Saloniki are entirely inadequate to undertake a successful offensive. Some of them went so far as to say that the allies would need 2,000,000 to reconquer Servia.

MIDWIFE ARRESTED LAST NIGHT

Doctors Say Mrs. Mary Vogt, 23, Had Undergone Operation.

Mrs. Mary Brinkmann, a midwife, 65 years old, of 4746 South Broadway, was arrested last night in connection with a police investigation into the death Monday night of Mrs. Mary Vogt, 23 years old, of 7709 Water street.

Doctors who attended Mrs. Vogt said she died from the effects of an illegal operation. Her husband, Arthur Vogt, told the police she informed him on May 29 that a midwife had performed an operation on her. He said he had consented to having the operation done. Mrs. Brinkmann denied she performed the operation. She furnished a common-law bond for her appearance at the Coroner's office.

FORMER EDWARDSVILLE MAN, PIANIST, KILLED AT VERDUN

Adolph Mueller's Death Reported to Relatives by Brother, Also in German Army.

Edwardsville relatives yesterday received word that Adolph Mueller, a former resident of the city who later removed to New York and became well known as a pianist, was killed at Verdun last month.

The word came from his brother, Otto Mueller of Philadelphia, who has for years spent his summers in Edwardsville. This summer Otto Mueller will be doing patrol duty at the Koenigsberg barracks in East Prussia. He is the solo violinist of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, but has been detained in Germany since the outbreak of the war. He went to Europe to attend a musicians' convention. Because he did not have his final naturalization papers he was construed to be a German citizen and has been detained abroad ever since.

His wife is expected tomorrow in Edwardsville where, according to the family custom, she will spend the summer months.

St. Louis Dairy Co's Guaranteed Ice Cream

Guaranteed State and Federal Butterfat Standard

So much more delicious than ordinary ice creams because it contains so much more cream butterfat—made strictly according to the high butterfat standards set by the State and Federal Governments.

Buy ice cream oftener

Ice cream not only satisfies the children's constant desire for some "goody," but it gives them the rich, nourishing food that their growing bodies need. Any doctor will tell you that good ice cream is an excellent food for children as well as grown-ups. Eat more ice cream and eat it oftener!

Every gallon of cream that goes into the making of St. Louis Dairy Company's ice cream is tested by expert analysts to make certain that the finished ice cream will contain the full legal percentage of butterfat. J. E. ROOSEVELT'S WIFE SAYS HE BEAT HER ON HONEYMOON

Declares Colonel's First Cousin Was "More Like Wild Beast Than White Man."

TESTIFIES HE CHOKED HER

His Brother to Be Witness for Plaintiff in Action for Separation.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The trial of Mrs. Edith H. Roosevelt's suit for separation from John Ellis Roosevelt, a first cousin of the Colonel, who bears a rather distinct likeness to him, began yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Clark. Mrs. Roosevelt charges cruelty and in her testimony yesterday said that her husband's actions on their honeymoon in Europe were "more like those of a wild beast than of a white man."

A few months ago Roosevelt sued in Kings County to annul the marriage, alleging that Mrs. Roosevelt was a wife in name only. He lost the suit.

Mrs. Roosevelt was the only witness yesterday. She is slender, much younger than her husband, and in figure at least is as attractive as her stepdaughters, Pansy and Jean, who sat in the court room.

Says He Maltreated Her.

Three times, she swore, her husband maltreated her—twice while they were on their foreign honeymoon trip and once at their country home at Sayville, L. I.

After telling of their marriage in Washington, D. C., Jan. 6, 1914, Mrs. Roosevelt said they sailed for Egypt. Six weeks later they reached Naples.

"There the first serious quarrel occurred," she said. "One evening I retired early, and Mr. Roosevelt came to my room and awakened me." She said that when she protested "he flew into a rage and tried to choke me to death."

"He was a wild beast," she testified. "I had to call for help before he desisted. He had both hands upon my throat and called me all manner of abusive names. Next day I showed the marks upon my neck to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Meredith of Detroit, who were friends and fellow voyagers with us. They showed plainly when I wore an evening gown."

There was another quarrel, the wife testified, after the party had reached London. The Roosevelts and the Merediths went to the theater, then to a supper. Upon their return home Mrs. Roosevelt asked her husband, she testified, why he had been moody during the evening.

Flew Into a Rage.

"Then he flew into a rage again," she said. "He followed me into my room and while I was taking off my gown grabbed me by the throat, threw me down upon the bed and threatened to break every bone in my body.

"I called Mr. and Mrs. Meredith's room by telephone and they came to my apartment. By that time my gown had been torn off my shoulders and was hanging down my back. Again I showed the marks of Mr. Roosevelt's fingers to the Merediths."

The third quarrel took place at the Roosevelt country home at Sayville, the wife testified. This was in October last. There had been a dispute over their plans for the winter, Roosevelt wishing her to go with him on a motor trip, and she refusing because she considered him an unsafe, reckless driver.

"His manner of speaking to me was objectionable and violent, and his words were abusive and profane," she said. "His own brother, Robert B. Roosevelt, who married my sister, was present, and he told my husband he was ashamed to call him brother because of the language he used in the presence of ladies."

Did Not Speak for Weeks.

For six weeks, then, Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt did not speak to each other, except formally, at meals, in the presence of the servants, the witness said. Then she came to New York and brought suit against him, but his annulment suit was given precedence by a court decision.

The reading of depositions by Mr. and Mrs. Meredith of Detroit, which confirmed Mrs. Roosevelt's stories of the attacks in Naples and London, concluded the day's session.

Today Robert B. Roosevelt is to take the stand in his sister-in-law's behalf.

Roosevelt's two daughters by a previous marriage, Jean and Pansy, will testify on their father's side.

L. W. HILL TO FOLLOW HIS FATHER'S POLICY TO THE LETTER

Announcement Comes Simultaneously with Application of Family to Have Him Made Administrator.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 7.—A petition asking the appointment of Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway Co., as administrator of the estate of his father, James J. Hill, who died here a week ago, was filed in the County Probate Court late yesterday.

The three sons, the six daughters and the widow all signed the petition, which states that Hill left no will and places the value of the estate at $10,000,000. This value is given as a formality until the administrator can make a complete appraisal.

The estate has been variously estimated at from $150,000,000 to $250,000,000.

Louis W. Hill announces that he will carry out his father's policy "to the letter."

INTERNED GERMANS SOLICIT GIFTS FOR SPORTS CARNIVAL

Letters Cause Indignation in England —Putting to Work of Enemy Aliens Considered.

LONDON, June 7.—Germans held in the prison camp at Islington have sent to a number of firms in this city circular letters asking for donations of prizes for a "grand sports carnival." The letter, translated into English says:

"We herewith take the libery to inform you that we have arranged for a competition in sports, with the object of bringing some change into the monotony of our camp life. In order to enable us to carry through our arrangements successfully we unfortunately depend to a great extent on assistance outside the circle of our fellow sufferers."

The appeal caused intense indignation on the part of those to whom it came, in view of the fact that the Government is considering whether interned enemy aliens shall be made to work, while the Germans referred to are arranging to lay and terming themselves "sufferers."

Didn't Know Wife's Age After 32 Years.

LONDON, June 5.—Testifying at an inquest over his wife's body at Bethnal-green, the husband said that, although they were married for 32 years, he did not know her age.

105 Girls in Graduating Class.

COLUMBUS, Miss., June 4.—The State Industrial Institute and College in this city will on Monday confer diplomas upon 105 young women, the largest class in the history of the institution. The address will be delivered by the Hon. [illegible] P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education.

SMALLEST "MOONSHINE" STILL HAS ONE GALLON CAPACITY

Two Tin Cans, Lard Bucket and Iron Pipe, Constitute Its Parts.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 7.—A one-gallon still, made of two ordinary tin cans, a 50-pound lard bucket and three feet of iron pipe, is a novelty in the "moonshine" industry that internal revenue officers have put on exhibition at their headquarters in this city.

"I have 'pulled' many and many different kinds of distilleries," said Lieut. Oliver of the raiding force, "but that is the most unusual as well as the smallest I have ever seen."

The capture, which included 15 gallons of "blockade corn," was made on the place of Will Carlyle, a few miles out, about 9 o'clock at night, after the officers had received a tip that Carlyle was turning out liquor. The outfit was discovered only after long search in a hut on the outer edge of the Carlyle place.

CLUB MANAGER HELD FOR HAVING CADDIES UNDER 14

William Mertz of St. Clair County (Ill.) Organization Declares Golfers Hire Youngsters.

William Mertz, manager of the St. Clair County Country Club, midway between East St. Louis and Belleville, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a warrant charging him with permitting boys less than 14 years old to serve as caddies on the golf links.

The warrant was sworn out by Thomas Lawless, State Factory Inspector, who alleges that on May 26 last Herbert Hale acted as caddie at the club. In the warrant caddying is described as a gainful occupation within the meaning of the law.

Players Pay Caddies.

Mertz's defense is that the club does not pay caddies, and that their compensation is in the nature of tips given to them by the golfers. The penalty for employing under-age labor is a fine of $1 to $25 for each offense.

Justice Healy, who issued the warrant, today said that Alexander Gander, principal of the New Era public school, near the club, told him Mertz had been in the habit of "sneaking around the school" at the recess periods and inducing pupils to play "hookey" and go to the club to act as caddies. Gander said he objected to this and went to the club to protest. There, he said, he met Mertz, who told him that if he did not get off the club grounds he would be thrown off.

Hired by Golfers.

Mertz today denied to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he had induced school pupils to play truant and that he had threatened to eject Gander. He said he knew some of the boys ran away from school to act as caddies for club members, but he had no authority to stop this practice, as the boys were hired by the golfers.

E. C. Kramer appeared as counsel for Mertz when he had his preliminary hearing yesterday. Judge Kramer is a member of the club. He said he himself was a golfer and he considered it an outrage to arrest Mertz because boys ran away from school to act as caddies.

State's Attorney Webb retorted that the charge was serious, and he advised Kramer not to make any statements which would incriminate any other members of the club. Mertz's trial is set for next Tuesday.

IDA DAMON'S MARRIAGE SHOWS HER REAL SURNAME IS 'DAMMAN'

Winner of $10,000 Movie Prize Explains That Family Had Been Using "Damon" for Long Time.

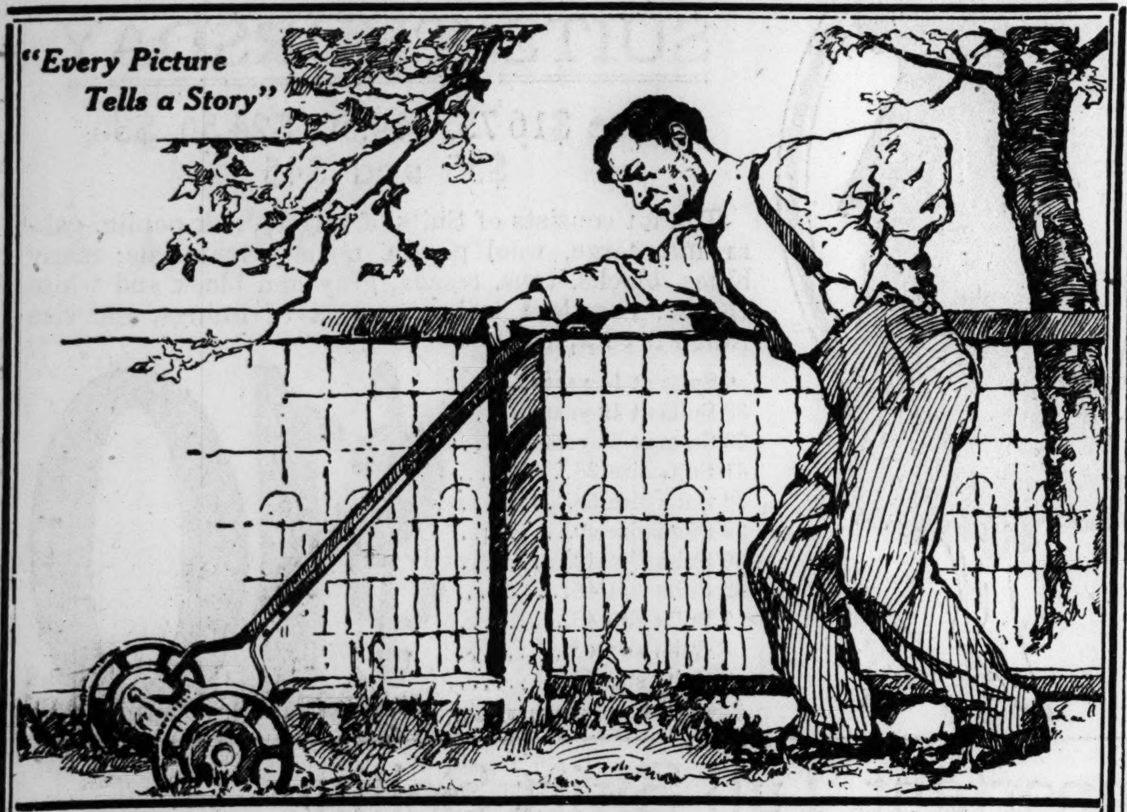
Miss Ida Damon, who more than a year ago won $10,000 for writing the most acceptable concluding chapter for a moving picture serial, was married yesterday as Miss Ida Damman to J. Arthur Painter, a railway mail clerk of Chicago. That she gave her name as Damman in the application for the license was explained by her by the statement that it was her real family name, while the name Damon was a form the family had been using.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. T. Bahnson, pastor of the Evangelical Trinity Church, Neosho and Michigan avenues. The bridegroom was one of 1742 men who wrote to Miss Damon afer newspapers printed accounts of her winning the prize.

Painter has had the postal service transfer him to St. Louis and he and his bride will live at 4628 Alaska avenue, a home which Miss Damon purchased with part of her prize money for her parents, who will continue to live with her.

Woman Robbed at Union Station.

Miss Frances Freeland of Godfrey, Ill., reported to the police last night that she was robbed of a handbag and purse containing $7 and a railroad ticket to Bedford, Ind., at Union Station.



"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Every Little Task a Painful Effort

THIS time of the year there are many odd jobs about the home that every well man likes to do. But no man or woman with a "bad back" enjoys doing anything. Every little task is a painful effort. Now there's surely something wrong when every day brings morning lameness, sharp pains when bending or lifting and a dull, tired state. Likely it's kidney weakness. Don't neglect it. It's easily corrected at first, but delay may encourage gravel, dropsy, crippling rheumatism or dangerous Bright's disease. If your back aches and the kidneys are disordered, get Doan's Kidney Pills. This is a successful remedy for weak kidneys, recommended so strongly by people you know, that you can use it with real confidence.

These Are All St. Louis Cases

N. Vandeventer Avenue	Prairie Avenue	Garfield Avenue
J. B. Campbell, proprietor of barber shop, 1817 N. Vandeventer avenue, says: "I think the main cause of my kidney trouble is being on my feet so much. I am a barber and have long hours, and at times I noticed sharp, shooting pains through my back which hindered me in stooping. Just as soon as I began using Doan's Kidney Pills improvement followed. The last time I took Doan's Kidney Pills was a year ago, and since then I have been free from kidney trouble."	Mrs. A. Lyne, 1807 Prairie avenue, says: "I had been having severe pains through the small of my back. I had to give up washing; in fact, couldn't stoop without these pains coming on. My kidneys annoyed me greatly. I thought it best to attend to the trouble and not let it go any further, so I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me at once, and just one box cured me. I have never had any return symptoms of kidney complaint."	Carl Rietzke, 3861 Garfield avenue, says: "My back gave me a lot of trouble. I couldn't stoop or straighten up or move without feeling miserable. The most troublesome symptom was rheumatic pains in my left leg, and for several days I went about with a stick for support. I was in the hospital for about a week, and I couldn't see that I was being helped. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills ended the trouble, and since then I have been feeling fine."
Sullivan Avenue	Belle Glade Avenue	Grattan Street
Mrs. Amelia Heidemann, 1923 Sullivan avenue, says: "Kidney complaint and backache had bothered me for five or six years. It was not constant but came on by spells. Sometimes I couldn't work, as I suffered so much pain in my back. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills completely cured the backache and corrected all the trouble."	Paul Newman, 2530 Belle Glade avenue, says: "At times I suffered from weak kidneys and bladder. My back became stiff and lame, and there were times when I got dizzy. I have a lot of standing to do in damp places, and I blame this for bringing on the trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills have never failed to help me, and of late I haven't been bothered."	Mrs. Freda Burow, 1429 Grattan street, says: "It was about two years ago that I was in quite a bad way with kidney trouble. I was caused great annoyance by the action of my kidneys. My back ached awfully both day and night. My housework was hard to do. The least effort was the cause of great suffering. After a short use of Doan's Kidney Pills I became strong and well and all the symptoms disappeared."

$2000 NEEDED TO PAY PREPAREDNESS PARADE EXPENSES

Security League Has Incurred $12,000 Indebtedness in Seven Months.

Many business men marched in last Saturday's preparedness parade, but only a few have helped to pay the bills, it was learned today from George M. Brown, president of the National Security League.

Brown told a reporter that the expense of the parade to the Security League was about $2000, and that all the expenses attending the local organization in the seven months since it began its preparedness campaign here, had been nearly $12,000.

"Of this amount," Brown said, "about one-half came to us in dues from the 1500 members of the league, and the other half has been subscribed by a small number who believed this work should be pushed. These few men have underwritten the league's expense account, and have made possible, in this way, the continuance of its work up to this time.

"The league does not receive a penny of its income, nor has it ever received money from munition makers or from persons who would benefit financially by preparedness. Instead, its support comes from men who realize, as I do, that preparedness will mean an addition to the income tax we will have to pay.

"The Chicago parade was arranged as quickly as ours, and $25,000 was raised to pay for it. Our appeal for funds met no such response.

"Some men who have spoken most enthusiastically of the parade, and who are big business men, have not contributed to the fund to pay for it. The Mayors' conference cost the league about $3000. The parade cost about $2000, and other expenses of the league have brought the total to about $12,000. We will be very glad to receive at the office, 403 La Salle Building, the application for membership of anyone who wants to contribute work and financial support to the cause of preparedness. We hope that some of those who have been strong in vocal support will come forward and help finance the movement."

RUSSIA PLANS TO BUILD 25,000 MILES OF RAILROAD

Opportunities for American Capital and Construction Companies Predicted.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The American-Russian Chamber of Commerce has received information, it was announced today, that members of the Russian Cabinet decided after a conference in Petrograd to make preparations for the construction of 25,000 miles of railroads within Russia within five years. The Russian Ministers of Agriculture, Industry, Commerce, Finance and War participated in the conference, according to this information.

The American-Russian Chamber of Commerce expressed the belief that there were opportunities for American financiers and construction companies to share in Russian railroad construction after the war.

MONUMENT TO KENTUCKY'S FIRST RAILROAD DEDICATED

LEXINGTON, Ky., June ..—Dedication of a monument to the first railroad built in this State was a feature of the twenty-fifth anniversary exercises of the College of Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, University of Kentucky.

The original railroad, between this city and Frankfort, was constructed by citizens of Lexington and farmers living along the route between 1831 and 1835. The cars were drawn by horses.

The monument is composed in part of portions of the railroad, the old stone sills being set up just as they were found in the L. & N. Railroad yards.

All a Benefit to Mankind

Science, invention, discovery, have done much for mankind in the last century. More wealth, improved living conditions, and higher civilization have resulted. With all the great strides made, health and longer life—the greatest needs of all—seem to have been slighted. Improvements in this direction have not kept pace with the added strenuosity of the age. Science has contributed one discovery which has endured the test of time during the generation—

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

For nearly 60 years Duffy's has been made for medicinal purposes. During all these years thousands of genuine facts have been gathered to prove its positive medicinal value. Its beneficiaries include every walk of life, from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf. These people have highly praised Duffy's as a pure tonic stimulant to assist nature in its important duties of maintaining health and overcoming illness.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey stands supreme because of its absolute purity. The elimination of any possible distasteful and foreign by-product leaves an article of supreme wholesomeness—possessing a delightful fine malty flavor, yet with all the necessary and stimulating properties ever present. Once it is tried—seldom is anything found to take the place of Duffy's—its friends are lasting. It serves the requirements of the medical profession for an excellent stimulant. The laity also finds Duffy's Malt Whiskey a household necessity which no medicine cabinet should lack in emergency.

Taken in teaspoon doses in water or milk before meals and on retiring, Duffy's gently stimulates the stomach to healthy action, improving the digestion and assimilation of food, and in this way enriches the blood and brings strength and vigor to the system.

"Get Duffy's and Keep Well."
Sold in sealed bottles only. Beware of imitations.

GOLTRA SAYS THIS IS BETTER OF TWO CONVENTION CITIES

Arrangements Here Will Outdo Those in Chicago, He Declares.

BIGGER SEATING CAPACITY

Coliseum Here Also Has Four Committee Rooms, Compared With Two There.

Edward F. Goltra, Democratic National Committeeman from Missouri and member of the National Committee's subcommittee on convention arrangements, returned from Chicago today confident that St. Louis is going to outdo Chicago as a convention city in every respect. He went to Chicago to view the arrangements made at the Chicago Coliseum and hotels to care for the Republican national convention and he declares that Chicago suffers by comparison with St. Louis.

In the first place, he cays, the Chicago Coliseum has only two committee rooms, which will make it necessary for some convention committees to have quarters at hotels. The St. Louis Coliseum has four committee rooms and will be abel to house all the convention committees.

The spectators will be better off here, too, Goltra thinks. The additional seats being constructed will give the St. Louis Coliseum a total seating capacity of not less than 12,500, and probably as high as 14,000, he said. Chicago's maximum seating capacity is 12,600.

In the matter of decorations, Goltra expects St. Louis to far outdo Chicago. He found the weather very disagreeable there, and all outdoor decorations looking "mighty seedy."

The Chicago convention has 985 delegates and an equal number of alternates. St. Louis will have 1092 delegates and the same number of alternates. Contributors to the Chicago convention fund got 2200 seats, Goltra said, which is only 200 more than will be distributed to St. Louis contributors.

Goltra said all arrangements for the Democratic convention, including the carpenter work on the Coliseum, will be completed before next Wednesday. Edward Langan said this morning that the 5000 chairs he has furnished for the Forest Park Shakspearean performances and which he has promised to place in the Coliseum, will be in place at 10 a. m. next Wednesday.

Goltra said he felt certain that unless the Republicans at Chicago nominate Roosevelt or some man approved by him, the Progressives will nominate the Colonel and there will again be three tickets.

Policeman Guards Convention Tickets at Jefferson Hotel.

The Committee on Arrangements of the Democratic National Committee today had a policeman placed on guard in front of room 101 in the Jefferson Hotel, where the convention tickets are locked in a safe. This precaution was taken because the room is on the second floor near a fire escape leading into an alleyway, and it was feared that some persons desperately determined to get into the convention might ascend the iron ladder and rifle the safe when the clerks sorting the tickets were out of the room.

A police guard will be kept until Saturday morning, when the tickets will be distributed to those entitled to them. There will be about 12,500 seats available for each session of the convention, which includes the extra gallery being installed, which will seat about 2700 persons.

William F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, will depart tonight for Chicago to attend the Republican and Progressive conventions. He is expected back Friday night or Saturday morning.

PEPPER WEIGHING 420 TONS IS ON WAY TO ST. LOUIS

Special Train of 28 Cars Also Has 9,580,000 Nutmegs on Board.

Four hundred and twenty tons of pepper, 9,580,000 nutmegs, 60 tons of cinnamon and 40 tons of tapioca will arrive in St. Louis, probably Friday, in 28 freight cars, making up a special train over the Santa Fe Railroad. This is said by persons familiar with national dealing in spices to be the largest single shipment ever made in this country, and marks St. Louis as being the head of the spice distributing trade in America.

This enormous shipment of spices is not due to any unusual demand. Prices are quoted as being not quite up to the average market, but the shipment indicates that because of the war, the supremacy of New York as the spice distributing center of the country has passed to St. Louis.

Importers have found that the Eastern ports are clogged with shipments of grain and war supplies so instead of having the importations of spices from Singapore and Batavia, Java, the two great ports of export, come by the usual route through the Suez Canal and via Liverpool, the shipments are now being made in small vessels directly from the Orient to San Francisco. The Southwest Selling Co., with offices in the Pierce Building, representing W. R. Grace & Co. of San Francisco, is now acting as the distributing agent.

The record-breaking train load of spices would have consisted of 30 cars instead of 28 but for the fact that two carloads of pepper were destroyed in a fire upon a pier in San Francisco, just as they were being prepared for shipment.

F. J. Bonskowski, manager of the Southwestern Selling Co., said today that the nutmeg shipment means practically a six months' supply for the entire nation. He said that spice trade statistics indicate that each family uses about two nutmegs each year. Figuring at the ratio of five persons to a family the present shipment will care for the demands of 47,900,000 persons for one year.

WOMAN'S ALIMONY ATTACHED

August Miller, a confectioner of Grafton, Ill., obtained an attachment on the alimony money, which was ordered paid by Capt. W. D. Fluent to his wife by the Alton City Court.

Miller claims that when the wedding feast was held in 1913 the refreshments were furnished at the request of Mrs. Fluent, then Mrs. Hattie Dorworth, and that she failed to pay for them. Miller's bill is $31.13.

When Miller saw that Fluent was directed to pay over $130 alimony to his wife by Saturday, he hurried to Alton to get out the attachment.

DR. J. WILLIAM WHITE WILLS ANNUITY TO FORMER CONVICT

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—The will of Dr. J. William White, distinguished surgeon, intimate friend of Theodore Roosevelt, and a leader in the student life of the University of Pennsylvania, of which he was a trustee, was admitted to probate here. The value of the estate is given as $200,000 and upward, but it is believed it will reach $1,000,000.

The will provides money each year for a convict discharged from the Eastern penitentiary "who is most likely to be helped to permanently honest ways," and a similar gift to a discharged patient of the Philadelphia Hospital to aid him in earning "a decent livelihood."

Drs. Williams J. Mayo and Charles Mayo of Rochester, N. Y., are given $10,000 in appreciation of their services in prolonging the life of Dr. White and in recognition of their "unceasing and unselfish labors for the good of humanity."

"AS YOU LIKE IT," TWICE POSTPONED, TO OPEN TONIGHT

Clear Skies and Promise of Higher Temperature Indicate Favorable Condition.

Rosalind and her Orlando, Touchstone and his Audrey, and the rest of their merry crew will play "As You Like It" on the new open air stage in central Forest Park tonight, as the opening of the theater and of the St. Louis observation of the three hundredth anniversary of William Shakspeare's death.

This morning's weather was fair, which was the main thing, and gave promise of being warmer, which is a thing to be desired, so there was no fear of a third postponement, like those of Monday night and last night. The production is now scheduled to continue through next Monday night. The plan of another night's extension was not feasible because of a demand for the chairs for the use of the Democratic national convention and because of the "Siegfried" production by members of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Company at Robison Field.

Tickets for last night are exchangeable at the ticket office of the Pageant Drama Association, 303 North Seventh street, for tickets at any performance. Tickets for Monday night will be good for the same seats next Monday night, or can be exchanged for seats on some night before that.

Margaret Anglin, Robert Mantell, Frederick Lewis and Genevieve Hamper (Mrs. Mantell) are leading members of the professional cast which will play Shakspeare's comedy of the Forest of Arden. The amateur folk-dancing cast will be the same that would have appeared Monday night, if a performance had been given then. Another cast, alternating with the first, is scheduled for tomorrow night. Civic night, which was to be last night, will be Saturday. The only matinee will be at 3 p. m. Saturday. The night performances begin at 8, the music starting at 7:45 o'clock.

JITNEY OPERATORS OPPOSING INDEMNITY BOND ORDINANCE

New Orleans Association Fails to Get Injunction, but Continues Fight.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June .—Judge Rufus E. Foster of the United States District Court has ruled against jitney operators in their action to obtain an injunction restraining city authorities from enforcing the ordinance requiring each to give an indemnity bond for $500 for protection of persons who may be injured by their cars.

Counsel for the jitney people announce that the fight will be continued, which is interpreted to mean that it will be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The Jitney Protective Association has begun a campaign of education. Behind a band, a wagon paraded, bearing a sign saying:

"Jitneys are the safest to ride in. Prepare to be packed in the street cars. In the past year the jitneys killed two persons which, according to police records, the jitneys were not responsible for The street cars have killed 26 and private automobiles, trucks and other vehicles have killed 23. Which class of vehicles need regulation most?"

According to the figures of the Jitney Protective Association, 9000 people use the jitneys daily. There are about 300 automobiles which have been operated as jitneys and each car makes an average of $8 for a 12-hour day.

"We cannot tell by analysis with certainty that a water is or is not actually infected with disease germs. How to Heal Skin Diseases

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes and similar itching, burning skin troubles.

At any reliable druggist's get a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap. These are not at all expensive. With the Resinol Soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the Resinol Ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again. Sample free, Dept. 50-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

156 WERE KILLED IN FIVE STATES BY TORNADO MONDAY

Missouri Reports 30 Dead, Arkansas 76, Mississippi 15, Tennessee 4, Illinois 1.

Early today the deaths of 156 persons in Arkansas, Missouri, Mississippi, Tennessee and Illinois in Monday's tornadoes are reported, with a number of others missing and believed to be dead and several hundred injured.

Only 45 survivors have been accounted for in checking up the passenger list and crew of the Mississippi River packet Eleonore, which overturned 20 miles above Memphis, Tenn., when struck by the storm. Thirty persons, mostly negro deck hands, are believed to have been drowned.

Forty persons are reported killed or injured near Cato, Ark.

In the district around Poplar Bluff, Mo., 30 persons are reported dead.

Arkansas suffered the greatest number of deaths, 76 persons having been killed there. Of these, 57 were white and 19 were negroes. Missouri reports 30 dead, Mississippi 15, Tennessee 4 and Illinois 1. Property damage is large.

The Arkansas casualties were from almost every section of the state, those in Missouri in the southwestern section and those in Mississippi in the central part.

The death in Illinois by the tornado was that of Pansy Edmundson, 10 years old, at McClure.

Following is the incomplete list of the dead in Missouri:

Morehouse—Jesse Nelson, W. A. Whitaker, Mrs. E. Price, Mrs. W. A. Price and her 6-year-old daughter.

SOCIETY

TWO engagements of more than passing interest are being announced this afternoon. The girls are Misses Hazel and Myrtle Joerder, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Joerder of 5536 Cates avenue, one of whom will wed W. W. Brown of Cumberland, Md., the other to James Eliot Ainslie, formerly of Chicago, and now of St. Louis.

Miss Hazel's engagement will be announced by Miss Edith Souther at a luncheon at her home, 5118 Westminster place, to a number of Smith College girls, friends of hers and of the bride-elect. It will be the third Smith girl's engagement she has announced this season. Miss Myrtle's engagement will be announced at a meeting of a girls' club at her home.

Both of the prospective brides are accomplished young women. They are graduates of Mary Institute, have traveled abroad and spent one winter in Paris studying dancing and French. Since their return they have been actively interested in social service work, one teaching dancing in the playgrounds, the other giving time to civic charities.

Miss Hazel received her A. B. from Smith College, M. A., from Washington University, and was to have tried for a Ph. M., but has chosen an M. R. S. instead. The weddings will be in the early autumn. Mr. Ainslie is the son of the Rev. James Stuart Ainslie of Chicago.

The marriage of Miss Blanche Kelly to William G. Morgan will take place this evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. De Ward Morgan and Mr. Morgan in organ place, near the Hanley road and the Creve Coeur electric line. The wedding will be on the lawn under two old elms banked between with palms for a background.

The bride will wear a gown of chantilly lace trimed with frills of tulle. Her bodice and train will be of ivory tinted satin and she will carry a bouquet of lillies of the valley. She will wear a cloud veil of tulle. Miss Marie Sties will be the only bridemaid. She will wear a frock with cream-tinted net skirt, with bands of pink velvet ribbon around the bottom, and an overskirt of pale green taffeta silk. She will carry pink roses, and a large green leghorn hat with an ostrich band around the crown will finish her costume.

John Bell will be the best man. The bride has made her home with her aunt, Mrs. Morgan, for a number of years and the bridegroom is a cousin of Mr. Morgan's.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father, M. W. Kelly, and the ceremony will be performed by the Rev. A. H. Armstrong of Clayton.

The wedding gift of the bridegroom's family is a furnished bungalow in Clayton, which they will occupy upon their return from their wedding trip.

Miss Alin Bolin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Bolin of 5505 Bartmer avenue, will give a tea Saturday afternoon in honor of her guest, Miss Evelyn Pettus of Forest City, Ark.

Miss Violet Spilker of 4206 Maryland avenue has gone to New York to visit her sister, Mrs. Pearl Charlotte Henry, 540 West 122d street. During the latter part of July and in August she will visit Miss Mary Henry, who has a home in the Catskills.

Mrs. Ralph W. Friday, who has been visiting relatives at 4308 Maryland avenue for the last month, will return to her home in Pittsburg about June 12. Mrs. Friday is accompanied by her young son, James Connell Friday, who is named for his grandfather, the late James F. Connell.

BRITISH ARMY IN MOURNING FOR EARL KITCHENER

King George Orders All Officers to Wear Crepe for a Week—Flags Throughout the Country at Half-Mast in Secretary's Honor.

Premier Asquith Temporarily Takes Charge of War Office—Sir William Robertson Favorite for Place.

Kitchener's Death Causes Demand for Interning of Enemy Aliens, on Ground of Spy Activities.

LONDON, June 7.—The British army went into mourning today for its late chief. Every officer wore a band of crepe on his left arm. Throughout the country flags were at half-mast.

There was, of course, no suspension of activity having to do with the prosecution of the war and at the War Office and other governmental departments officials continued to work out details of the scheme which Earl Kitchener formulated.

Premier Asquith temporarily has taken personal charge of the War Office.

At the suggestion of the Jockey Club, the Windsor race meeting, which was to have been held this week, has been canceled on account of Earl Kitchener's death.

From allied and neutral countries, the dominions, colonies and dependencies came a flood of cablegrams expressing sympathy. In the dominions, including South Africa, legislatures adjourned as a mark of respect for the dead leader. The news was received in the South African Assembly during discussion of the estimates. Premier Botha, who was deeply affected, made an immediate announcement and moved adjournment while the members, Dutch and British, remained standing as a tribute to the man who won the Dominion for Great Britain against the forces in which many of the legislators fought.

Demand for Aliens' Internment.

Newspapers and many commercial organizations have taken up the demand for immediate internment of aliens from enemy nations on the ground that the Germans may have been advised from England of Earl Kitchener's departure and that such knowledge may have been responsible for the destruction of the Hampshire.

The Official Gazette last night contained an order placing new restrictions on passengers landing at ports in the Orkney Islands. Henceforth no person may land at such ports without specific permission of the military authorities at Kirkwall.

By the King's command the following order has been issued to the army:

"The King has learned with profound regret of the disaster whereby the Secretary of State for War has lost his life while proceeding on a special mission to the Emperor of Russia.

"Field Marshal Lord Kitchener gave 48 years of distinguished service to the state, and it is largely due to his administrative genius and unwearying energy that the country has been able to create and place in the field the armies which today are upholding the traditional glories of our empire. Lord Kitchener will be mourned by the army as a great soldier who, under conditions of unexampled difficulty, rendered supreme and devoted service both to the army and the state.

"His majesty, the King, commands the officers of the army shall wear mourning with their uniforms for the period of one week."

Was Outstanding Figure.

The news that Kitchener had been lost was the most stunning blow Great Britain has received since the war began. Kitchener was the one outstanding personality whom the people believed in as a great man, notwithstanding newspaper attacks which at one time threatened to undermine his popularity.

The Foreign Office is saddened by the loss of one of its most valued members, Hugh James O'Beirne, while Sir Frederick Donaldson and Brigadier-General Ellershaw of the Ministry of Munitions were known to be men whom the nation could little afford to lose.

The fact that the Hampshire with between 200 and 300 men had sunk generally is accepted simply as an unfortunate detail in these days when a thousand go under almost as an incident of warfare and the battle which the Canadians are waging around Ypres gets a scant column in the newspapers.

The King came from Windsor and sent for Premier Asquith, when he heard the news. The war council held a long session and speculation regarding Kitchener's successor began immediately. Among those discussed were David Lloyd George, Lord Derby and the Chief of the Imperial Staff, Sir William Robertson. Whether a military man or a civilian will take the War Office has not yet been decided, but many believe Robertson will be appointed.

Earl Kitchener met death at a moment which will insure his position in British history. He was almost the only member of the Government who, from the beginning, asserted confidently that this would be a long war—his lowest estimate was three years—and he insisted that the Government should make its plans accordingly.

The organization of the enormous new British army is well under way. The general staff under Gen. Sir William Robertson's direction, according to the general belief, has well in hand the task of working out the details which Kitchener's brains largely was instrumental in planning and launching.

There is no evidence to show whether the Hampshire was torpedoed by a submarine or struck a mine. Many ships have been passing between Russia and Great Britain over the same route since the port of Archangel was opened.

The official news was a greater surprise than it would otherwise have been because no one knew Earl Kitchener had left England. A memorial service will be held in St. Paul's.

The morning newspapers today give up their editorial space to black bordered eulogies of Kitchener. Great interest attaches to the tributes of the papers of Lord Northcliffe, which, after hailing Earl Kitchener in the early days of the war as the only man for the War Office, turned on him a year ago with bitter denunciation as being an overrated man, who had no experience except in little Asiatic border campaigns.

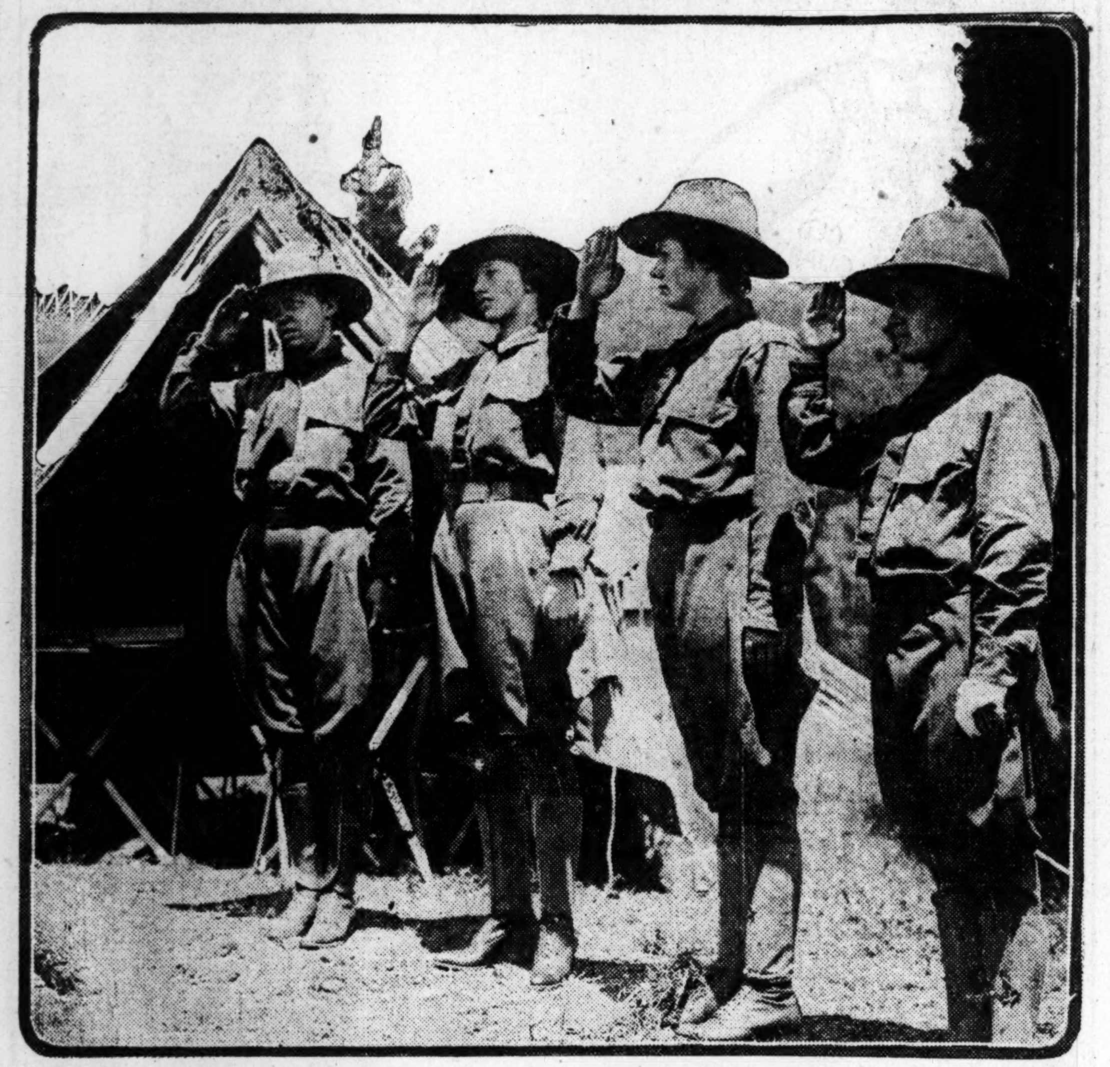
Today the Times and Daily Mail join the chorus of editorial praise of the fallen leader. The Morning Post, discussing the sinking of the Hampshire, says:

"Circumstances point at espionage or treachery and the country will suspect this the more owing to the singular freedom still allowed to enemy subjects in Great Britain."

The Daily Mail gives prominence to the following statement:

"Earl Kitchener's intention to go to Russia was known to a great many people in London on Thursday. It ought not to have been so known. The news of it may have reached the enemy. The public mind has been quick to associate his death with the work of spies. We have no sympathy with the demand which comes to us from many parts of the country that all alien enemies who are still at large, especially those in high places, be interned at once."

Society Girls, in Khaki, Training for Man's Work in War at Camp of Emergency Corps at Erskine, N. J.



—Copyright by Underwood & Underwood.

LEFT TO RIGHT—MISS MARION FRASER, MISS KATHERINE DAHLGREN, MISS FLORENCE COLGATE AND MISS DOROTHY IVES. THE NAMES OF ALL THE OFFICERS IN THE SOCIAL REGISTER, THE DIRECTOR OF THE SOCIALLY ELECT IN THE UNITED STATES.

THE Emergency Service Corps, a preparedness school for young women, is encamped at Erskine, N. J. The girls surprise visitors to the camp by their demonstrations of ability to take care of themselves in the open and to be prepared for all emergencies. Many of the most prominent members of society's younger set have joined the camp and have proved very capable in camp life arts.

The girls entertained the visitors with demonstrations of their skill and proficiency in woodland life. Miss Ives, the girl on the extreme right, was giving a demonstration of wood chopping when she cut her finger but even the accident turned to good account for immediately another camp girl showed how deftly she could apply first aid and dress the wound. The girls are taught first aid work, wig-wagging, tent pitching, wood chopping, and many of the other practices necessary to the pastmastership of emergency service work. It will be noted that they are wearing men's khaki uniforms.

W. U. FACULTY AND STUDENTS HONOR PROF. J. B. ROBINSON

Architects Also Pay Tribute to Retiring Tutor by Establishing a Scholarship.

Prof. John Beverley Robinson of the architectural school of Washington University, who retires with the close of the scholastic year, has received testimonials in the last few days, from the students and faculty, and from the architects of St. Louis. He is retiring because of ill health, and will live in Ann Arbor, Mich.

At a students' banquet at the Washington Hotel, last Wednesday night, a gold watch was presented to Prof. Robinson by the students and alumni. Last Thursday, a farewell dinner was given by the faculty at the Algonquin Golf Club. The following evening, the St. Louis Chapter, American Institute of Architects, gave a dinner in his honor, and founded a scholarship in the School of Architecture, to be called the John Beverley Robinson scholarship.

They were slightly bruised. No arrest was made.

BRITISH IRAK EXPEDITION SAID TO HAVE LOST 100,000

Austrian Newspaper Lists Casualties It Claims Were Suffered by Force.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

VIENNA, May 28.—The losses of the British Irak expeditionary force amounted, up to the end of the second week in May, to more than 100,000 men in killed, wounded and prisoners, according to the newspaper Heer Und Politik.

In a series of engagements with the Turks last November the British lost 1020 dead, according to this journal, and this number must, it says, be added, together with its proportion of wounded, to the British casualty lists published at that time admitting a loss of 25,000 men in the Irak campaign. At the first of the year 1916 the British losses were more than 40,000 officers and men killed and wounded in action or dead of disease, according to this paper's figures.

The battle of Menlahie, late in January, cost the British 3000 men and approximately 11,500 wounded, on authority of Turkish reports, and a few days before this the British are declared to have had losses of about 3500 at Sheik Said. This series of engagements is conservatively estimated here to have cost the British Irak forces about 20,000 men.

At Felahie, early in March, the British left on the battlefield, according to the Turkish official communique, nearly 5000 dead, and in the attacks made by the Turks upon British forces in the same vicinity in April the British lost nearly 10,000 killed and wounded, it is claimed.

If to all these figures are added the prisoners of Kut-el-Amara, the total estimate of 100,000 in British losses is passed.

FLOWERS WANTED IN FRONT OF LINDELL BOULEVARD HOMES

Residents Form Association and Hope to Employ a Landscape Gardener for the Work.

More flowers in the front yards are wanted by Lindell boulevard residents. The Lindell Floral Association, of which Mrs. Edwin S. Puller of 3840 Lindell boulevard, is president, has been organized to encourage the residents to beautify their premises by planting flowers and shrubs.

The organization hopes to employ a landscape gardener to lay out a general scheme for harmoniously beautifying the street out to Forest Park. The plan calls for the replacing of all trees that have died and ultimately the improvement of the curb strips with flower beds and shrubs.

Plants Stolen on South Side.

MOTHER APPEALS FOR PURE MILK FOR HER BABY

Asks for Aid of Post-Dispatch Fund — Dance Carnival Benefit Planned.

There is, of course, general knowledge that hundreds of infants in the tenement districts of St. Louis are dependent upon others than their impoverished parents for the essentials to life and health during the heated term. It is likewise known that the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice League, an army of from 2000 to 3000 girls and boys, provides those essentials through raising a fund each year of from $3000 to $5000. Only to those who are intimately associated with this work of saving the babies, however, do the elements of pathos become manifest in boldest relief. Here is the substance of a letter that came to the Post-Dispatch yesterday, the name and address of the writer being omitted because those are for the agencies who will see to it that the assistance the mother requests is forthcoming:

"Knowing that you are helping lots of poor mothers who have babies to feed during the summer months, I am appealing to you for help to keep my little babe well this summer.

Wants Ice for Babe.

"I have to feed my baby on dairy milk and find the milk bill pretty near more than I can manage, and I cannot afford to buy ice, too. My husband is a porter and we have seven children to feed and clothe. I have been trying to buy the milk, which costs me 15 cents a day if I would get the amount the doctor told me to feed the babe, but I have been doing on half that amount, and what I ask of you is if you could furnish ice for me. Trusting you will see fit to help me, I am," etc.

F. Leslie Clendenen, who has a dance studio in the Arcade Building, Arcade and Vernon avenues, has announced a dance recital and carnival for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, to be given at Delmar Garden on the afternoon and evening of June 20. The affair is planned on a broad scale, a general children's day entertainment, in fact, and organization to that end is far advanced, the city being divided into districts for the promotion of active interest. There is to be a regular dance carnival, the initial number being a grand flag march around the grounds by all the children at 2:15 p. m. The recital is to take place at 3 to 4 and 8:30 to 9:30 p. m., and dancing and carnival by the children from 4 to 5:30 p. m. After the evening recital there is to be dancing. The two programs will differ.

Prize for Child.

Tickets for the recital and carnival are 25 cents, each ticket containing coupons entitling the holder to admission to the grounds, also to the features mentioned and, in addition, to a ride on the scenic railway and the old mill boat. To the child selling the greatest number of tickets a prize of a term ticket to the next Clendenen dancing class is to be given.

In addition to the attractions enumerated, there is to be a moving picture and vaudeville performance in the evening.

For the recital only a 10-cent ticket is required. Seats to the number of 100 will be reserved at the academy any time after June 10 at an extra charge of 10 cents. As the seating capacity of the pavilion is 1400, there will be 1000 good seats unreserved.

"Splash Week" for New York.

NEW YORK, June 7.—"Splash week" will be observed here from July 3 to 10, when the public, and especially school children, will be given unusual opportunities to learn to swim, with a view to decreasing the number of annual deaths by drowning.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE AND REFERENDUM.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In your editorial column yesterday you take exception to the plans for statewide prohibition as outlined by the Anti-Saloon League and Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Missouri. You particularly object to the use of the peace, health or safety clause, which would prevent the use of the referendum. You say that to pass a measure with this clause attached would be to nullify the referendum, a great measure adopted by the people. This may be a great measure, but the experience in three general elections in which 37 different measures have been submitted, many of them by the direct petition of the people, has certainly proven that the rank and file of the people do not believe that this is a splendid method of securing law. Out of the 37 measures submitted not a single one has come within many thousands of votes of passing, notwithstanding a number of very meritorious propositions have been submitted. The amendment which would grant to the Legislature the right to pension worthy blind persons in Missouri practically had no opposition anywhere and there was a very strong organized effort to secure its passage and yet even it failed of passage by over 40,000 majority. The nearest other measure to win out of the 10 submitted at the last general election was the full county unit local option measure, but this was lost by 140,000. A number of dry counties that cast an overwhelming majority against full county unit on that referendum ballot have had the saloon question resubmitted again in their own counties and in every case returned decisively increased majorites over the preceding election against the return of the saloon.

It is a known and admitted fact that a large percentage of the voters—perhaps as much as 20 or 25 per cent, marked the entire amendment ballot "No," refusing absolutely to distinguish. It is also a known fact from all our past experiences that whenever a prohibition measure of any kind, either statewide or county-wide, has been submitted by the initiative or referendum, that the liquor interests of the State have had placed on the ballot one or more propositions so outrageously bad that it would guarantee the defeat of the whole ballot. At the last election one of the propositions for which petitions were circulated directly by the liquor interests was to bond the State for $50,000,000 for good roads and still another measure practically like it, but placed on another basis.

It is absolutely unfair to say that we are attempting to secure this legislation by a trick, for we are making this campaign in the open. It is being declared from the public platform everywhere and through the printed pages of the newspapers and through the American Issue, our official aper. We are asking the people to elect members of the House and Senate and a Governor who will pass this kind of legislation in that particular form. The people are now being appealed to. They are speaking in the kind of men they elect for those offices. If the people do not want statewide prohibition within 90 days of the close of the session of the next Legislature they will say so in the kind of men they elect to that body.

It is a notorious fact that a prohibition measure cannot get a square deal in a St. Louis election, that it would neither be voted nor counted straight. It is commonly believed that no matter what the majority out over the State might be, that St. Louis will overcome it by her brewery-ruled political machine. In 70 to 80 per cent of the voting precincts of St. Louis there would perhaps be not a single voice raised against any kind of a vote or any kind of a count on statewide prohibition.

On the other hand, if this question is submitted by way of the election of a Legislature, St. Louis can do nothing more than elect its own Representatives and Senators. These would be practically all against prohibiton, even with an honest election. The other districts all over the State would elect the men that will represent the majority sentiment of the particular districts. And the Anti-Saloon League is perfectly willing to abide by the decision of the people when corrupt methods cannot be resorted to to prevent the expression of the will of the people.

We are acting strictly under the constitutional provision made by the people themselves in which they make exception to the referendum in the case of laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety. Our contention is that no class of laws has more direct bearing upon the "peace, health or safety" of the people than that which will close this continuous source of danger, damage and even destruction of life. If the people do not wish to use this clause in this form they will say so at the ballot box in November.

W. C. SHUPP,
Superintendent Anti-Saloon League.

THE OLD GUARD'S TASK.

To satisfy Col. Roosevelt the Republicans will have to adopt extreme planks on preparedness and Americanism. The Colonel takes as his own the policy of compulsory military training and service and has made uncompromising war on the German-American Alliance. In order to offset the opposition of the alliance to President Wilson he has tried to make this fight his own.

Surely he will not consent to support a candidate and platform which does not meet his views on these two points.

Perhaps he can get the regulars to take his preparedness and Americanism platform, although they will alienate a number of Republican voters. He will want in addition several pet Progressive planks to give the stamp of genuineness to the platform.

When they accept the Roosevelt platform, however, they will have to find the man to fit it and satisfy the Colonel that he is a good fit. Roosevelt himself is the logical candidate for the Roosevelt platform. He embodies the real opposition to Wilson. In fact, there is no other available man who has really defined himself or who has a thorough-going opposition policy. The Colonel can easily show the Republicans that any other candidate is a makeshift and a compromise chosen to avoid sharp issues.

Finally, the Old Guard will have to convince the Colonel that he is not called by Providence in this crisis of America to save the nation and organize for glorious destiny; that he is not the one man necessary to realize the American ideals which he has discovered and formulated.

This is a difficult task. The Old Guard will have to show more tact and skill than it has ever exercised to satisfy Col. Roosevelt and his followers without nominating him.

THEN AND NOW.

Congress has not advanced much from what it was in its first year. John Adams then wrote:

> The business of the Congress is tedious beyond expression. Every man is a great man, an orator, a critic, a statesman and therefore every man upon every question must show his oratory, his criticism and his political abilities. The consequences of this is that business is drawn and spun out to an immeasurable length.

An improved Congress would be highly acceptable to the American people.

THE NEW RUSSIAN DRIVE.

Tremendous as is the scale on which the Russians have begun their fight along 250 miles of the eastern line, it can have decisive results only on one condition. That is, on condition that it is a part of the long awaited drive of all the allies on all the lines against the enemy.

Some things indicate that it really is preliminary to the general assault. It comes at the expected time and the capture of many strong positions with 25,000 prisoners shows that it must have been made after unusual preparations. Gen. Kitchener's departure for Russia on the journey on which he met death seems one detail in a plan for co-ordinating the work on all fronts.

Provided it is linked with effort of similar magnitude elsewhere, this report of an advance from the Roumanian border to the Pripet Marshes is the most interesting news that has come from the land fighting since the start of the Verdun attack. But unsupported it will only effect a few changes in the battle line of the East and lessen pressure in France and on the Italian frontier.

Russia might again overrun Galicia to small purpose if the Central Powers are to be permitted to utilize the advantage of the inner lines and rush preponderating forces and munitions to meet successive and separate attacks.

CARD INDEX NEEDS ROLLERS.

The high state of organization in which astonished politicians find the Hughes boom on reaching Chicago is said to be due to two things. One is a card index of thousands of Republicans made by F. H. Hitchcock when he was Postmaster-General. The other is a considerable sum of money he has made in mining deals since.

Aided by the money for clerk hire, postage and traveling expenses this card index has admittedly done a remarkable work since last December. But a more important and difficult work remains to be done. What service can a card index perform at Chicago? If Mr. Hitchcock can put a set of wheels under it and use it as a steam roller, he has a small but smooth-running portable plant that seems almost perfect for president making.

"PINHEADS."

John Hays Hammond, who tried four years ago to be nominated as running mate to Mr. Taft on his record of having helped to wipe out the Boer republics, is again at Chicago and declares that national affairs are "largely in the hands of pinheads."

That is to say that Woodrow Wilson and Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, are pinheads. Mr. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, may give some cause for criticism, but nobody is entitled to call him a pinhead.

Perhaps we have now no giant intellects handling national affairs who can compare with Mr. Ballinger and Walter L. Fisher and George von L. Meyer and Charles J. Bonaparte and Henry L. Stimson and others, to whose hands such affairs have been intrusted in the past.

But Thomas W. Gregory seems to be making a pretty fair Attorney-General and both Mr. Garrison and Mr. Baker are credited with considerable efficiency in the War Department. David F. Houston is reputed to be giving a scientific and highly helpful administration of the Agricultural Department, and Franklin K. Lane is popularly supposed to be handling the internal problems of the nation more intelligently and successfully than any Secretary of the Interior we have ever had.

"Pinhead" is an opprobrious term not to be flung about too recklessly, especially by men of Mr. Hammond's caliber.

ANYTHING TO GET OFFICE.

The Republican party meets in National convention today, without a leader, without a candidate, without an issue, without a guiding principle, and without a purpose, except as that purpose may be expressed in terms of "anything to get office."

It is gambling desperately for the presidency. The two factions have nothing in common except their desire for power and spoils. There alone can be found the element of possible cohesion.

The issue is as uncertain as the candidate, because there is no policy of government on which the party as a whole dares to take a definite and final stand. Some of it is for war at any price and some of it is for peace at any price.

Some of it is for preparedness and some of it is for pacificism. Some of it is for exalting the tariff and some of it is for subordinating the tariff. Some of it is for intervention in Mexico and some of it is for Pan-Americanism. Some of it is for America first and some of it is for "Deutschland ueber alles." Some of it sings the Star Spangled Banner and some of it sings Die Wacht am Rhein, and some of it sings God Save the King.

In only one respect is the convention which meets today running true to the record that the Republican party has made since the Civil War. It is a convention of property. It is a convention of Big Business. It is a convention of organized wealth. It represents the restlessness ot great financial interests under an administration which treats them justly but which they cannot control as they are in the habit of controlling administrations.

YUAN AND THE NEW CHINA.

The death of Yuan Shi Kai, whether due to suicide, murder or natural causes, is a gain, not a loss, to China and to the national aspirations he had betrayed.

He started out with a professed ambition to be the Washington of the ancient empire. His Oriental mind was incapable of appreciating the Washington ideals. He was a reactionary in religion and in politics. He had been for five years the power behind the Manchu dynasty and only abandoned it when he saw its cause was hopeless and had then planned to make the youthful Emperor, Pu Yi, his son-in-law.

The manifesto, attributed to Prof. F. J. Goodnow of Baltimore, which the monarchists issued last August, urging him to usurp the emperorship, found him in a receptive mood. With only a show of reluctance he accepted in December. But if the awakening of the Chinese giant had been slow, it was well aroused. The revolt of province after province supplied refreshing proof of a devotion to new ideas and principles that must profoundly affect the country's future. The alarmed Yuan's withdrawal in March of his acceptance of the throne was unavailing. By the coup d'etat through which he sought to destroy the republic he had destroyed himself.

Whether the next few years shall be peaceful or tempestuous may depend on the character and capacity of Yuan's successor. But the old China—the China of sloth and inaction, of Manchus and Yuans, of aloofness and paganism and retrogression and ancestor-worship—is gone forever. Western learning and Western incentives are spreading. The future belongs to the new China.

MAKING PRESIDENTS.

Making Presidents is the biggest political business we engage in. We have been in the business a little over a century and a quarter—it is 127 years since we put in George Washington. Twenty-seven Presidents have served 32 terms in all, and we are now engaged in the performance for the thirty-third time.

"If you would understand history, study men," said Charles Kingsley. The study of three or four of our Presidents reveals the more important epochs of our history. Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln embodied the vital experience of the country. Since Lincoln's day no election has held the importance for the nation that the choice this year must involve. The name of the next man we nominate and elect will be writ large in the world's history. A prominent part in international relations is reserved for him. Upon his valor or diplomacy, his statesmanship and wisdom, his influence for peace or war, hangs our destiny.

"No people," said our first President in his inaugural, "can be bound to acknowledge the invisible hand which conducts the affairs of man more than the people of the United States. Every step by which they have advanced to the character of an independent nation seems to have been distinguised by some token of providential agency." In every crisis through which we have passed the same providential agency seems to have acted—each crisis has found a great Executive at the head of our affairs. It is to be devoutly hoped that the virtue, patriotism and intelligence of the American people influenced by Providence will be expressed in this crucial year of American necessity.

And the Colonel might have added that if we had gone to war with Mexico, more Americans would have been killed than fell in the war with Spain, and more Mexicans would have been slain than were Spaniards slaughtered. Circumstances alter cases. The Spanish War was a small naval affair.

JUST A MINUTE

MORE NOMINATING SPEECHES.

FELLOW CITIZENS: Having tried to run the Government to please everybody and found that impossible, why don't we turn it over to some man who will frankly run it for the benefit of himself and a few friends? I know a man who would be glad to do that, and I assure you if he is nominated and elected he will decieve nobody. It would be much better, in my opinion, for the Government to stand frankly for a few people and give those few people what they want, than for it to seem to stand for all the people and never give them anything they want. I am sure you agree with me. Not to do so places hypocrisy above sincerity, which I know none of you cares to do. The man whom I am to name is a cold man. He will not give you anything, and you won't deceive yourself with the expectation that he will give you anything. Therefore, he cannot disappoint anyone. He is a strong man. The mere fact that a majority wants something he doesn't want it to have will not budge him. If you think it will, look up his record on the Rivers and Harbors Committee in Congress. He consistently stood against deepening the Mississippi or any other body of water which did not run through his own district, no matter whose district it did run through, or how long it was. Mr. Chairman, I give you the name of that great reactionary, that stanch friend of the few, that justly celebrated frustrator of the popular will, and that famous cool cucumber, Theodore E. Burton!

MOST WISE: Unfortunately, the Scandinavian vote is not an issue in this campaign, and it is therefore not particularly pertinent for me to say I know a man who commands it. However, he has one or two other strings to his bow, and we will fire from these. He has one attribute differentiating him from the average public man—he never takes sides. He is only a Republican because it is necessary to be something if one is to run for public office. Otherwise he would not say what he is. He is a typical Iowan in that if he can sidestep an issue, he will certainly do it. He wears the mantle of the late Senator Allison, of whom it has been said that if Charon got out of him which way he was going it was the first time anybody ever did get him to declare himself definitely. The gentlemen I am about to name will not be nominated. He doesn't expect it. He is only in the race for the advertising, of which this is some. I give you the name of that quadrennial also-runner, that deft shadow boxer, and that primary idol among the Swedes, Albert B. Cummins!

HUSH, MON!

From the Monroe County (Mo.) Appeal.

Is there a working alliance between certain officers of the Anti-Saloon League and the Republican head of a big brewery at St. Louis in favor of a certain Republican candidate for governor. It begins to look very much that way.

An Australian who recently came to this country is highly amused to discover that we eat frog legs. He will get over the fun of it when he finds out what they cost.

If Justice Hughes wins the Republican nomination without saying anything he will establish a grateful precedent for future campaigns.

ONE OF OUR INEFFICIENCY EXPERTS

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

R. K.—The author of a letter to the Chicago Tribune was informed by his physician that he had Bright's disease and could not live six months. This diagnosis was confirmed by several other physicians. Twenty years have passed and the author of the letter is still living and enjoying health. Here is his advice, the result of personal experience:

Do not drink milk, cream, tea, coffee, cocoa, chocolate, beer, whisky, wine, hard cider, soda water, mineral water or any fancy drink sold at a drug store or over a bar. Avoid all hard waters and waters impregnated with minerals and alkalies. Drink nothing but soft water. Eat all kinds of grains, such as wheat, oats (oatmeal), corn (cornmeal mush, corn bread), rice, barley, rye, flaxseed, boiled whole wheat, whole wheat mush, parched whole wheat, mixed with flaxseed and ground. Whole wheat bread should be eaten at every meal. Whole wheat can be purchased at all seed stores and at most of the feed stores. You can make your own whole wheat meal or flour by grinding whole wheat in your coffee mill, after having thoroughly washed the wheat and letting it dry. This whole wheat meal makes excellent gems or bread. When prepared like oatmeal mush it makes an excellent and inexpensive breakfast food and is beneficial to those who are troubled with constipation. Avoid all forms of animal foods, such as milk, butter, eggs, grease, oysters, meats, fats, glands, liver, sausage, cheese, gelatin, fish, calves'-foot jelly and similar dishes. Avoid sugar and all sweets. If you must have some sweets, experiment with pure maple syrup as a substitute for sugars. Bananas should be avoided by most persons. Avoid the use of pepper, salt, mustard, pickles, essential oils, spices, ice cream, flavoring extracts, catsup and all condiments; also all rich and indigestible pastries and cake. Avoid the use of tobacco in every form. Drink a glass of lemonade once or twice a week. When the kidneys are sluggish, drink corn water, which is made by boiling one cupful of common field corn in two or three quarts of water for five or six hours. An absolute fast for one, two or three days will correct these sick spells by giving nature a chance to throw off the accumulated poison in the system. Eat three regular meals per day. Do not overeat. Eat at the same hour every day. Do not eat between meals. Do not eat late suppers. Eat slowly and masticate your food thoroughly. Do not drink more water than your natural thirst demands. In addition to this he advises frequent baths, sleeping with open windows and outdoor exercise. This regime would help to keep almost anyone in good health and would prove a specific for many other troubles besides the one named.

HEALTH HINTS.

SUFFERER.—The technical name of hardening of the arteries is arterio sclerosis (pronounced sklerosis) and the common name indicates the nature of the disease. The arteries, which carry the blood away from the heart to the tissues, are normally elastic, and sufficiently expansive for the purpose of circulation, but the coats of the arteries are likely to degenerate with age and sometimes harden to an extent that prevents normal action. It is quite a common feature of physical decay. No discovery of a cure for arterio sclerosis has been established as a fact. High blood pressure is said to indicate hardening of arteries. Any physician will make the test. A recent medical writer ridicules artery hardening. Death by old age, he says, is rare. Arterio sclerosis, he says, is traceable, in a majority of cases, to infections or fevers. In Austria, of the causes of hardening of the arteries, 748 were attributed to nervous and psychic influences, age in 455, alcohol in 451, constitutional disease in 406, diseases of metabolism in 397, physical labor in 354, tobacco in 339, heredity in 267, infectious disease in 104, tea and coffee in 61, temperature changes in 53. (Metabolism is the act or process by which on the one hand the dead food is built up into living matter, and by which on the other hand the living matter is broken down into simpler products within a cell or organism; the sum of the anabolic or constructive (assimilation) and the catabolic or destructive (decomposition process). Right living, temperance in eating and drinking, avoiding worry, infections, rheumatism and gout are mentioned for treatment of hardening of the arteries.

LAW POINTS.

UNION.—Phone Chief of Police about the bulldog that jumps at your child. Better move as soon as you can.

AN MO.—In Missouri, divorced person may marry at once; but in case of haste a Judge may set aside the decree and make you a bigamist.

H. E. M.—The mortgage was held void owing to charge of usurious interest, and not because two-thirds of debt was paid. Unless every cent due is paid mortgage may be foreclosed.

O. M.—If a man always tells a woman to get out and says he wishes he was rid of her that she will see how quick he will get another wife, she may sue for divorce. Whether she would be granted one we do not know. This foolery of the husband is not statutory ground for divorce.

WORKING MAN.—Monthly tenant cannot stay until garden has grown up so tenant can get the good of it; neither is landlord or a purchaser obliged to pay the tenant something for it. If served with regular notice, you must vacate or be compelled to. Landlord or purchaser is not obliged to pay moving expenses.

W. G. R.—No will, husband is entitled to one-half of deceased wife's real estate in Illinois and all of personal estate, if no child or children or descendants of a deceased child or children; the other half (wife's parents being dead) goes to her brothers and sisters or their descendants. Accordingly, you were correctly informed. Any heir or person interested can convey their interest in realty, but property may be sold upon order of Court for certain purposes, in which event their signatures will not be required.

Prisoners in the Caucasus

The story of the dramatic escape of two Russians

(The line of the Caucasus Mountains, through which extend now the lines of communication for the Russian Mesopotamian forces, would not have been safe for that purpose a generation ago. For more than a century Russian expansion was checked there by fierce tribes. The warfare on this wild border was most savage and cruel. Today's story is by Count Zavier de Maistre, a Frenchman, who became Major-General in the Russian army.

LONG after the Russian Empire had incorporated the Caucasus, that wild land still lay unconquered. Russian post roads ran through the mountains, but travelers and mails could traverse them only under escort of cavalry and artillery. It was only with forts and very watchful troops that Russia could hold the line from the Caspian to the Black Sea.

When Major Kaskambo was ordered to take command of a post on the gorges of the Caucasus, he should have journeyed to it with a heavy escort; instead, he undertook to reach it with only 50 Cossacks.

Not 20 miles out of the fortress of Mosdok the party was attacked by 700 tribesmen, belonging to the Tschetschenzes, the fiercest and most formidable of the inhabitants of the Caucasus. The Cossacks fought bravely, but were cut down one by one. When less than half were left alive, the tribesmen demanded that the commander be delivered as prisoner, under penalty of destruction of the entire troop. Instantly the Major handed his sword to a Cossack and advanced to the Tschetschenzes, who seized him and fled, just as Russian reinforcements arrived.

That night, when the tribesmen made their first camp, a Russian soldier walked in and delivered himself. It was Ivan, Maj. Kaskambo's servant, who had left the troop and followed his master's captors.

As soon as the two prisoners arrived in the tribe's stronghold, they were fettered with chains that led from hand to foot. The Major was ordered to write a letter to his regiment, saying that he was to be killed unless 10,000 roubles were sent as ransom. In vain he declared that neither his family nor friends could pay it.

During the months that followed, he was starved, beaten and tormented by the two who had him in charge—Ibrahim, a gigantic old man whose two sons had been killed by Russians, and his daughter-in-law, the widow of the elder son. He had to sleep on the bare floor in his chains. He was denied even the most common means for cleanliness. His health broke under the privations.

Meantime his servant Ivan had made himself a favorite by singing, dancing and guitar playing, and by using all the little arts he knew. He had won even the grim daughter-in-law of the Major's jailer by teaching her tricks of cookery. At last old Ibrahim took the chains from him.

A year passed. The Major had written three letters, but no ransom arrived. The tribe threatened to kill him, and Maj. Kaskambo almost wished they would. His faithful Ivan did all he could for him, but he was watched so closely he could do little to relieve his master's misery.

Escape Is Made Only After Double Murder Is Committed

ONE day there was great bustle. All the men able to bear arms were mustered and before night the village was deserted except for women and old men. Ivan learned the fighters had gone to exterminate a Russian force passing through the nearby mountains.

"The time is come," he whispered to his master. "Tonight we will escape this misery or die." "Do what you will," muttered Kaskambo, too worn to feel any hope.

When night came Ibrahim ordered his daughter-in-law to sleep in the next room. He himself sat down by the fire to guard the prisoners.

Ivan handed Kaskambo the guitar and asked him to play while he sang. As Kaskambo tuned the instrument, Ivan sang: "Play away, master. I have something to tell you."

Kaskambo struck a chord, and the two began a terrible duet.

"Hai luli, hai luli!" sank Kaskambo. "What will you do? Take care of yourself!"

"Do you see the ax up there on the wall?" sang Ivan. 'But do not look at it. Hai luli, hai luli! With it I shall split the skull of that old scoundrel!"

"The murder is useless," replied Kaskambo in song. "Where shall I flee in my chains?"

"The keys for the chains will be in the villain's clothes!" chanted Ivan. He began a Cossack dance, which always delighted old Ibrahim. He leaped and shouted. Seizing an opportunity when Ibrahim had turned to the fire, he leaped high, snatched the ax and smote the old man so mightily that he fell into the fire where his long gray beard instantly went up in flames.

The door opened and the daughter-in-law appeared. "What are you doing here?" she asked. "And who has been burning feathers?"

The ax came down on her and she fell as if struck by lightning.

Ivan, spattered with blood, searched the garments of both for the keys to the Major's chains, but could not find them. He looked everywhere desperately. Then he tried to break the fetters with the ax. "The Tschetschenzes shall not get us alive!" he panted. "I would kill you and myself first!"

Failing to break the chains, he fastened them up so that they should not utterly prevent walking. He gathered up some food and half carrying his master, made his way out of the village.

After Three Days' Wandering They See the Russian Border

FOR three days and three nights they wandered through gorge and cleft till at last they left the mountains behind and saw Russia before them. But the Major could go no farther.

"Leave me to die," he said to Ivan, "and save yourself!"

Ivan refused. He found a village of borderers—tribesmen who were friends of both Russians and mountaineers, but trusted by neither. Carrying the Major that night to a hut, he promised the owner 200 roubles if he would secrete the Major and nurse him. He himself would go to the nearest Russian post, he said, and get the money.

He reached the place safely and had no difficulty in raising the sum; but the commandant insisted on sending Cossacks with him, though Ivan objected that he had sworn to the man that he would not return with soldiers.

When the man saw the soldiers, he dragged the Major to the roof and lashed him to a post. Standing beside him with rifle in hand, he yelled to the party: "Another step forward, and I will kill this man; and then I have 50 cartridges left for you."

"You are not betrayed," shouted Ivan. He begged the Cossacks to retire, and as soon as they had done so, he advanced and laid the 200 roubles on the doorstep.

The borderer kneeled before the Major. "Forgive me, oh guest!" said he. "I did what I did against my will!"

He ran down, snatched the money and disappeared.

Ivan untied his master, embraced him and kissed him, and had the joy of bringing him safely that same day to the Russian line.

Bennie Dog Plays a Trick

Sandman story of how he fooled Tommie Cat who tried to sneak into Mrs. Dog's pantry.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

ONE day Bennie Dog's mother told him she was going a long distance with Mr. Man on a business trip and she would not be home until night, and that Bennie Dog must watch the house, and especially the pantry window, for she had two big pans of milk with rich cream on it and she didn't want anyone to steal them.

Bennie Dog sat on the steps in the sun. He had eaten a nice dinner of bones and meat and was thinking about taking a nap when he saw Tommie Cat coming down the road.

Bennie Dog thought of the pans of milk in his mother's pantry and how very much Tommie Cat loved a rich milk and cream, and then he thought of something else, and he slid into the house and locked the door.

Bennie Dog went into the pantry and put a big pail of water in front of the window. Then he covered the window sill with butter and put a saucer of cream on the sill.

And then Bennie Dog hid behind the pantry door.

Tommie Cat came down the road and looked at Bennie Dog's house. "I guess no one is at home," he said, swinging his tail and looking at all the windows. "I wonder if Bennie Dog's mother has left the pantry window open. It looks like rain and I should like to do Bennie's mother a kindness. I think I will take a look."

TOMMIE CAT walked slowly around the house to the pantry window. "Yes, it is open, just as I thought," he said, "and there is something on the sill, too. Now, if it rains it will spoil what is in the dish."

Up jumped Tommy Cat, and when he saw the cream he licked his mouth and swung his tail about very fast.

"Too bad to have that cream wasted," he said. "If it rains it will spoil the cream, and if I eat it it will not be spoiled and Bennie Dog's mother will be no worse off, so I guess I'll eat the cream."

Tommie Cat gave another look about the pantry, and then he saw the two pans of milk. "Goodness!" he exclaimed, "I didn't know there was so much milk in the world."

"I have heard it said that a thunderstorm will make milk sour, and I feel quite sure we are to have a thunderstorm. I believe I will eat that milk and save it."

And then Tommy Cat put his front feet on the greasy window sill and it was all over in a second.

Tommie Cat slipped and slid, and down he went right into the pail of water with a loud splash.

BENNIE DOG held on to his mouth to keep from laughing, but it was of no use. He burst right out loud: "Ha, ha!" he laughed.

Tommie Cat was very busy scrambling out of the pail, but he knew that laugh and did not stop a minute. He sprang to the sill and out of the window he went and down the road he ran, with Bennie Dog laughing as hard as he could from the window.

Tommy Cat shook himself as he ran, but he was shivering and he had to stop at last and lick himself dry.

"I wonder if Bennie Dog was there all the time and saw me jump up on the sill?" he thought.

Tommie Cat licked his paws. "What is that? It tastes like butter," he said.

Tommie Cat tasted again. "It is butter," he said. "It is on all my feet and on my coat, too. Now, where did I get butter on me like this?"

Tommy Cat thought he licked himself dry, and then he remembered how quickly he slid through the pantry window. I bet Bennie Dog greased that window sill," he said. "I'll remember that, and some day I will get even with Bennie Dog."

Early Medical Colleges

THE first medical college in the western part of the United States was Rush Medical College, founded in Chicago in 1837 by Dr. Daniel Brainard, who was born in Whitesborough, N. Y., 108 years ago, May 15, 1812.

Rush College commemorates the name of Dr. Benjamin Rush who was born near Philadelphia of Quaker parentage in 1745. Dr Rush served as an apprentice to a Philadelphia physician for six years and then completed his medical education in Edinburgh, London and Paris.

He was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, one of the founders of the first American anti-slavery society and the greatest physician of his day.

During the yellow fever scourge in Philadelphia in 1793, he visited more than a hundred patients daily.

Up to the nineteenth century there were only five medical colleges in the United States, all in the East. In 1819 a medical school was started in Cincinnati and in 1825 the first institution of this kind in the South was founded in South Carolina, the University of Georgia soon following suit.

The first medical college west of the Mississippi was established in St. Louis in 1842.

Recipes Worth Trying

Tutti Frutti—Put one pint brandy in a stone jar, add the various fruits as they come into market. To each quart of fruit add the same quantity of sugar and stir the mixture each morning until all the fruit has been added. Raspberries, strawberries, apricots, peaches, cherries and pineapples are the best to use. This is fine to use in connection with grapefruit. Prepare as usual and in the center of each half put one teaspoonful of the tutti-frutti.

Ragout of Vegetables—Parboil 1 carrot, 1 turnip, 2 potatoes, 2 ears of corn (or use canned corn), 1 cup lima beans and the same of peas, 1 onion and with them ¼ of a pound of salt fat pork, drain off the water, and lay aside the pork, slice carrot, turnip and onion. Put in a saucepan with a cup of some good meat soup before it has been thickened. Season well, add the corn with the beans, peas and a sliced tomato as soon as the rest are hot. Stew all together half hour. Stir in a great lump of butter rolled in flour. Stew five minutes and serve in a deep dish.

Hominy Waffles—Scald 2 cups of milk, add 1 tablespoon each of butter and sugar and stir into 1 cup of cold cooked hominy. When cool, add ½ a yeast cake dissolved in ¼ cup of lukewarm water, then add 1 teaspoon of salt and 2 cups of flour. Mix thoroughly and let rise over night. In the morning stir in the beaten yolks of 2 eggs, mix well, fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake in very hot, well-greased irons.

The Kaiser's Horoscope.

THE Kaiser's horoscope, as well as that of the Czar and King George, is cast in a new book entitled "Stars of Destiny." "Astrological prediction," it says, "is almost universal in foreshadowing humiliation and defeat for the German Emperor."

The unfortunate sign that double-crosses the Kaiser's career is said to have been present also in the natal charts of Napoleon and of Philip of Spain (of Armada celebrity).

Cremation Is Symbolical of Eternal Life

St Paul said: "There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body. * * * * Flesh and blood can not inherit the Kingdom of God."

CREMATION is unquestionably the coming method of disposing of the dead, due to the growing realization that it is the reverent, kindly and sacred treatment of the earthly bodies of those we love.

Resurrection of the Body

Religious authorities hold two views of the resurrection, and exponents of each view have approved of cremation.

Believing in the resurrection of the physical body, Rev. M. A. Matthews, D. D., of the First Presbyterian Church of Seattle, says, "The resurrection is part of God's plan and there is no power in the universe which can prevent the bodies of the dead from rising again. Cremation is in harmony with the doctrines of Christianity." Bringing together the bodies resolved into nature's elements by cremation would be no more miraculous than the bringing together of the bodies destroyed at sea.

Religion and Cremation

Dean Hodges of Cambridge, holding that the resurrected body is a spiritual body, approves cremation because it "symbolizes the supremacy of the soul" and saves the body from the corruption of burial—"processes unspeakably dreadful to imagine."

How Weapons Began

Battleaxes and Maces.

PROBABLY nobody ever enjoyed being killed in battle. But there is certainly a choice as to how the job could be done. If you had to pass out, how much nicer it would be to have a high-class swordsman turn the trick! He'd go to work so courteously and do such a neat, genteel job that you couldn't help feeling you had died in good society. But nothing of the sort about being killed with an ax; this would be one of the most untidy ends a man could meet.

The big hatchet, however, and its various descendants were long favorites for taking people apart, and even at the time that everything which could cut was made of flint it was in popular demand.

Later on we find the real battleax the favorite weapon of the Celts and the Scandinavians.

The halbert was the next step (up or down, as one looks at those things). This was a combination of ax and spear; a broad blade backed with a hook and tipped with a spear point, all mounted on a six-foot haft. Humane chap who got it up! It was invented to give a single man on foot a chance against one on horseback. And it did. If you missed your jab you could still take a healthy swing with the ax, or pull him off his horse with the hook. A whole regiment with spears might hold off a cavalry charge, but in individual contests the soldier with the halbert stood the better chance.

The ax was especially favored by the Swiss and they did so nicely with it that it spread and became the principal weapon of Central Europe for nearly 200 years. One English variation, the bill, had more of a sickle-shaped blade; but, like the other, it was effective. After one big blow you had a case for the Coroner, not the ambulance.

Other cheerful products of those days was the mace. This was a club of iron or steel; blossoming out, at the business end, into projecting ridges of metal. The operator grasped it with both hands, gave it a whirl and then smashed his opponent. Armor was useless—it crushed right through. Warlike Bishops in medieval days used to carry maces in battle—the canon law forbade churchmen to shed blood; and all a mace would do would be to cave in half a dozen ribs.

Philip II of France had a royal bodyguard of sergeants-at-arms who carried maces—real ones. King Richard I took up the idea; but after a while the good, stout old weapon lost its punch, so to speak. It got to be only a symbol of authority, a pretty ornament at fancy ceremonies. The House of Commons in London has one dating back to 1649. It has the royal crown on top and is lugged around from time to time to show the King is boss.

it occasionally happens that a member of our own Congress gets obstreperous and won't behave when the Speaker talks nicely to him. Then the latter gives the order and the sergeant-at-arms comes down the aisle, carrying the big silver mace. This means that Uncle Sam has stood all he plans to stand and that the row must stop at once.

The 365 rapids traversed by the last party to pass through the Grand Canyon of the Colorado dropped them a total of 6000 feet to the Gulf of Lower California, the trip covering 1400 miles and requiring exactly 101 days.

CITY CONTROL OF BUILDINGS URGED AT CONFERENCE

Use of Structures Should Be Limited by Zone System, Planning Delegates Are Told.

CLEVELAND, O., June 7.—One of the big outstanding questions in city planning to be considered by the City Planning Conference here is municipal control of the use of buildings, with a study as to the limitations of the city along this line. It is a problem affecting all cities since the parkways and boulevards are being encroached upon by apartment houses and other structures built so that they do not harmonize with the boulevard lines.

In 1915 the United States Supreme Court ruled that a brick yard which had been in operation for many years could be excluded, without compensation, from a residence district which had been built around the brick yard. In another case the same Court made a similar ruling in regard to a long established stable in a residence neighborhood.

Now New York, under a recent law passed by the State Legislature, is preparing to divide the city into three districts—business, residential and restricted, and absolutely determine not only the maximum height, area and minimum free space, but also the use of buildings hereafter erected in these districts. This phase of city planning will be discussed before the conference by a number of experts, including J. C. Nichols of Kansas City.

"The zone or district system, so successful in German cities and already under favorable consideration in New York, Los Angeles, Little Rock, Minneapolis and Milwaukee, puts the various interrelated parts to their highest and most specialized use, and in the same general way in which any business institution should organize and lay out the physical arrangement of its plant and the handling of its raw and finished material, so that every part would nourish and stimulate every other part," said Mr. Nichols today.

"The present planless and wasteful procedure of our large cities is just about as sensible as the building of a house and providing for the piano in the kitchen and the cooking stove in the drawing room and the entrance of your guests through the coal shute or the basement window."

Five Ohio towns, so experts here heard today, have adopted the commission city manager form of government. They are Dayton, Springfield, Sandusky, Ashtabula and Zanesville.

East Cleveland will join the group if it adopts its home rule charter at a special election tomorrow.

In 26 states 70 other cities are now operating under the city manager plan, which is intended to remedy these defects in the old form of municipal government:

First—Lack of centralized authority or responsibility.

Second—Confusion of administrative and legislative functions.

Third—Impracticability of the attempt to select trained men for important city jobs through the ballot.

Here, briefly, is what City Manager C. E. Ashburner of Springfield says the new plan has done there:

"We now have no floating debt. The citizens co-operate in running a progressive city. The Government has the backing of the laborer and the capitalist. We are living within our income."

H. E. Freeman, a banker of Springfield, looks at the manager plan this way:

"Our streets are cleaned, our Police and Fire Departments more efficient, our finances in better shape and our tax rate lower than under the old form.

Discuss Traffic Problems.

Experts today dug into those street traffic problems which confront St. Louis and other cities because of the enormous use of motor vehicles in the business and the social life of today.

One hundred million dollars is the estimated waste every month in the United States through the loss of time because of inadequate facilities for the handling of street traffic. This is the estimate of John Gillespie, Commissioner of Police of Detroit. In a paper read before the conference, Gillespie said these delays occur generally in the transportation of supplies for which the consumer must pay the extra cost, and it is a measure borne by every member of the entire population of the United States as a daily loss.

One way traffic streets over which motor cars may develop a reasonably high rate of speed, is Gillespie's solution.

Treating the subject, "The Motor Car and the City Plan," as a whole, Nelson P. Lewis, chief engineer of the board of estimate and apportionment, New York City, said the obvious method of relief in cases of greatest traffic congestion was to establish detours of by-passes around such congested streets and easier grades and even widening existing streets and cutting through new streets where the damage to property would be least.

"The present need is for commodious driveways along which vehicles can proceed with the minimum loss of time and the maximum of safety to pedestrians and themselves," Gillespie said. "And then," he said, and he might have been speaking directly of St. Louis, "there is necessity for driveways suitably paved and properly lighted and having sufficiently protected intersections. Existing streets do not afford this in many cases."

Gillespie's suggestion to solve traffic problems are as follows:

"New streets must be constructed through localities, even where the price of land is high. Many streets should be widened so that four rows of vehicles can be driven in the same direction on each of them.

Favors One-Way Traffic.

"Traffic proceeding one way on all streets offers a fair amount of relief from danger and congestion. The traffic going one way on alternate streets, transportation of all kinds will be facilitated. The track for vehicles is from curb to curb. When they all proceed in the same direction along each street danger will be tremendously decreased even though the speed is considerably increased.

"Passing each other from opposite directions in narrow streets is needlessly adding to the present long list of preventable accidents. The pedestrian is afforded greater safety in crossing one-way traffic streets. As the average city has about 10 blocks to the mile, this would provide five streets to the mile running in each direction of the compass. This would mean driveways in any one direction, not more than 1000 feet apart.

"We do not need extremely wide streets for motor car traffic. In Chicago drivers go 10 blocks to get to Michigan avenue, so they may reach their destination in a rapid manner. It is idle to talk of slowing up vehicles on main thoroughfares. The traffic situation will never be remodeled in that way. We must provide streets where motor cars can go fact.

"It is going to cost money to remedy the existing faulty conditions in street construction, but it costs less today than it will five years from today."

Coming to the problem of parking motor cars on downtown streets, another St. Louis problem, Gillespie said it is an inconsistent plan for business men to pay in order to be in a prominent location and then make it inaccessible by having vehicles parked where they obstruct his entrance. He would eliminate the parking of cars, not only in central business districts, but also along main thoroughfares that are used most extensively by horse-drawn trucks.

From Stone to Sheepskin—from Pompeii to Philadelphia

The Art of Advertising is as old as the world. Evidence of this has come down to us in the relics of long-vanished civilizations. We know how advertising was demonstrated in the days of Pompeii.

Those Copymen of 2000 years ago were masters in their way, but great as was their skill, advertising was denied the dignity of the Sheepskin. This symbol of academic appreciation was never conferred upon the craft.

Today, however Advertising has come into its own. It is recognized as something greater than any Art or Science because it colors the whole fabric of life more intimately. It is a world-wide power for good in spreading the gifts and benefits of civilization among all the peoples of the earth.

Its battles are legion. Its successes colossal. Advertising creates; civilization clarifies, estimates, applies. Advertising is the friend of every man, rich or poor; maker of things, or user of what others have made.

Advertising has won its place because of its enormous potency as a factor in the business life of the world. It disseminates knowledge; binds far countries together. It is a force for raising the standard of living, and making what were once only the luxuries of the rich the necessities of the poor.

And now the great University of Pennsylvania—a famous seat of learning—has conferred the Sheepskin on Advertising. When next June arrives the advertising fraternity of the world will gather within its doors at Philadelphia. They will number 10,000 and more students of life—life that embraces all the science, economics, culture and art of the ages—10,000 wide-awake, vigorous, hustling, practical men of business.

The course will be short, but its benefits of inestimable value. Sparks will be struck from the contact of keen minds that will kindle new fires of optimism, of courage, of understanding amongst men.

Come to Philadelphia, June 25th to 30th.

One of the buildings of the University of Pennsylvania, where the 1916 Convention of the A. A. C. of W. will be held. Write the "Poor Richard Club," Philadelphia, for particulars.

ECZEMA ON FACE FOR FIVE YEARS

In Ugly, Inflamed, Red Blotches. Could Not Rest with Itching and Burning. Completely

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My daughter was troubled for five years with eczema on her face. It would break out in ugly inflamed red blotches all over her face so badly she could not rest with the itching and burning. There were ugly scales left on her face all the time from scratching and she was worse in the daytime as the heat irritated it.

"Finally we tried Cuticura Soap and found it was good, and afterward we learned of the Cuticura Ointment. Before I used one box of Cuticura Ointment there was a decided change, and we used nearly three boxes of Ointment together with the Cuticura Soap and she was completely healed." (Signed) R. N. Bowen, Eldon, Iowa, Sept. 21, 1915.

EX-CONVICT SHOT, DIES REFUSING TO BECOME A 'SNITCH'

Steve Willis, Found Wounded in Alley, Would Not Name Assailant.

Steve Willis, 33 year old, an ex-convict, after being shot early this morning in an alley back of 910 High street, died at the city hospital refusing to tell who shot him. In this the police believe he was true to the "gang ethics" which often had caused him to boast that although he had served time in the penitentiary he was proud to say he was no "snitch."

Willis was shot in the right side of the neck, the chest and the right arm.

When asked who shot him Willis replied: "There's no use asking me that. If I knew I wouldn't tell you."

Policemen Nearby.

Policemen at 12:10 a. m. heard four shots and went into the alley. They found Willis wounded and leaning against a telegraph pole. He told them who he was and asked that he be sent to the city hospital.

As they were going to the alley after hearing the shots the policemen saw three men emerge from the alley and enter a saloon at 1225 Franklin avenue.

They went to the saloon and arrested James Gillion, a former Sheriff's deputy, living at 712 O'Fallon street; Mike Morgan, 24 years old, of 925 North Thirteenth street; the two they had recognized, and Mike Hession, 32 years old, of 1108 Franklin avenue. The prisoners denied all knowledge of the shooting. The weapon with which Willis was killed was not found. Willis had no weapon when searched at the hospital.

About 4:45 p. m., Jan. 19, last, two shots were fired in the alley behind 1120 Cass avenue. The police found Willis, Gillion and James O'Neill of 1122 Cass avenue in the alley. Willis and O'Neill bore marks indicating they had been in a fight. Gillion had a revolver in his right coat sleeve, two of the shells of which had been recently discharged.

Gang Ethics Observed.

In keeping with gang ethics the three men refused to give the police any information. Willis and O'Neill were sent to police court on peace disturbance charges and both were freed. Gillion was charged with having a concealed weapon and was fined $100.

The police are trying to determine whether this fight may have led to last night's shooting. They also recall a more recent occurrence which may aid in solving the mystery.

On May 10 last Willis, Leo Berger and another man were arrested at Fourteenth and Gay streets. In the leg of Berger's trousers was found a watch which had been stolen the day before from the home of Mrs. A. C. Chrisman, 3515 Michigan avenue. Other stolen articles were found in Berger's room.

Berger was held on a charge of burglary. Willis induced a friend to have a bondsman sign a $1500 bond for Berger. The police have learned that Willis assured this friend that Berger was not a bond jumper. Despite this assurance Berger jumped his bond. The police have heard that since then there has been bad blood between Willis and the man whom he induced to obtain a bondsman for Berger.

Willis gained notoriety several years ago when he alleged that he had been hung up in "the rings" at the Jefferson City penitentiary for refusing to "snitch" in connection with the smuggling of whisky into the prison.

GRAND OPERA PRESENTED IN YALE BOWL BEFORE BIG CROWD

Special Sounding Boards Carry Voices Throughout Amphitheater—Lighting Effects Brilliant.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 7.—Wagner's opera, "Die Walkuere," was produced before a great audience in the Yale Bowl last night by the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, under the auspices of the Yale School of Music.

Specially arranged sounding boards carried the voices to all parts of the vast athletic amphitheater. The lighting effects were brilliant.

AVIATOR DIES OF HIS BURNS

Engine Shifted Machine—Plunged to Ground and Caught Fire.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 7.—Steve MacGordon, aviator at the Atlantic Coast Aeronautical Station, died here last night from burns received in the afternoon when his aeroplane was destroyed by fire.

MacGordon and E. F. Keefer, a student, had started on a flight when the engine of the aeroplane fell from its position causing the machine to strike the ground with such force that the gasoline tank exploded and set the craft afire. Keefer was not injured seriously.

The sale at present prices of the "Handy Volume" Issue of the Encyclopaedia Britannica
closes June 17th, 7.33 P. M. After that, $11 to $19 more

NEARING THE END

If there had been no war

—if the shortage in dyes, drugs, chemicals and hundreds of other things which it occasioned had not sent prices soaring to the skies;

—if there had not been the same serious increase in the price of paper, leather, printing ink (and an actual famine of some sorts of binding materials);

—if the publishers of the Britannica had not suddenly been confronted with the problem not only of heavily increased costs, but also of a scarcity in India paper and of binding leathers, so that they had to notify us that our present contract with them could not be renewed, we might have gone on selling the new "Handy Volume" Issue of the Britannica at the present low prices for a long while, as we had intended.

This is impossible. In spite of the enormous printing which we had arranged for the issue has been taken so rapidly that only a small number of sets now remain and we cannot secure any more at anything like present prices.

(which made it possible for us to sell the complete new unabridged Eleventh Edition of the Britannica, in a small-page form, at one-third the price of the larger-page Cambridge University issue)

For such further sets as we shall be able to obtain we shall have to increase the price by $11 per set for the cheaper bindings to $19 per set for the more expensive bindings

(and there is no telling how long even these prices can be maintained).

We wish to give the public full warning. More than 200,000 persons have written us to ask for our large illustrated 130-page descriptive book about the Encyclopaedia Britannica and the new "Handy Volume" Issue. This means that a tremendous number will come rushing in at the last minute.

We send the entire 29 volumes upon the payment of a single dollar. Then you have three weeks with the books in your own home to make up your mind they are just what you want. (See our unconditional guarantee.)

But only ten days remain—ten working days.

On June 17th at 7.33 p. m. our offer is closed.

Any order postmarked before that day, date and hour, we will endeavor to fill if possible, though we cannot guarantee any particular style of binding unless your order is sent immediately.

This is all you have to do:

1st You send only $1

2nd We send you the entire 29 volumes (complete)

3rd You have 3 weeks to use and judge them

4th If you are not fully satisfied return them (and your money refunded)

5th But it costs only about $3 a month (or a little more) in monthly payments to keep them.

AN ASTONISHING HISTORY

For two years short of a century and a half the standard —the foremost work of reference in all the world

—its new edition costing more than any other work of reference ever published in any language, and forming the newest and most complete compend of human knowledge that exists —nearly 75,000 sets of this new edition sold already, involving a total of $14,000,000—for one new edition of a single work

—bringing the total sale since its beginning 148 years ago up to over a million sets, representing a total of over $100,000,000

(and a total of more volumes sold than any other work ever published with perhaps the single exception of the English Bible and Shakespeare)

—a work that has engaged the collaboration of more distinguished men—the greatest minds of each generation—than any other work ever published in any language

—a work that for 148 years has never had a rival in its own language and has never had an equal in any other.

Need any more be said?

This is the record of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. From the days of Sir Walter Scott, of Lord Jeffrey and Thomas Young, it has been counted an honor to be invited to write for this distinguished work, and the most eminent men of each successive period have written its articles, —not merely the most distinguished minds of English-speaking peoples, in Great Britain, in America, but many of the foremost authorities of other nations as well.

Far back the famous Arago and Biot, two of the most eminent of Frenchmen of science, set the fashion, and since that time there have been contributions from the distinguished men of almost every nation in Europe

—to the new Eleventh Edition contribute many of the foremost minds of Germany, like Harnack, Ostwald, Meyer, Driesch, Verworn and Nernst; of Holland, like Lorentz, Van Der Waals and van't Hoff; of France, like Babelon, Bémont, Esmein, Luchaire; of Italy, like Villari; of Sweden, like Nansen; of Japan, like Kikuchi; of Russia, like Prince Kropotkin; and so on throughout the list.

Yet, in spite of all this high scholarship, in spite of its unquestioned authority, the Encyclopaedia Britannica is an eminently practical and useful book full of interest and unexpected charm, and expressly designed to meet the needs of busy men and women of today.

—And this is the work which you can now obtain for the first time—the new edition, absolutely complete, not one of its 30,000 pages changed by a line, at a popular price (only one-third that charged for the larger page Cambridge University issue of identically the same work)

—the complete work sent you upon the payment of a single dollar. After that easy monthly payments, according to the style of binding you select.

You are the judge— your family the jury!

Remember, that when you sign the order form below and send us your dollar the sale is not closed. All this does is to secure the shipment to you of 29 volumes of the new "Handy Volume" Issue in whatever style of binding you desire. Then you have three weeks in which to examine the volumes in your own home, use them every day, discuss them with your family, learn how wonderfully valuable this great work may be to you and every member of your household, especially to your growing children. Then if for any reason whatsoever you decide you do not wish to keep the books, you may return them and we will refund your dollar and all shipping charges as well.

You take no risk. We take it all.

Our Guarantee

We guarantee that the "Handy Volume" Issue is authorized by the publishers of the Encyclopaedia Britannica; that its contents are identical, page for page (including every map and illustration), with the Cambridge University issue now selling at three times the price; that it is manufactured by the same printers and binders as the more expensive book; that it is printed on the same quality of India paper, from newly made plates; and that, because it is smaller, it is easier to handle than the Cambridge issue.

We guarantee complete and entire satisfaction with the contents of the Encyclopaedia Britannica and with the form of our "Handy Volume" Issue. To anyone who, for any reason is not satisfied and returns the set within three weeks, we guarantee to return all he has paid (including shipping charges).

JUDGE ADJOURNS COURT TERM SO FARMERS CAN WORK FIELDS

SHELBYVILLE, Mo., June 7.—Circuit Judge Nat M. Shelton adjourned the June term of the Shelby County Circuit Court here until early in August, when numerous farmers summoned as witnesses or grand jurors petitioned to be excused. Court convened as usual and the grand jury was about to be impaneled when Judge Shelton announced that because of "physical conditions in the county" adjournment would be taken. His action permitted some 200 farmers to return to their fields.

Judge Shelton is a candidate for Congress in the First District.

WAR SECRETARY ANSWERS LETTER OF ST. LOUIS MAN

Says He Is Considering Suggested Plan for Training Officers for Volunteers.

J. P. Lombard of 510 Lake avenue, financial agent of the Union Central Life Insurance Co., who recently wrote to President Wilson, Secretary of War Baker and members of Congress, suggesting the enlargement of West Point or the establishment of military colleges at army posts, has received a reply from Secretary Baker which says: "My thought has been going very much along the same line since I have been in the department and it may be that before very long I can work out a suggestion which will amount to a department policy on the subject."

Replies have been received also from many Congressmen, most of whom express themselves as favorably inclined toward Lombard's suggestions. Acknowledgment of the letter sent to the President has been made by Secretary Tumulty.

Lombard says his suggestions are simply the outgrowth of his interested thought as a citizen on the subject. He looks upon these measures as practical, reasonable and relatively inexpensive preparedness which would not be a radical departure from the practice of the past but would provide an adequate number of officers for a volunteer army.

He suggests that West Point might be enlarged to the proportions of Columbia University, with about 12,000 students, or that such posts as Fort Des Moines, Fort Ethan Allen, Fort D. A. Russell and Fort Logan be utilized as military colleges.

It would be discretionary with graduates, he says, whether they remained in the service regularly, but they would be expected to serve a month each year until middle age to avoid becoming rusty.

ENCYCLOPAEDIA BRITTANICA A HOUSEHOLD COMMODITY

Dr. H. S. Williams, editor of "The Historians of the World," says that the only individuals who can be depended upon to act promptly in taking advantage of a bargain sale are women, and the bargains in question, he says, are usually those that have to do with personal adornment. He says that the adornment of the interior of the head also should be regarded as important. One who invests in intellectual stocks is making the surest investment, he says.

In this connection, he asserts that a business firm which puts a book like the Encyclopaedia Britannica on a par with household commodities and such like necessities has shown an optimistic spirit and placed a flattering estimate upon the desire of the public to improve its mind. He reflects that lack of foresight of the average man to improve intellectually, limits competition and gives enhanced opportunity for the exceptional person who has the foresight to value brain development before pleasure of the moment.

According to President H. E. Hooper of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, it has been a difficult proposition to secure the leather needed for the bindings of this new edition because of the demand being made by the armies of the world upon the supply of fine leather. England has been for years the clearing house for the Levantine, Australian and New Zealand supply of leather, and the price began to increase rapidly as quickly as the masses of men in Russia began to be formed into armies and a tremendous increase in demand for leather for shoes and horse equipments arose. England clamped the lid upon leather exports to America.

The supply for the binding of the Encyclopaedia was secured just before England shut down upon exports. Hooper said that American manufacturers are now trying many experiments to secure a supply of leather equal to that formerly obtained in England and that a new industry has begun to flourish in this country in the way of supplying high-class leather that may prove of lasting benefit to the American people.

WOMAN SAYS HUSBAND, WHOM SHE LOVED, SOLD HER FOR $20

Relates Alleged Wrongs by Man Who "Bought" Her to Pennsylvania Magistrate.

CHESTER, Pa., June 7.—Katie Polszholna, an attractive young woman, told a remarkable story in the office of Magistrate Thomas Holt, relating alleged wrongs and injustice when testifying against Charles Phillipz.

According to the statement of the woman and her sister, Victoria Kolunski, she was sold by her husband and the man she loved to Phillipz for $20. Nearly three years ago she came to this country from Russia and married the man she had loved from childhood. They lived happily together a few months, and then, it was testified, Polszholna tired of her.

At a drunken party in a cabin in which they lived in a small mining town in Pennsylvania her husband offered her for sale, she says, Phillipz being the highest bidder, at $20. Angered by the insult, she said, the discarded wife determined to be revenged, and before coming to this city three months ago with the man to whom she was "deeded," she returned to the cabin and took from a mattress $700.

This she turned over to her new "lord and master," and it soon dwindled away, she said; and Phillipz went on a rampage after becoming intoxicated, and ejected her and her two children from the house, broke the furniture, and he was later arrested and committed in default of security.

A Timely Warning

ELEVEN well-known automobiles have advanced in price within the last ninety days.

The Maxwell Company has not increased their prices. We do not know what their plans are, but we do know and you know that materials entering into the construction of good automobiles now cost from 20 to 300 per cent more than they did six months ago.

Nothing is to be gained by delay. Much may be lost.

Not only may you lose several dollars in the purchase price, but you are sacrificing the enjoyment, the relaxation, the health-giving properties—everything, in fact, that makes motoring the favorite pastime of the nation.

We urge you to come in and investigate the Maxwell.

Or, we will refer you to any number of Maxwell owners and let them tell you their own story in their own way.

They will tell you what they have told us. That the Maxwell is good-looking—that it is powerful—that it is comfortable—that it is economical—in short, that it is the best investment they ever made. They will tell you more and they will tell you gladly and freely.

That's the way they feel toward us and the Maxwell Car.

Whatever you do, don't put this off. We have a few cars on hand and can take orders for immediate or future delivery—at present prices. If you can't come in today, phone us for a Maxwell demonstration.

WOMAN DELEGATE TO VOTE FOR ANY GOOD REPUBLICAN

On Montana Delegation With Seven Men; Instructions Are for Cummins.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Declaring for the old-fashioned Republicanism, without frills, Louise F. Lusk of Missoula, Mont., the first woman elected in this year's primaries a delegate to the Republican national convention, is in Chicago. She is the one woman in the delegation of eight from Montana.

Mrs. Lusk, who is a banker, the wife of Frank Lusk, one of Montana's richest ranchmen, and who derives her political inspiration from William McKinley's public life, is here to stay until "some good Republican" is nominated for President. She has opened a sort of women delegate headquarters at the Congress Hotel.

She is instructed by the Montana State-wide vote to vote for Senator Cummins of Iowa.

"I will vote for Senator Cummins," she said, "so long as he is in the race. If he should not be nominated—well, I'd just be for any good Republican."

"Does that 'any good Republican' include Col. Roosevelt?" she was asked.

"Now, please don't ask me to discuss Col. Roosevelt," she replied. "I voted for him once. I am an old-fashioned Republican.

"In my campaign—I was one of 22 candidates running in the primary at which eight were elected—I stated my platform, I had that platform printed and circulated and paid the bill myself. It was as follows:

"The Republican party and its principles.

"Equal suffrage.

"Preparedness and peace.

"Women participating in selecting all candidates for office.

"Keeping the United States in its proper place as the greatest nation in the world.

"Any good Republican for President.

"In 1900 I traveled 2500 miles to vote for William McKinley for President.

"Director of the First National Bank and attends to the duties actively and scrupulously."

Joseph Dixon in Delegation.

It happens that former Senator Joseph Dixon, chairman of the Progressive National Committee in 1912, also ran as a Republican candidate for national delegate in Montana and finished second. He is the only former Bull Mooser in the delegation.

Mrs. Lusk finished in seventh place after a nine-day campaign. This is the first political office she ever asked for.

WHITE-HOT CINDERS FROM FORGE FURNACE BURN TWO

Workmen Spattered With Molten Metal Refuse—One May Lost an Eye.

In a flare-up, or possibly an explosion of white-hot cinders, two employes of the Helmbacher Forge and Rolling Mill Co., Second and Barton streets, were dangerously burned this morning. They are Mustafa Jerim, 31 years old, of 2500 South Second street, and William Wangle, 33, of 2403 De Kalb street.

The two were rolling an iron box, on wheels, under the furnaces, to catch the "cinder pap," as the molten, fluid refuse of the intense heat is called. As they drew the box from beneath the furnace there was a flash and the "pap" spattered upon them, burning both on the bodies. Jerim was also burned in the face, and may lose his left eye. He was taken to Alexian Brothers Hospital and Wangle was taken home.

It is believed a deposit of gas from the furnace may have caused the accident.

BOY, 12, FATALLY INJURED RIDING STREET CAR BUMPER

Edward Fink Crushed in Collision Attributed to Wet Rails—Dies at City Hospital.

Edward Fink, 12 years old, of 1809 North Twentieth street lost his life as the result of stealing a ride on the bumper of a Belt Line car last night.

The boy was hanging on the back of the car when it swung into the Cass avenue tracks at Nineteenth street and Cass avenue, at 6 p. m. An eastbound Cass car hit the back of the Belt Line car and the boy's right leg was crushed. He died at the city hospital at 4:30 o'clock this morning.

Motorman William O. Bansworth, 3627 Dodier street, who was in charge of the Cass car, told the police the rails were wet and his car slid against the Belt Line car.

ORPET JURY BOX MAY BE FILLED BEFORE END OF DAY

WAUKEGAN, Ill., June 7.—The jury in the Orpet murder trial may be completed today. Three jurors have been tentatively accepted by both sides toward the makeup of the last panel and the defense is said to be ready to accept the fourth at the adjournment of court yesterday. Comments by attorneys for the State indicate that they favor the juror in question. It is not unlikely that the trial may be started before the day is out.

Detectives arrested Katz upon information from the Chief of Detectives in Kansas City. Mrs. Hornbostel was notified of the arrest and arrived here this morning. When Katz confessed his wife fainted.

BANKER ATTACKED, WIFE IS SLAIN AND DAUGHTER BEATEN

No Clew to Mystery in Texas Home; Son-in-Law Not Injured.

WILLS POINT, Tex., June 7.—Mrs. H. F. Goodnight, 70 years old, was killed; her husband, president of the Van Sandt National Bank here, was probably fatally injured and their daughter, Mrs. R. J. Morau was beaten into insenibility in their home early today, with either a large hammer or an ax. Physicians said Mrs. Morau probably would live, but it was only a question of hours before Goodnight would die.

No motive is known for the killing. The house, which is in the outskirts of the city was found in order with no signs of attempted robbery.

According to the story told by R. J. Morau, son-in-law, he was awakened at about 3:30 o'clock by the screams of his wife in an adjoining room. He found her unconscious in her bed. Morau sought Goodnight, and found him badly injured in his bedroom on the second floor.

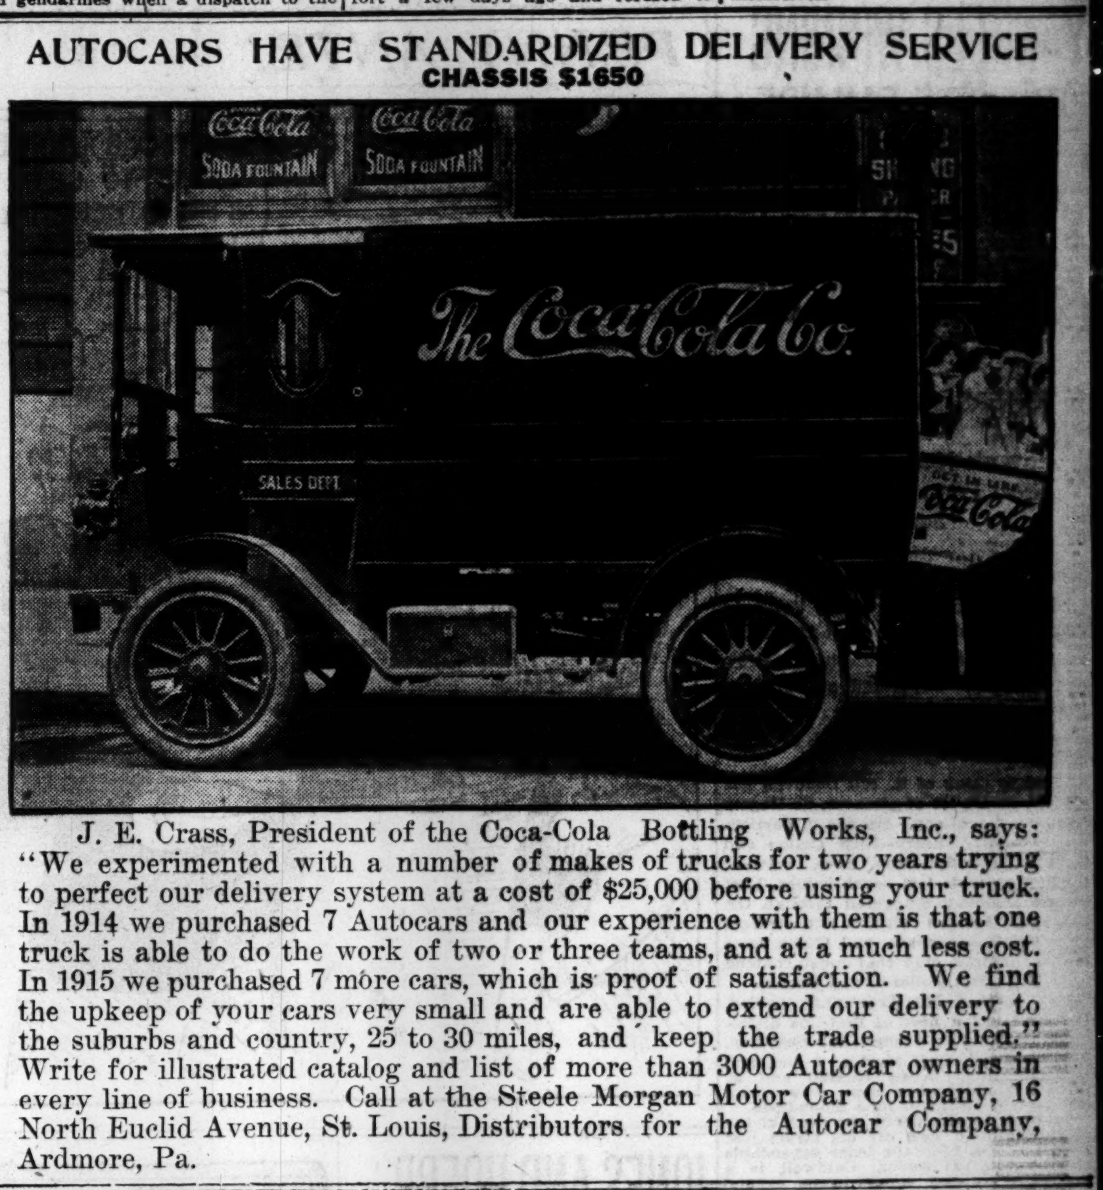
Mrs. Goodnight was found in the cellar, dead, having been carried from her bedroom on the second floor. Her head was crushed in the same manner as the others.

TWO HAITIEN CHIEFS KILLED IN FIGHT WITH U. S. MARINES

Dispatch to State Department Says That Dead Also Included Nine of Rebel Leader's Men.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—American marines and Haitian gendarmes killed the revolutionary chiefs Melelus and Codio and nine of their men in a fight near Fonds Verretes Sunday. The outlaws were killed in an effort to escape when cornered, and remnants of the band were being pursued by the marines and gendarmes when a dispatch to the State Department was sent.

These rebels, believed to be operating under Gen. Arias, the revolutionary leader, took charge of the town and fort a few days ago and refused to evacuate on the demand of the American commander. An engagement followed and the rebels were driven into the interior, where they entrenched themselves.



AUTOCARS HAVE STANDARDIZED DELIVERY SERVICE

CHASSIS $1650

J. E. Crass, President of the Coca-Cola Bottling Works, Inc., says: "We experimented with a number of makes of trucks for two years trying to perfect our delivery system at a cost of $25,000 before using your truck. In 1914 we purchased 7 Autocars and our experience with them is that one truck is able to do the work of two or three teams, and at a much less cost. In 1915 we purchased 7 more cars, which is proof of satisfaction. We find the upkeep of your cars very small and are able to extend our delivery to the suburbs and country, 25 to 30 miles, and keep the trade supplied." YANKEES WINNING DESPITE FAILURE OF STAR HITTERS

Batting Eyes of Baker, Magee, Gedeon and Maisel Are Still Very Dim.

PITCHERS THE MAINSTAY

Donovan's Hurlers Have Shown Great Form Thus Far This Season.

By W. J. O'Connor.

"In your estimates of the Yankees' pennant possibilities, don't make the mistake that other Western critics are making," suggested a camp follower of Bill Donovan's team last night, "don't overlook this pitching staff."

Come to think of it, Bill Donovan has a right smart lot of pitchers, as Rogers Hornsby would say. He has in particular two left-handers—Nick Cullop and George Mogridge—who have, between them, won their last seven games. Last season Donovan staggered through the American League without the services of a single southpaw, and that's some handicap for a club that must contend against Detroit, Chicago and Boston.

But besides Mogridge and Cullop, Donovan has a fleet of first-line dreadnoughts like Ray Fisher, Bob Shawkey, Ray Caldwell, Cliff Markle, a find, and Ray Keating. Allen Russell and E. Love are emergency men, who round out a complement of nine moundmen.

Caldwell is considered the dean of the staff, although he's off his stride just now and has been the least dependable of the lot. However, Caldwell is a known asset and should come around when the weather man begins to behave.

Yankees Below Expectations.

In other departments the New York team is not what it should be. Frank Baker, Lee Magee and Joe Gedeon have not hit within 50 points of what they should. Fritz Maisel is a cripple and the punch is lacking everywhere but on Hurling Hill.

Since May 22 the Yankees haven't lost a series. They have won 10 out of 14 games and pulled up to within one box score of first place. They have encompassed this drive because of the persistently perfect pitching of Shawkey, Cullop and Mogridge, the latter having the unequaled record of not yielding an earned run in four games.

Connie Mack tips the Yanks to win the pennant and after a close analysis we find a basis for such belief. Even in their recent record there is something to marvel at. They have just completed the herculean job of winning three out of four from the Red Sox, three out of five from the Athletics and two out of three from the White Sox. Just prior to this spurt they bagged two out of three from the Browns.

Stars Were of Little Aid.

But this has been accomplished without any real assistance from Magee, Baker and Gedeon, the recognized clubbers of the clique. It these men begin to find their normal batting stride, the Yanks will be tougher nuts to crack than the Indians or Tigers, who haven't the same brand of pitching, at least not so much of it. Manager Donovan is loath to place to place a limit on the possibilities of his team.

"We are not hitting on all six, yet," said the man with the million-dollar smile last night, "but I think a spell of warm weather will clarify the eye and gives us the range, in the West. I know that some of my players will hit better. When they do, we will win more regularly."

Donovan intends to send Bob Shawkey against the Browns today. Shawkey beat the Brownies on May 24, 10—1, yielding only five hits. The only run scored against him was compounded in the ninth. Jones will send either Weilman or Davenport after the Yankee scalps. Play at 3:30, with an open gate for the ladies.

Giants Win Two Home Games

Pittsburg's victory over the Giants yesterday, 3—2, Mamaux excelling Benton in a hurling duel, gives the proteges of John McGraw an unenvied and unique record. They are now in second place, but have won only two games for the benefit of the home fans so far this season. They cycloned through the West recently without losing a box score. So far this season they have acquired 22 victories in all, but 20 of them were bagged away from home. Which must make McGraw feel like a dead crow.

If the Yankees win three straight from the Browns, Owner T. L. Huston will buy each member of the party a "good hat." Thirty-one "good hats" will set Mr. Huston back at least 100 iron men, but Huston only got into baseball to spend his money. And he's the world's champion spender. He bought everything last winter but the American rights to the European war.

Mamaux, With Weak Pittsburg Club, Has Won 8 and Lost Only 2 Games

If Jimmy Callahan owned a few more pitchers like Albert Leon Mamaux, the Corsairs would be well up in the running, instead of in sixth place. Mamaux, who last season wound up third to Alexander and Toney in efficiency, has won eight games and lost only two this season for a percentage of .800. This is 335 points better than the record owned by the Pirates.

Mamaux suffered his first defeat of the campaign on April 20, when the Cardinals knocked him off the hill in two innings, scoring three runs. His other reverse came May 12, when the Giants beat him, 3—2, in 10 innings. His last five contests have resulted in victories. He has hurled one three-hit, one four-hit and three five-hit games this year.

In the 92 frames the star of the Corsair hurling staff has worked this season the opposition has tallied 22 times, an average of 2.16 runs per game. He has allowed 62 hits. His record:

Date—Opponent.	R.	H.	Inn.	Dec.
April 15, Cards	1	6	9	W.
April 20, Cards	3	8	2	L.
April 23, Chicago	2	1	1	...
April 29, Cincinnati	1	5	9	W.
May 5, Chicago	6	5	9	...
May 8, Chicago	4	4	9	W.
May 12, New York	3	7	10	L.
May 15, Boston	0	4	8	W.
May 19, Philadelphia	2	6	9	W.
May 24, Brooklyn	1	9	8	...
May 28, Cardinals	1	4	5	W.
June 2, Brooklyn	2	3	9	W.
June 6, New York	2	8	9	W.
Totals	23	62	92	...

[illegible] McGraw's Giants lost another game on their home grounds yesterday.

when they were stopped by the Pirates, 3—2. Benton was on the firing line for the second-placers and lost his first game of the season. In the eight frames he worked he was hit safely eight times, the blows being bunched in three rounds by the Corsairs. Mamaux allowed five swats.

Hear the Tigers Coming?

The Tigers are coming, and coming fast. When George Dauss shut out the Red Sox yesterday with three hits, two of them coming in the ninth, the crew of Jennings chalked up its fourth straight victory, all of them coming over Eastern clubs. The Nationals were downed three in a row. Heilman's bingle sent over two for the Tigers in the first frame, while Hobby's error gave them their final marker in the second. Gregg was on the hill for Carrigan.

Ty Cobb has a little something on Kauff yesterday. Cobb rapped out one hit in three times up, scored a run and stole a base. Kauff went hitless, failed to cross the plate and did not pilfer. In the field the Tiger star handled six chances, while Benny had only two.

Jeff Pfeffer won his eighth game of the season for the leading Superbas yesterday when he beat the Reds, 7—4. Robinson's men piled up a big early lead, and Pfeffer took things easy, allowing 11 safeties. Mitchell, Moseley and Schneider did the hurling for Herzog's aggregation.

JONES AND HOERR SEND ENTRIES TO A. A. A. NET EVENT

"Tennis Trust" Again in the Field, But Will Probably Not Be Paired in Doubles.

The annual tourney for the tennis title of the Triple A, which in reality is an early summer city championship tournament, will be started on the courts of the Forest Park club, Saturday afternoon. Thirty-four players have already entered the singles matches, while 12 teams have signed for play in the doubles. However, as the entry list will not be closed until Friday night, it is expected that their numbers will be swelled before the first round of play.

Drummond Jones and Roland Hoerr are among the latest entrants, thus putting to death a rumor that the local tennis trust would pass up the matches. Both players have entered in the singles tourney, but have not as yet signified their intention of competing in the two-man matches. Triple A hangers-on are anxiously waiting to see how the teams will line up, should they enter. Jones and Hoerr formed a doubles team that had everything in the city backed off of the courts, until last year. The pair split up, however, and it is not thought that they will be seen on the same side of the net again.

Ward and Hoerr to Pair.

Hoerr will probably play with Taylor Ward, the youthful title aspirant, who made such a splendid impression last year. It is not known who Jones will take, unless it might be Hotchkiss. In the city matches last fall Drummie played with Clarence Gamble, but inasmuch as the latter is not a member of the A. A. A., it is impossible for this team to play in the coming matches.

Jones is the present club champion and there are but few persons who witnessed the match in which he landed the title who will forget it. It was on a scorching Sunday afternoon, last July, and one of the hardest fought five-set affairs seen on a local court in eons. Hoerr, his opponent, took the first two sets and at the first intermission it looked like Rollie had the big cup clinched. The heat was too much for him, however, while it didn't seem to bother the veteran Jones one lick.

He came back and played his old heady placing game and ran his more corpulent opponent all over the sun-baked court until he was noticeably "all in." Jones took the last three sets and the championship.

With the old doubles pair split up, the wiseacres have it that Van Reppert and Holthaus have a good chance for the doubles victory. This team generally managed to meet the Jones-Hoerr combination in the finals and more often than not put up a clever struggle. Last season the team was not seen in action, as Holthaus had a bum leg and Van Reppert was playing on California courts.

Another likely looking team is Sid Overall and Jack Lehman. Overall was a partner of Hotchkiss last season, while Lehman played with Perry. The new combination is composed of two real stars and should prosper.

WRAY'S COLUMN

We're Waiting, Mr. Welsh.

SKEPTICAL followers of the artful tactics of Freddie Welsh, world's lightweight fight champion, are focussing their intelligence on reports from New York in the expectation of reading an account of another masterly retreat by the title holder. Freddie, it will be understood, doesn't confine his side-stepping to footwork.

At present he is nominally matched to fight Charley White of Chicago in Buenos Aires, "the beautiful capital of Argentine, the granary of South America," in the Holmes-Elmendorf argot. Actually nothing has been signed; but the "papers" must be delivered to the promoters this week. In fact, the ship sails Saturday. Thus Freddie's hand will be forced.

Fred's Value Shrinking.

WELSH was 30 years of age last March 5. Since July 7, 1914, he has confined his efforts to accumulating a maximum amount of coin at a minimum risk. He has been about $100,000 worth successful. But interest in Fred is waning. The time is impending when his 10-round bouts, from netting him as high as $15,000, may be reduced to returns of only $500, due to the fact that the public is tiring of him.

And it is with reluctance that they believe he is actually going to get into the ring in a long bout with a dangerous opponent. And that is why few expect to see him embark for Argentina this week.

F. Time Is Still Unbeaten.

WELSH has been a great fighter. No one has a right to disparage his ability or to predict his defeat until it happens.

A man who can concede physical advantages to Packey McFarland and hold him even twice, in long bouts, is SOME lightweight. With Welsh going at his best, few would hesitate to say that White's famous left hook would find no billet during the bout.

But fighting Father Time and White in the same ring is expected to prove too much for even this great boxer.

His failure to outbox Benny Leonard may be a tip-off of what's coming.

Hey! Hurry Up With the Silencer.

LEE FOHL, who for a year was buried in the last place and who was exhumed this season by Tris Speaker, astonished the world by breaking into speech, recently. Last year Fohl made fully as much noise as Rameses' mummy. Now he is as loud as Gov. Major's golf clothes.

The burden of Fohl's remarks is that "morning baseball practice for big league teams is bunk." In substantiation of the same he adds:

> "The Giants lost 13 and won two games at home, at the start of the season when they had daily morning practice. When they went on the road they won 17 straight with no opportunity, for morning work."

Fohl probably stands alone in the world, in the belief that practice does not improve.

They're Patient in Chicago.

ONE of the features of the year is the fortitude with which the enthusiastic White Sox fans take the poor stars of the expensive Comiskey club. They stand by the club through thick and thin hoping it will come on under the management of "Pants" Rowland.

"Pants" is well nicknamed—He surely needs supporters. "Pants" would have fallen down often, but for their reliability.

Comiskey assembled a first rate team, bought $100,000 worth of new talent including two of the greatest players in the game, and then turned over the machine to Chauffeur Rowland. Under his driving the club was a semi-failure last year and does not seem able to get going this season despite its fine make-up.

It is beyond reason to expect that the followers of the team will wait throughout another entire season for a betterment of conditions. Rowland's head will be demanded—and granted too, unless improvement sets in.

The high cost of baseball makes success in a manager the first essential. It's a hard condition, but it's a business one. And business rules baseball today.

Has Mrs. Bundy Retired?

FROM the list of competitors at the national women's singles tennis championship, at Philadelphia, the name of Mrs. May Sutton Bundy is missing, much to the regret of those who had hoped to see her dispute with Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the world's title. Evidently Mrs. Bundy is not to make any trip East to compete in features that would give her a national rating, this year, and the dispute as to whether she is a better player than Miss Bjurstedt will have to remain unsettled, officially.

Actually it has been settled, in the minds of those who followed the exhibition matches of late last season. In California the two premieres, one of today and the other of five or six years ago, played three matches. Mrs. Bundy defeated Miss Bjurstedt in two of the three. She had played little competitive tennis since her marriage and could hardly have been at the form she attained when she was world's champion. Then she played year-round tennis.

Most of her friends believe she could still defeat Miss Bjurstedt, after two or three months' hard practice.

Probably Signed Already.

THERE are two high school athletes of Oregon, Ill., who can just about pick the university they care to attend, when they graduate from "prep" circles. That is to say, every social and other "inducement," within the limit of the amateur rules, will be offered them by several institutions, if they will only be pleased to attend and take a four-year course —we won't say free of charge.

These lads are Landers and Loomis who, as a track team of two, went to Ann Arbor last Saturday and captured the Michigan interscholastic track and field meet, scoring 34½ points between them.

Loomis made 21 points himself, winning the two sprint events and the pole vault, and taking seconds in the high hurdles and the broad jump. His teammate scored 13½ points.

Washington U. could use either man as a jimmy to break into the Missouri Valley point column.

AMES WILL OPPOSE HUGHES IN SECOND BATTLE AT BOSTON

Sallee's Tight Pitching Gives the Cards a 2--1 Victory in Opening Game.

BOSTON, June 7.—"We have been a long time getting under way," said Miller Huggins, the little Cardinal manager this morning as he sat in the hotel lobby, "but the men looked better than the half a dozen hits credited to them would credited to them would indicate in yesterday's game with the Braves. However, with such a close race, we are not so far behind, as the standing shows. Figuring out the games won and lost, the Cards are within hailing distance of the Dodgers and we will be better off when we reach home than when we departed. This afternoon Leon Ames or Williams will be ready to pitch, but if I find that neither is good I still have Jasper and Steele, who are anxious to work."

It is possible that thin Tom Hughes will twirl for the Braves. He has not worked since the Boston club returned last year.

Slim Sallee is the same old tough proposition to the Braves. He never performed better in his career than in the first five innings yesterday, when the only Braves to get on received passes. He eventually won, 2—1. The game was played in a drizzling rain and the attendance was small, less than 1500 people gathering in the gigantic stands.

Gamblers Have Quiet Day.

The gamblers were quiet yesterday. There was no gun-play in the first-base stand as on Monday, when Mack, one of the most notorious bettors, was shot in the thigh.

There is talk that Joe Tinker of the Cubs is going to get Evers away from the Braves. Tinker is reported as having said he will give most anything for his old side partner. Evers has not played since last Friday and it is believed there is something in the report, although neither Stallings nor the club-owners have anything to say regarding it.

Three of the four hits made off Sallee were gathered in the sixth inning.

WOLGAST SHOWS SPEED IN A BRIEF BOUT WITH COLE

Ex-Champion Favorably Impresses Railbirds by His Workout at Randall's.

AGREES TO NEW RULES

Will Return Saturday and Follow Prescribed Training Schedule for Bout Tuesday.

By Harry S. Sharpe.

Ad Wolgast, whose match with Frankie Russell has been postponed until next Tuesday night on account of rain which made it impossible to hold it last night at the Motordrome, worked out yesterday afternoon at Randall's gymnasium before a large crowd of spectators, among whom was Robert W. Hall of the Boxing Commission.

Wolgast was anxious to do some boxing, but of the many boxers who were present only Billy ("Red") Cole was willing to take a chance. Cole is much smaller than Wolgast, but for two rounds they put up a lively bout in which some hard raps were exchanged. At the conclusion Wolgast asked Cole how long he had been boxing, and when informed congratulated the youngster upon his ability.

After finishing with Cole, Wolgast called for more volunteers. "Give me a rough fellow," he pleaded, "I don't care who it is, big or little," but no one responded and Wolgast then busied himself at the weights and pulleys until pulled off the floor by his manager, Larney Litchtenstein, after he had put in a good half hour.

Thick at the Waistline.

Wolgast is a bit thick about the waistline, but his broad, powerful-looking shoulders, back, arms and legs carry no burden of extra and useless flesh.

When Wolgast arrived in the city yesterday morning and was told that a postponement of his bout was necessary he demurred at first, but Tommy Sullivan convinced him that it was impossible to run the show last night, and then both he and his manager agreed to return here next Saturday morning, and in the afternoon and on each successive day before the bout next Tuesday he will work out at Randall's gymnasium.

Another thing agreed upon was that a new set of articles would be drawn up, in which it will be stipulated that both boxers must weigh in on next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at 135 pounds or under.

Lichtenstein was instructed by Boxing Commissioner Hall in respect to the commission's ruling that nothing but soft muslin bandages may incase the hands of boxers, and Lichtenstein replied that this would be agreeable. He was also informed that boxers were required to "break" clean from the clinches, and that there must be no hitting while holding. This was agreed to.

Wolgast Still Very Fast.

Wolgast worked very fast yesterday afternoon, and appeared eager. No doubt he was disappointed in failing to get someone to carry him along at a fast and rough clip. It was surprising that none of the boxers, except Cole, wanted to try him out. Leo Schneider came in when Wolgast had about finished and said he would volunteer, but by this time the ex-lightweight champion was about through for the day.

Frankie Russell, who has been doing his work at Randall's did not appear yesterday, probably out of courtesy to Wolgast.

Wolgast is not a pleasing man to interview. He talks in a quick, gruff manner, and his whole demeanor indicates that he has but little time to spare aside from fighting and figuring interest on his investments. According to Lichtenstein, Wolgast is worth about a quarter of a million dollars and is very independent. "He can be coaxed to do almost anything," said his manager, "but he can't be driven. Should he take offense, he would think nothing of snapping off an engagement without notice."

IT'S always wet weather
When fans get together—
The way they've been stung it's a shame;

He's raising the river
And putting a crimp in the game.

The weather's atrocious,
Wild Bill is ferocious
And curses the weather man's pranks;
The Brownies are idle,
They tug at the bridle
And long to cut loose at the Yanks.

When parkward we hike it,
To see "As You Like It,"
Beneath the cerulean dome,
We wear mackintoshes

And need 'em before we get home.

Next week the convention

And Woodrow is slated to win;
While father and mother
And sister and brother
Are scheming on how to get in.

BILLIARD PLAYERS PLAN REVOLT; MAY FORM NEW LEAGUE

Interstate Rule Barring "Academy" Stars Will Eliminate the Best Men.

If the officials of the Interstate Billiard League hold to their ruling handed down at the meeting held in Chicago, recently, to bar players, who operate in the academy games, there is a probability that another circuit, to be known as the "Federal League," will be formed by several dissatisfied room keepers and the cueists barred from the Interstate. This was the announcement yesterday by Pierre Maupome, who last season represented this city and finished in third place.

"If they bar us," said Maupome, "we will form a circuit of our own to be known as the Federal League. We will have probably 10 players and we could get 10 good ones. There is a move on foot right now to form the organization and just as soon as we find out we cannot play, we will be ready."

Many Stars Thrown Out.

Should the Interstate officials remain firm in their intentions, many good players would be lost. Charles Ellis, Pierre Maupome, Charles Morin, Benny Klatcher, and Charles Legros, all of them in the Interstate last season, played in academy games in Detroit during the last two weeks. All of them were rated as stars, Klatcher making a great showing, while substituting for Morin.

Then there are such stars as John Horgan, John Daly, Tommy Hueston and others playing on the Pacific Coast. It is hardly probable that they could be landed for a league, as they would not even quit the academy last season to challenge for the world's title.

If arrangements go through, and the new league is placed in the field, it will be just as strong as the Interstate.

Baumgardner Signs for $75 a Month; Refuses $200 Job

"Nobody Would See Me, if I Went to Memphis," He Argues, in Passing up More Money to Remain With the Browns.

GEORGE BAUMGARDNER.

GEORGE BAUMGARDNER of Barbersville, W. Va., the heart of the Blue Ridge belt, is all puffed up like a pouter pigeon because he has signed a new contract with the Browns. All of which only proves how easy it is to get Baumgardner all puffed up.

This contract, which Baumgardner considers an asset, according to his own statement, calls for $75 a month and has lately been bestowed upon him by the management at Sportsman's Park, with stipulations that unless Baumie keeps himself in condition his pay will be stopped. However, he says he will qualify for a speaking part with the paymaster on the "first and fifteenth" from now until October.

And when Eddie Plank steps up to draw down a paltry $600, it behooves Eddie to work fast, because Baumie is liable to push him aside and demand his $37.50. That's the ratio, $37.50 for Baumie against $600 for Plank, twice a month.

Turns Down $200 Job.

However, George should manifest concern! He was offered a job at $200 a month in Memphis, but after due consideration he signed for $75 a month at Sportsman's Park.

Who'll ever see me in Memphis?" argued George, who has ways of doing things that are unique. For instance: One day during the spring training trip at Palestine, Baumgardner was walking down the street with Phillips, a pitcher, who has been sent back to Denver. Phillips continually addressed George by his given name.

Whereupon Baumie stopped the show and announced:

"When we're passing anybody, don't call me George. Just say Baumgardner. We might just as well let these hicks know who we are."

On the advice of Earl Hamilton, who was sold to Detroit, along with his $7500 contract, Baumie is saving most of his money. "You can't tell when the old pay check will stop coming," argues Baumie.

CHICAGO, June 7.—A. Lindauer of the University of Chicago and Becker of the University of Illinois will meet today to decide the singles tennis championship of the Intercollegiate Conference Association. The match was set for last week, but postponed on account of rain.

Stag A. C. Will Stage a 12 Mile Run on July 2

Several Old-timers Will Re-enter Game in Event of South Side Organization.

The Stag Athletic Club, which has been prominent in boxing, baseball and other sports, is going to become active now in track and field. This hustling organization has taken the building of the old Benton Park Swimming pool at 2914 South Jefferson, and is out to give the Columbian A. C. and all other local athletic institutions a run for athletic supremacy.

Sunday, July 2, they will stage their initial running event, a modified Marathon race of 12 miles, starting from their clubhouse and finishing at the same point, after a run over the streets in the southwestern part of the city.

Handsome and valuable trophies will be awarded to the first eight men to finish, and silver medals to all competitors after the first eight who finish within 30 minutes of the leader.

A number of old-timers, who have been out of the running for a long time, have signified their intention of entering the event, among them Carl Trumbull, Charles Lobert, C. M. Gwin and Charley Trefts, who were prominent some five or six years ago. Trefts ran a great race in the M. A. C. marathon in 1907 and retired after that. He is in good shape and hopes to show the boys he is still as good as ever.

Practically all the local talent of distance runners will start and a great race seems assured. It is proposed to start the race about 4 or 4:30 in the afternoon, so as to run in the coolest part of the day. All arrangements are in charge of Henry Levinson, himself a veteran of many marathon races, and well qualified to manage the event. Entries can be made with Mr. Levinson, room 43 De Menil Building, Seventh and Pine streets.

Dutch Brandt to Box M'Neill Here Manager Writes

Clever Little Bantamweight Boxer Says Future City Club Offered Him Bout.

In a letter to the sporting editor, Dutch Brandt, the whirlwind Brooklyn bantamweight fighter, states that he has been offered a match here with the English scrapper, Benny McNeill, to take place in the next few weeks. Brandt states that he has accepted.

Jack Doyle Seeks Bout.

Jack Doyle of New York, accompanied by his manager, drifted into the city, yesterday, from the cotton belt, looking for a bantamweight bout. At least the "manager" said his companion was Doyle and exhibited clippings to prove his accomplishments. If he is the gentleman referred to in the newspaper accounts, Tommy Sullivan, the local promoter, ought to be able to use him either against Jimmy Murphy, Harry Kabakoff or Benny McNeill.

Jack Doyle has newspaper verdicts over such good boys as Johnny Solberg, Zulu Kid and One-Punch Hogan, and has draws with Pal Moore, Dutch Brandt and Young Sandow.

Moran-Dillon Forfeits Up.

Although the Welsh-White bout in Buenos Aires is dubious, the Moran-Dillon contest, scheduled for Washington Park, Brooklyn, June 29, is on in earnest. The club and both fighters have posted a total of $6000 in forfeits. Moran is to get $25,000, or 40 per cent; Dillon, $15,000 or 25 per cent. The house is expected to run $75,000 by the promoters. Either that or the promoters will run short.

Or a Spanish Onion.

The boxing world, heavy department, is busy working up the fight fever in Latin countries. Wills and McVey, the colored fighters, are going to box in Buenos Aires in July.

Gunboat Smith will be shipped to Spain, according to Manager Jim Buckley, and matched with former Champion Jack Johnson.

The man who originated the idea of the last mentioned match ought to be breveted a kernel. It certainly has a nut flavor.

The Record Jump.

A list of Ad Wolgast's bouts to come, printed this week, says that Ad fights Joe Flynn at Denver June 14; Joe Rivers, also at Denver, July 4; Danny Ridge, at Baltimore, July 15. To which we will add Frankie Russell, at St. Louis, June 13. It's some jump overnight from St. Louis to Denver.

However, Bill Killefer, in Fed League days, once jumped to Chicago and back again in 24 hours, indicating nothing is impossible.

The Metropolitan title is now held by Walter J. Travis, but neither he nor Jerome D. Travers, who has won the title five times, will participate in this tournament.

Among the strong contenders are Oswald Kirkby of Englewood, the New Jersey State champion; Max Marston, formerly New Jersey champion; Phil Carter, North and South champion; John G. DE PALMA TO GO AFTER ONE-HOUR RECORD TODAY

CHICAGO, June 7.—Final preparatory and elimination trials for the annual automobile derby which will be run at the Speedway track Saturday will be started today and will continue through tomorrow, weather permitting. Heavy rain yesterday kept all the cars off the track, which will necessitate a more prolonged program of final tests and trials in the remaining days.

A feature of today's practice will be Ralph de Palma's attempt to break the American one-hour record, which was postponed from yesterday.

Practically all of the drivers and cars which will compete in the race are now at the track and are being given a last overhauling in preparation for Saturday's races.

MATERIALS FROM OLD FOUR COURTS TO BRING $22,000

Old materials from the ancient Four Courts Building, which is now being wrecked, are expected to be sold for $22,000, the metal, including lead piping, down-spouts, iron steps, columns and prisoners' cells already having been disposed of for $13,000. The Sutton Wrecking Co. bought the building for $9379.

Frank Sutton, estimator for the Sutton company, says he values the lumber in the building at $4500 and the brick at $5000. The A. Wolff Metal Co., which purchased the old iron, lead pipe and copper, will receive $500 for removing the cells. Sutton says the cost of tearing down the building and removing the wreckage which cannot be sold will be about $10,000. He figures his company's profit will be about $2500, or about 27 per cent on the price paid for the privilege.

Bids for the wrecking of the building were received by Building Commissioner McKelvey, but were subsequently rejected because of a ruling that he had no jurisdiction. The highest bid submitted to the Building Commissioner was $6000. There was a second advertisement of the letting on May 1, this time by Supply Commissioner Thomas.

Tenders were made by seven firms and individuals. The Sutton Wrecking Co. bid $8379, the Goldberg Supply Co., $7130; the Kellerman Contracting Co., $7000; the Keystone Iron and Metal Co., $4200; Thomas Kelly, $3400, and James J. Ryan, $2300. Henry Shaefer & Bros., who last summer wrecked the Bohle stables, west of the old city hall, wanted $2500 and the old materials as compensation for performing the work of dismantling the Four Courts.

JUDGE REFUSES TO DISMISS SHOE MACHINERY SUIT

Case Under Anti-Trust Law Must Go to Trial, Trieber Rules.

The United Shoe Machinery Co. today failed to obtain from United States Judge Trieber a dismissal of the suit filed against it here by the United States Government under the Clayton anti-trust law. Judge Trieber, who is in Little Rock, sent a 45-page typewritten decision denying the motion for a dismissal and it was filed in the United States District Court here.

This will mean that the case will have to go to trial here at a date not yet fixed, with Judge Trieber sitting in Judge Dyer's place. Judge Dyer disqualified himself last February, after the shoe machinery company had alleged he was prejudiced.

In his decision today, Judge Trieber indorsed the words of Judge Dyer which apparently caused the company to allege that Judge Dyer was prejudiced. Judge Dyer said the company must comply with the law, even if such compliance should mean that the shoemaking industry must return to the wooden peg and the awl, in place of its complicated machinery.

Judge Trieber, in his decision, repeats this expression, with his indorsement. He says that all the matters which the company has pleaded, as to the improvements which its machines have made, furnish no reason why it should violate an act of Congress. The chief violation alleged, in this case, is that the company makes "tying" contracts, which prevent the purchasers or lessors of its machinery from dealing with any competing company.

Mules were quiet again, without much action to any class. As usual, war types were the chief sellers, but the supply of these was very light.

EARLY STOCK MARKET SHOWS STEADY RANGE

Most Issues Are Higher on First Trades—Business Is Fair.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review, today says:

"Following yesterday afternoon's sudden rise in call money to 4 per cent, the highest since 1914, the rate eased off again today. At the same time the particular cause for yesterday's movement was found to have been the placing in this market of a large temporary loan for London account, presumably in connection with the financing of British Government payments for munitions. Numerous temporary arrangements of the sort have been made heretofore by the borrowing agents, but attracted no attention because of the plethoric New York bank reserves. In the present instance the amount thus raised appears to have been unusually large, and the previous reduction in the surplus of the banks made the money rate more responsive to it.

"It may be assumed that this present loan was raised on collateral of American securities in the hands of the British Treasury; also that the transaction is anticipatory of settlement by further remittances of gold. Today's arrivals from Ottawa amounted to $4,000,000, the largest daily consignment since this movement began, which brought the total importations in the past four weeks to $45,500,000. It would seem a good deal more gold is yet to come on English account.

"Sterling rates remained unchanged today; German exchange declined another fraction.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 7.—Irregular price changes attended the moderate operations of today's early market, with a fairly equal distribution of gains and losses. Standard stocks were again subordinated to specialties, although Norfolk & Western and Louisville & Nashville were again strong, the former at a new record. Marine preferred recovered a point of yesterday's decline, with as much or more for United Fruit, Crucible Steel and South Porto Rico Sugar. Later the list developed a better tone, Reading leading the movement. Willys-Overland featured the motors, rising 7½ points. Metals were under further restraint.

The railway list acquired greater prominence in the early afternoon. Canadian Pacific, "Soo" and Northern Pacific rising 1 to 2 points. Heaviness in motors became more pronounced and Great Northern Ore also declined.

Norfolk & Western became the outstanding feature of the stock market on the continued advance to 137⅝. Changes in active special stocks were toward greater irregularity. A 2-point advance in Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis called renewed attention to the Southern group. The inquiry for harvester issues resulted in substantial gains. In active specialties, such as American Tobacco, International Paper preferred, Woolworth and Kayser, were particularly strong. Bonds were firm.

London Stock Market.

LONDON, June 7.—The stock market recovered its buoyancy and passed an active session at rising prices today. Home funds, foreign rails and shipping shares were features and consols advanced ¼ of a point. American securities were more active under the mobilization scheme and all stocks were freely absorbed for shipment to America. Money and discount rates were quiet.

Fruits.

STRAWBERRIES—Prices ranged a little higher on home-grown berries, as supply was smaller and local demand fair; but the great detriment to the market is the style of boxes in use as shippers are debarred from operating because only standard quart boxes can be safely used in other markets on account of legislative restrictions. Wagon receipts were about 17,000 trays and sales ranged from 40c to 60c per tray loose, preserving companies buying some at 45c to 50c. Only a few cases in by express—Southern Illinois gandys sold at $1 per 24-quart case and Southeast Missouri berries (soft) sold for express charges.

BLACKBERRIES—Arkansas blackberries arrived late and offered at $1.50 and dewberries at $2 per 6-gallon case and not sold; lot 24-pint cases (soft) sold at 75c per case.

GOOSEBERRIES—Home-grown in freer offering and easier, at 65c to 75c per 3-gallon tray loose.

CHERRIES—Quiet and steady; offerings light. Quote Missouri and Illinois at $2 per 6-gallon case. Home-grown sold at 75@90c per 3-gallon tray loose.

CANTALOUPES—Latest sales California in jobbing way delivered at $2.75@3 for pony crates and $3.50 for standards.

WATERMELONS—Couple cars Florida melons on market, but none sold in jobbing way. Quote Florida watsons held at 2½c per pound delivered for 32-pound size and at 2@2¼c for 22-pound melons.

PEACHES—Easier. Car Texas flat crates early wheelers selling at 90c to $1 delivered (specked less). Arkansas melon baskets triumphs slow sale at 65c.

PLUMS—Quote Arkansas chickasaw at $1 @1.25 per 6-gallon case.

APPLES—Quote ben davis at $1.75 to $2.50 (top for extra fancy free from scald), fancy willowtwigs at $4.50@5 and fancy geniting at $4.25—scalded and off-condition fruit less.

ORANGES—Firm. Quote in jobbing way delivered: California navels at $3.25@3.75; California Valencias at $3.50@4.

PINEAPPLES—Quote Cuban at $2.25 per crate, according to size.

CHICAGO WHEAT IS LOWER ON GOOD CROP WEATHER

CHICAGO, June 7.—Beneficial rains, especially those in the Southwest, eased off the wheat market today, after a slight initial upturn. The early firmness was due to a little temporary activity which a leading house showed on the buying side.

Opening prices, which ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to ⅝c higher, with July at $1.05¾ to $1.06 and September at $1.07⅝ to $1.07¾, was followed by a moderate general setback.

Corn swayed with wheat. After opening unchanged to ¼c higher, the market underwent a big sag all around.

Oats had no independent action. Trade was entirely local.

Demand from shorts lifted provisions. Weakness in the hog market was ignored.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Raw sugar quiet; centrifugal, 6.27c; molasses, 5.50c; refined quiet; fine granulated, 7.65c. Sugar futures were easy under scattered liquidation and liberal offerings in the spot market. At noon prices were 5 to 12 points lower.

The approach of the Government crop report tomorrow, made for conservatism in the local wheat market in the early trading today and values were irregular. A break of about ⅜c under yesterday's close was followed by a complet recovery, however, despite a good weather map and assertions that yesterday's reports of foreign buying were exaggerated. The trade cannot overlook the fact that in the first 21 days of June last year July wheat in Chicago dropped from $1.24⅝ to $1 and the market position of wheat is weaker now than then.

The Liverpool cable said: "In wheat the firmness in America was offset by free arrivals and congestion here of supplies. Spot unchanged; cargo market dull; Manitobac opened 6d dearer and later eased to unchanged. Winters, 1½d lower; others nominal. Pressure of arrivals, easier tendency of freights and a quieter Continental demand keeps the trade bearish. The corn market was dull; spot, ½d lower; fair supplies and a quieter demand. Parcels steady, 3d dearer."

The Argentine cable said: "Buenos Aires wheat steady, unchanged; corn unchanged to ½c higher. There are no offers to United Kingdom, except occasional small parcel offers, and those for testing the market. Continental demand continues and freights remain strong."

Michigan June condition of winter wheat is 81, same as in May; last year 91. Corn condition, 86; last July 71; acreage 4 per cent less than last year. Oats condition, 87; last year, 91.

Northwest cars:

Minneapolis	148	259	179
Duluth	68	211	20
Winnipeg	357	1,360	153
Totals	575	1,830	352

Kansas City wired: "Compiled from 900 estimates received. Allen Logan makes the following estimate on Kansas crop: Wheat acreage sown, 8,626,783; acreage lost 702,830; acreage standing, 7,923,953; estimated yield, 93,154,877 bu; old wheat on farms, 6,716,560 bu."

Bradstreet's wheat decreased 3,344,000 bu for the week; corn decreased 1,005,000 bu; oats increased 1,470,000 bu.

The Price Current Grain Reporter says: "The Government report due on Thursday of this week will no doubt confirm the general belief in the general deterioration of the winter wheat crop. This, on the whole, private estimates put at the normal, or average May decline. The crop has been helped somewhat by recent rains and soil conditions are now such as to hold the present promise to the harvest. Oats average on the whole is forecast at a slight change, owing to losses in the Southern and Southwestern and Eastern states from insect pests and dry weather.

Corn planting in general over all the northern section of the belt, with some replenting in Iowa. The acrage in the big belt should show an increase, which is probably offset by a decrease of the acreage in the South(owing to the larger cotton planting. In the Northwest both corn and spring wheat acreage probably will show a reduction."

Total clearances of wheat were 760,000 bu; flour, 15,000 bbls; wheat and flour, 828,000; corn, 42,000; oats, 463,000 bu.

COTTON SLIGHTLY HIGHER ON THE EASTERN MARKET

NEW YORK, June 7.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 6 to 11 points today, in response to relatively steady cables and some over-night buying orders. Houses with Liverpool connections were rather active sellers of January right after the call, causing some irregularity, but Liverpool was also a good buyer of July and October, while there was further scattered covering and July contracts soon worked up to 12.82c, October to 12.93c and December to 13.08c, or about 9 to 12 points net higher. There was talk of unfavorable crop conditions as a result of the storms in Arkansas, but rains elsewhere in the belt were discussed as more beneficial than otherwise and the ring seemed to expect a favorable weekly report from the weather bureau at midday.

$100 GROWS TO $5264

Had you invested $100 in the stock of the Reo Motor Car Company when this Company was organized in 1904, you would have received back in cash dividends, up to the present time, $1,100.25; you would have received many stock dividends and also a dividend that was paid in the stock of the Reo Motor Truck Company; and, had you held your original stock and all of the stock dividends you would own today 120 shares of the stock of the Reo Motor Car Company and 3 shares of the stock of the Reo Motor Truck Company. The market value of this stock today is $4,164. In other words, every $100 invested a little over eleven years ago has paid back to the fortunate investor $100 in cash each year, and his investment today has an actual market value of $4,164.

$100 would originally have purchased 10 shares of the stock. Stock dividends have brought it up until the holdings at the present time amount to 120 shares of the car stock and 3 shares of the truck stock. The total market value is $4,164. The total cash dividends paid have been $1,100.25. In other words:

IN 11 YEARS' TIME
$ 100 HAS GROWN TO $ 5,264.25
$ 1,000 " " " $ 52,642.50
$ 5,000 " " " $263,212.50
$10,000 " " " $526,425.00

In other words, an investment of $10,000 has grown to over a Half Million Dollars.

From present indications, these earnings will continue for many years to come. If you did not buy Reo Stock before, BUY IT TODAY, or invest some money in a well-managed, new automobile or truck manufacturing company, where you have an opportunity to share in the big profits earned by this marvelous money-making industry. The Reo is the only automobile company that has earned these tremendous profits, others have done equally as well or better, and perhaps the very best opportunity ever offered to wisely invest in the automobile industry is NOW—TODAY.

Everyone knows of the tremendous fortune piled up by Henry Ford, but very few people realize the tremendous profits made by small investors who took advantage of the opportunity offered to purchase stock in a new company that was assured of success. A small investment has grown to a comfortable fortune in many companies, including such concerns as the Chalmers, Hupp, Packard, Paige-Detroit, Reo, White, Federal Motor Truck and many others.

Take the Chalmers, for instance—The Common Stock of this company is now earning about 30% per annum, and is held today on the open market at about $160 per share. If you will study the history of the Chalmers you will find that, in addition to the cash dividends distributed, a stock dividend of 900% was declared in 1910. In October, 1912, another stock dividend of 33⅓%, and in June, 1913, another stock dividend of 25%. Suppose you had one share of stock in August, 1910, costing you $100 par value. Upon this you would have received a stock dividend of 900%, increasing your holdings to $1,000 par value. In October, 1912, a stock dividend of 33⅓%, increasing your holdings to $1,333 par value. In June, 1913, you receive a 25% stock dividend, bringing your holdings up to $1,666 par value. This increase was in addition to cash dividends paid during that time aggregating over 70%, representing no outlay to you excepting your original investment of $100.

You are now the owner of $1,666 par value of stock on which 10% dividends are being paid, or, at the rate of 160% actual dividends, on your initial investment of $100. The market value of this stock today, however, is around $160, making your holdings worth $2,500 today. In other words, your investment of $100 has grown to $2,500 in value, in addition to the cash dividends of 70% which you have received.

An Investment of One Thousand Dollars Would Have Provided You Within About Five Years a Tidy Little Fortune of $25,000.

Today the automobile industry is established along permanent lines, and today it is paying bigger profits than ever before in the history of the business. It is a solid fact, however, that the big money has been made by those who had the foresight to get in on the "ground floor" with a newly established company. It is very true that some large profits have been made on the Stock Exchange during the past few months, but it is equally true that much larger profits have been made by those who bought these stocks when they were first put out and the companies were being organized.

We are the largest exclusive dealers in automobile securities in the country. We do not handle any other stocks or bonds. We devote our entire time and attention to the automobile security market. For that reason we believe that we are in a better position to furnish facts and information and advice regarding automobile securities than any other brokerage or banking house in the United States.

Regardless of the merit of other automobile securities, we today advise the purchase of RICHARD. We urge all of our clients and readers to act promptly, for the price is on the eve of a big advance.

BIG DIVIDENDS

are not an exception, but the rule, in the motor car industry. Dozens of companies have paid back small fortunes to early investors, and in some instances fabulous sums have been earned from the investment of only $100 or so.

You are now offered an opportunity to secure an interest in THE RICHARD AUTO MANUFACTURING COMPANY, of Cleveland, Ohio, on a preferred profit-sharing basis.

"THE RICHARD CAR"

designed by Francis RICHARD one of the best known and foremost automobile engineers and designers in the world, threatens to revolutionize the entire automobile industry. Mr. RICHARD, well and favorably known in the highest engineering circles of both America and Europe, has developed in the past some of the greatest improvements the automobile has had. In fact, there is scarcely an automobile in America today that is not using one or more of the ideas and equipments designed and first applied by this engineer.

CHEMINEAU BODY
Pat. Appd. For
80 MILES AN HOUR

An earlier invention of one engine took the GOLD MEDAL at the PARIS EXPOSITION; another invention of a carburetor secured the GOLD MEDAL at St. Louis. Mr. RICHARD built the fastest one-cylinder car ever made, developing 82 miles an hour and going 42 miles to one gallon of gasoline. He built the first eight-cylinder car in this country, which was the fastest car in the world.

The RICHARD Car, the result of his 22 years of experience in the automobile industry, and the result of over two years of work of designing, making dies, castings, etc., is so far ahead of any other automobile made in this country that there is no comparison. This car is without a doubt

THE BEST BUILT CAR IN THE WORLD

Pictures of the car and the specifications, which we will send upon request, will convince you of this fact.

The announcement of a new car by Francois RICHARD caused the Company to be swamped with letters of inquiry from all over the world, and a demand has already sprung up for the car greater than it will be possible for the Company to supply this year.

The management of the Company is in the hands of clean, successful business men, and is operated without an expensive overhead, and the business of the Company is carried on under the most modern, conservative, successful methods.

The Company is incorporated with a capital stock of only $500,000. Half of this stock, divided into 25,000 shares, is 7% Cumulative, Profit-Sharing, Preferred. After 7% has been paid on the Common Stock it shares equally in all dividends. The possibilities for extremely large profits are so wonderful and seem so large that we hesitate even to make an estimate. However, it is safe to say that the opportunity for you to investt in a sane, clean, conservatively capitalized, economically managed company a few hundred dollars or less on a most profitable, profit-earning basis.

The stock of the Company is being placed in small and large blocks among investors in all walks of life, including lawyers, bank presidents, merchants, manufacturers, doctors, mechanics and various other lines.

A sufficient amount of capital has been secured to engage in the manufacture of these cars on a profitable basis. The preliminary work has already been done. The factory is now under construction and will shortly be completed; but, in the meantime, cars are being manufactured.

first one thousand cars manufactured will pay back to the Preferred Stockholders more than twice the amount of the investment.

There is an opportunity for a few investors willing to invest a few hundred dollars at this time to secure an interest certain to pay regular dividends, commencing with July of this year.

The cars are now being manufactured on a basis sufficient to show tremendous profits, and there is a demand for the car in excess of the present capacity of production. Several of our clients have visited the factory, met and talked with the officers, and each and every one came away an enthusiastic subscriber to the stock of the company. The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch

By Roy L. McCardell.

Willie Jarr's Fib Starts a Discussion on General Veracity in the Jarr Household.

"WILLIE told me a fib today and I want you to punish him,' said Mrs. Jarr when her husband arrived home the other evening.

"Great Scott!" replied Mr. Jarr, "I've been telling fibs downtown all day in the usual course of business."

"That's always the way with you!" said Mrs. Jarr. "You never will give me the least bit of assistance in disciplining the children. They are getting beyond me, and you tacitly encourage them in their naughtiness. And yet when they are noisy and disobedient you blame me for it because I have no control over them. Furthermore, you may regard Willie's telling a falsehood as excusible because you are compelled to make misstatements in business; but, as I said, one is the home and the other is the world!"

"That's sophistry," replied Mr. Jarr "A lie is a lie, and if it can be excused in one place it can be in another. As a matter of fact, it can't be excused at all. As for the home being free from falsehood, you and I both have to tell fibs, even at home. Didn't you tell Willie you had no change when he asked you for some pennies this morning?"

"Well, he buys that cheap chewing gum with his pennies, and goodness only knows what it's made of," replied Mrs. Jarr.

"And when the installment man calls and you haven't the money or want it for something else, don't you send the girl or the children to the door to say you are downtown?"

"I very seldom send word to the installment man that I am not in," replied Mrs. Jarr. "I have so many things to pay with what little money I get, and I can't pay them all together when the demands come that way at times. I do the best I can, and you should be the last person to find fault. If you are not satisfied, and if you think you can manage the house better"——

"Oh, tut, tut!" interrupted Mr. Jarr. "Can't a person discuss a matter with you without your taking it so seriously? I was just showing you how we see others' faults and not our own. You know the children hear you at the telephone making regrets for not keeping social engagements."

"Oh, keep quiet!" exclaimed Mrs. Jarr, turning from grief to exasperation. "I can't hurt people's feelings, can I? I'm so sorry that you think I'm such a terrible story teller and bad character altogether! It's a pity such a perfect man should have married a woman so unworthy of his manifold virtures! I do not tell one-tenth the fibs you do; and I don't stand grinning and preaching about it, either! Don't you say one word to me about veracity! I can't believe a thing you say—never!"

"I do have to tell things that are not true in business," said Mr. Jarr, "but I am always truthful to you and in my home, and you know it. I have never told you an untruth in my life, and I never will."

"Oh, Mr. Jarr, how can you say that? You must be drinking!" cried the astonished Mrs. Jarr.

"Drinking?" echoed Mr. Jarr, furtively chewing a clove. "I haven't touched a drop for days—not a drop, on my word!"

And Mrs. Jarr believed him.

Don't Ever Let Anyone Tell You This as a New One

"THAT woman makes the little things count."

"She does?"

"Yes. She teaches arithmetic in a primary school."

Disappointed.

AN officer attached to the White House tells a story of a small boy whom President Wilson encountered at Staunton, Va.:

The president was speaking to a crowd from the steps of a seminary for girls. The boy pushed and shoved his way through the crowd until he found himself squarely in front of the President, whereupon he shouted excitedly:

"Where is it? Where is it?"

Mr. Wilson stopped his speech and said good naturedly: "Well, my boy, I supposeI am 'it.'"

At this the youngster's face assumed a look of disgust. "Oh, he said, in lower tone. "I thought it was a dog fight."—New York Times.

Force of Habit.

A PARROT had spent most of his time in the boxoffice of a theater and had learned a good many of the words and phrases common to that place. One day he was missed from his accustomed perch, and after a long search was found in a tree in the middle of a field. He was surrounded by a flock of crows, which were attacking him from all sides, and had picked off almost all of his feathers. As his recuers came they heard him saying:

"Don't be in a hurry, gentlemen. One at a time. Don't push! Don't push! Don't shove! Take your time! There are a few good ones left!"

Some Are Like That.

I DON'T believe in automobiles. They discourage walking."

"Mine don't. I've done more walking since I bought that machine than I ever did in my life."

WHAT are the chief exports of the United States?" asked the teacher.

"Heiresses in times of peace and ammunition in times of war," replied the boy at the head of the class.

Too Late.

HELLO, Tommy. What a nice little chap you are!"

"Aw, go on. It's no use talking to me like that. Sis got a feller already."

Tell some men they can cure their cold by drinking cold water and they'll take hot whisky.

ALKALI MAKES SOAP BAD FOR WASHING HAIR

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in; about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—ADV.

All the Same

ONE: Of course they are nice to have, but they are a lot of trouble just the same.

Two (with a sigh):Yes, they are.

One: Cost a bunch of money, too.

Two: You're right—they do.

One: 'Tisn't the first expense one minds—but the upkeep is fierce.

Two: Don't I know it?

One: Always something wrong with the blamed things, and when there is nobody but a specialist can tell what it is.

Two: That's true.

One: Still, after you've had one or two of them you couldn't get along without them.

Two (brightening): That's what I think. People envy you, too.

One: Yes, still it's an endless worry keeping them looking trim and shining, and gasoline and tires are going up——

Two: Gasoline and tires! Good heavens, man! I thought you were talking about babies!

Prepared Against Slipping.

THE manager of a millionaire's magnificent estate had sent for a roofer to repair a leak in the roof of the mansion.

Pat Flinn was sent to do the job, and as he entered the front hall the butler, in a subdued voice, said:

"You are requested to be careful of the inlaid floors as you go through the halls; they have just been waxed."

"Oh, sure, there's no danger of me slippin' on thim," replied Flinn. 'I've spikes in me shoes."

So He Didn't Waste It.

A LITTLE boy went to Sunday school for the first time. His mother gave him a nickel to put in the collection box. When he rturned he had a sack of candy.

"Where did you get the candy?" asked his mother.

"From the stand around the corner."

"But what did you buy it with?"

"With the nickel you gave me."

"But that was for Sunday school."

"Well," replied the boy, "I didn't need it. The minister met me at the door and got me in free."—Christian Herald.

After 30 Years.

AH me," sighed the magnate who was revisiting the old red schoolhouse, "how time does fly. Thirty years ago I sat in this very front seat, and it seems to me as if it were but yesterday. If I am not very much mistaken, you'll find my initials carved on the desk."

"They're there, all right," said the present occupant of the seat. "I got licked for it just because my initials happened to be the same as yours."

Not Interested.

I HAVE here," said the agent, "a patent mechanical dishwasher, the greatest invention of the age. It relieves the housewife of drudgery and enables her to devote her time to more uplifting things."

"Don't want it," snapped the man of the house as he prepared to close the door in the agent's face. "My wife spends too much time at the movies as it is."

Delicate Hint

MRS. MORGAN had a colored maid named Sarah. One Sunday afternoon the mistress saw Sarah's lover leaving the house clad in a suit of white flannel. A little later, when the maid appeared, Mrs. Morgan said:

"Sarah, that beau of yours should never wear white. He is so very black that white clothes make him appear all the blacker. Why don't you give him a hint?"

"Why, Mis' Morgan," said Sarah, with animation, "I done give him er lot ob hints, but he jes' natterly ain't got no sense an' he didn't take 'em."

"Probably you didn't make the hints strong enough," said the mistress.

"Well, no'm, dat's jes' what I think myself," agreed Sarah, reflectively; "I don't believe I did. I jest looks at him right hard an' I says: "Niggah, yo' sho' do look like a black snake crawlin' out ob cream, you do!' Thet's jes' all I says to him, Mis' Morgan."—Life.

Tough Luck.

HIS horse went dead and his mule went lame,
And he lost his cow in a poker game;
Then a cyclone came on a summer's day
And blew the house where he lived away;
Then an earthquake came, and when that was gone,
And swallowed the ground that the house stood on.
Then the Tax Collector came around
And charged him up with the hole in the ground.
—Los Angeles Times.

Cause for Repentance.

TEDDY: I wish I hadn't fought Jimmy Brown this morning.

Mamma: You see now how wrong it was, don't you dear?

Teddy: Yes, 'cause I didn't know till this afternoon that he was going to give a party.

Why We Changed to Red Tires—And Why You Should, Too

Four years ago we tried red rubber as a tougher tire material than gray rubber. Empires are the first and only all red tires.

Empire Reds simply put it all over gray tires—even our own—in service and satisfaction. So we switched altogether to Reds, knowing that we can give you a tire of greater mileage. But Empire prices are practically the same as last year.

Empire Tires
RED
WEAR LONGEST

Other makers have caught the red idea, too, and you can get all sorts of combinations. But don't let color blind you to service. We make Empire Reds for wear—that is the significance of the color. They dress up your car, too, but that is incidental.

Adjustments are made on the 5,000-mile basis.

You know that "Peerless" Red Inner Tubes give the most service, and we use the same quality of tough red rubber in Empire Casings.
